NATS ADVANCE DESPITE SPLIT WITH RED SOX

Win Opener, 5-2, for 10th Straight, but Lose in Final Game, 5-1.

GAIN A HALF GAME WHEN MACKS BOW

Winning Streak Stopped as Gaston Scatters 8 Hits Allowed.

MANUSH IS INJURED IN FIRST ENCOUNTER

Out of Game Indefinitely; Jones Checks Boston as Rain Delays Opener.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

Fenway Park, Boston, Mass., July 9. Washington's winning streak was extended to ten this afternoon when the Nationals beat the Red Sox, 5 to 2, in the first game of a doubleheader, but the string was snapped at this total, when the natives won the final, 5 to 1. As this result gives them a record of 18 victories in their last 22 starts and enabled them to gain half a game on the Mackmen, who lost in New York, the Nats have no reason to feel particularly sad.

In the first game, which saw the veteran "Sad Sam" Jones opposing the youngster Jack Russell, and later Joe Bushey, on the hill, the Nationals hit the ball hard and timely and, after the sixth, when they broke the ice with a four-run rally, they never were in any danger, especially as Jones kept the nine hits he allowed well scattered.

It was different in the second game, however. Lloyd Brown, who went the route for Washington, was most ineffective, granting seventeen hits, several in clusters, while Milton Gaston had the Nats eating out of his hand, but eight safeties, all singles, being combed from his slants, the Nats scoring their lone run in the only frame in which they were able to hit safely more than once.

Manush Is Injured.

In winning the first game of the double bill the Nats suffered a severe loss in the injury of Heinie Manush, who pulled a muscle in his groin in running out a hit in the sixth inning and was forced to retire from the game. So serious was his injury that he was sent back to his home in Detroit to recuperate and will be out of the game indefinitely.

Myer, Rice, Judge, West and Ruel each accounted for a brace of safeties in the first fracas, while Rice, Bluege and Loepp practically carried the attack in the second, which was featured by two fine pegs by Sam West, each one of which killed Sox runners at the plate.

Brown was not effective when he took the slab for the Nats in the second game, and his offerings were slapped for nine hits and three runs in the first three rounds. Singles by Scarritt and Webb, with two down, were wasted in the first, but the Sox used their second round to count twice.

Miller opened this inning with a single, Rhyne sacrificed and Berry singled the lead-off man home. After Gaston had poked a one-baser to left and Oliver had hit into a force play, Sweeney singled Berry past the check-in station. The Boston run made in the next frame was the result of Miller's double and singles by Rhyne and Berry, all three blows coming with two out.

Nats Fill Bases in Fifth.

Gaston had granted but two scattered hits when the Nats scored their first marker. He was fortunate in pulling out of the hole at this low cost, for Loepp, Bluege and Spencer, the first three nats up in the fifth, all singled, filling the bases. Brown hit into a double-play, on which Loepp scored, while the rally was ended when Myer lofted to left.

A good peg by West on Rhyne's single, after Miller had doubled in the Sox fifth, shut off a run at the plate, while two allen hits also were wasted by the natives in the sixth.

After singles by Loepp opening the seventh and by Rice with one dead in the eighth had been marked "no good" by their mates, the Sox rallied again in their eighth to score twice more, another great peg by West preventing more damage. With one out, Berry singled; Gaston doubled, Oliver singled and Sweeney doubled. These scored two and left Oliver on third and Sweeney on second when Scarritt lofted to center. West came in fast for the ball and then pegged perfectly to nip Oliver at the plate as he tried to score after the catch.

Bluege walked with two dead in the ninth and, after taking second unmolested, was propelled to third by Ruel's single, the little catcher also going to second with no effort made to stop him. Here, Manager Johnson called on "the great" Shires

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Following the abrupt decline at the end of the War of 1812 came a secondary decline of prices and wages that lasted until about 1834. It was complicated by a bad banking and currency system. A similar secondary reaction began in the early seventies and lasted into the late nineties. But after these two declines a period of rising prices and wages began which lasted for many years. We are now in another secondary decline of prices, but not of wages. However uncomfortable commercial life may have been in those periods of decline the important fact is that the country went on developing. Population and wealth increased greatly. Canals, shipping, steam power and railroads were enormously extended, mechanical invention flourished and Edison and Westinghouse raised the power of the hand of man many degrees. With our present supply of scientific knowledge, plentiful capital, able leadership, skilled workmen and creative spirit, whatever may happen to some individuals and industries, it is impossible to conclude that an end has come to the progress of the United States.

NEW FREIGHT GAINS SET AT $40,000,000

I. C. C. Experts So Estimate Effect of Classified Rate Schedules.

WEST TO WIN $12,000,000

(Associated Press.)

Rate experts, after a 24-hour study of the new classified freight schedules approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission Tuesday for Northeastern railroads, estimated that they would increase net earnings by $40,000,000 a year.

The Interstate Commerce Commission withheld official comment, but individual members unofficially said that the estimate conformed to their expectations.

The new schedules become effective about the first of November.

Though difficulty of determining altered earnings from a new rate system is ordinarily very great, during its consideration of various proposals for revision of classified rates, the commission obtained extensive calculations from all Eastern carriers as to the effect on revenues of proposals before it.

The sum of these calculations ran approximately to $60,000,000 annual increase in net earnings. It is the opinion of Commerce Commission members that the actual basis adopted was somewhat lower than that which produced the $60,000,000 estimate but that orders promulgated will produce $40,000,000 of earnings increase.

The primary purpose of the revision instituted was that of generally removing, as nearly as possible, discriminations between population centers and producing areas in transportation charges. However, since classified freight shipments include typically all that class of traffic having high unit value and moving in limited quantities and at light car loadings, the commission believes the system adopted will enable carriers to attain higher earnings from those classes of their business. The rate structure fixing charges for bulky commodities moving in great volume and at heavy car loadings was left untouched.

Both Eastern and Western classified rate schedules were revised Tuesday by the commission and it was officially estimated that earnings of Western trunk lines would increase by about $12,000,000 per year.

The commission has not, officially, seen fit, however, to announce the effect on net earnings of Eastern lines.

11 Hurt in Ohio Crash As Bus, Truck Collide

Youngstown, Ohio, July 9 (A.P.).—Eleven persons were slightly injured near here today when a Colonial Stage bus, bound for Youngstown and Cleveland from Pittsburgh, crashed into a truck parked on a main road six miles south of the city.

Most of those injured were cut by flying glass.

VIRGINIANS PREDICT LIGHTER APPLE BAN

Trade Envoy Returns With Feeling British Intend Adjustment.

TARIFF ACTION IS FELT

New York, July 8.—J. Scott Parrish, of Richmond, the first member of the all-Virginia party to return to the United States following the tour of England, landed here today from the Ile de France and in a resume of the visit stated that J. Gordon Bohannan, chairman of the Virginia party, had successfully approached the British government in regard to modification of its prohibition of early American apple shipments to England.

Mr. Parrish said that he was not familiar with the result of the negotiations which had not been completed when he sailed, July 3, but that the Virginians felt convinced from the friendly attitude of the British government to their advances, that a reasonable and advantageous adjustment of the regulation could be worked out immediately. He said that Mr. Bohannan had received assurances that the British are anxious not in injure Virginia interests, but to maintain and enlarge friendships and business relationship with the Virginians who have gone more than half way to foster British-American friendship.

"England feels America's tariff action very keenly, however," Mr. Parrish said. "Our mission was to encourage trade through Hampton Roads with Great Britain, especially their exports, which are our imports. We are now sending out through Hampton Roads approximately six times as much as we are importing from England through Virginia ports. The United States exports 18 per cent of her total exports to Canada, 16 per cent to Great Britain and 6 per cent to her colonies, or 40 per cent to the British Empire. From this we would suppose that our Government in Washington would do everything possible to develop trade, but in the passing of the tariff bill this was evidently overlooked.

"The boosting to unprecedented figures of the tariff wall by Congress made it very difficult for us to invite any export trade from Great Britain for Hampton Roads. We reminded our British friends that we had not been consulted and that we in Virginia are opposed to high tariffs."

Investigation by the Virginians into the proposal of England that her tobacco industries use colonial tobaccos, and their repeated efforts to duplicate Virginia tobacco in their provinces, led Mr. Parrish to say that Virginia need have no fear that her

SENATE GROUP INSISTS HOOVER GIVE PACT DATA

Unconditional Surrender Demand Will Face Debate Today.

TREATY ITSELF LAGS AS REAL FRAY RAGES

Robinson Says President Never Will Yield to Resolution.

BORAH HOLDS PAPERS SENATE'S BY RIGHTS

Offers to Submit Secrets to Closed Session Meet With Opposition.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The controversy between President Hoover and the Senate over the secret London treaty documents became increasingly serious yesterday when the Senate prepared to insist upon an unconditional surrender by the Chief Executive and his Secretary of State. Consideration of the naval pact has been temporarily relegated to the future, while the battle over the secret papers is fought to a finish.

A hectic day, featured by sharp and spectacular debate, developed the real issue with which the Senate proposes to deal. This issue is expressed in a resolution proposed by Senator George and which will be debated today in connection with the McKellar resolution calling for the secret documents. It calls upon the President to submit the documents unconditionally to the Senate and makes the Senate itself the judge of what shall be done with any request the President wishes to make as to whether the secrets are to remain confidential.

Senate's Right Defended.

After Senators Black, Robinson of Indiana, Thomas of Oklahoma, Norris, Johnson, George and Shipstead had upheld the Senate's right to the documents, there were indications that President Hoover and Secretary Stimson will have a real battle on their hands if they seek to maintain the position the White House has definitely taken. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, assumed the role of chief defender of the President and told the Senate flatly that the President would not send the documents, no matter what resolution the Senate adopted.

But offers of compromise were made by Senator Reed on behalf of Secretary Stimson and by Senator Allen, who gave his conferees reason to believe that the President would send the documents if the Senate would ask in the resolution that they be sent for consideration in closed executive session.

Mr. Reed said that Secretary Stimson would send the secret documents if the Senate would agree to receive them in confidence.

Has Documents in Office.

The senator said he had the documents in his office and would con-

JONES CHOICE AS U. S. OPEN BEGINS TODAY

"Atlantan Against Field" Is Outlook in Play at Minneapolis.

ROUND OF 18 HOLES OPENS TOURNAMENT

142 PLAYERS TEE OFF ON DIFFICULT COURSE

Professionals Muster Great Field in Effort to Regain Championship.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis, July 9 (A.P.).—The battle of the bunkered hills of Interlachen, with Bobby Jones defending his national open golf crown against the cream of the American amateur and professional crop, begins tomorrow with every prospect that the king of the royal and ancient realm will have a fight on his hands as hot as the heat wave that has gripped these wide-open parts of the Northwest.

Once again, on the eve of the greatest of American golf classics, it is "Jones against the field." With the monarch of the fairways back from an all-conquering invasion of Great Britain, fit for another struggle, his followers are confident he will sustain his triumphant march.

The sweltering gallery of ringside experts, in addition to a fair share of the field of 142 scheduled starters themselves, was not so sure that Bobby would win. Quite naturally they regarded the great Georgian as the man to beat, under any and all circumstances. Jones has demonstrated often enough for them that laws of averages, precedents and all that sort of thing can be tossed out so far as his golfing achievements are concerned. On the other hand, the professional challenge to Bobby's domination looms as the strongest combined attack mustered in many years.

Hagen Chief Rival.

Walter Hagen, keen and more anxious than ever to regain prestige he has lost on American links in the past few years, is generally regarded as the old guardsman most likely to make trouble for Jones or any one else who threatens to move out in front.

The most colorful of the professional veterans has come back from the Far East primed to shoot some of his flashiest golf. As proof of this he has twice shot the outgoing nine in 32, four under par.

Well liked, too, are the chances of such seasoned campaigners as Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, vaudeville pair; Denny Shute, of Colum-

HUSTON AGAIN DENIES HE WILL RESIGN TODAY AS CHAIRMAN OF G.O.P.

Returns for Meeting of Committee Reiterating Original Stand.

PERSONAL FRIENDS URGE HIM TO RETIRE

Aftermath of an Inquiry Into Muscle Shoals Lobby Activity.

APPEAL TO HOOVER MAY BE LAST STEP

Young Guard of Party Bitter Over Course Taken in Case by Senator Moses.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Claudius H. Huston is not going to resign as chairman of the Republican national committee today. In fact, he has not made up his mind to resign at any time.

The beleaguered G. O. P. leader made this clear in a statement to The Post immediately upon his return to Washington shortly after 10 o'clock last evening.

When he gathers with the other national officers of the Republican national committee in the Barr Building at 10:30 o'clock this morning, Mr. Huston said, he will move that routine business be taken up.

Told that Republican leaders of the Senate and House were prepared to urge him to quit at today's meeting, Chairman Huston said:

Many Rumors Afloat.

"If anything like that is going to happen," he said, "I don't know anything about it."

Chairman Huston said that he was still standing on the statement he made later in conference with President Hoover early in the week, a statement in which he declared that he had "no intention of resigning."

"I have given the question no further consideration," he declared last night.

The statement of Mr. Huston came on top of a wild variety of rumors, the majority of which had him handing in his resignation today.

The Republican leaders are gathered here today at the invitation of Chairman Huston, who, in a letter, said that he wanted to take up "some matters of importance concerning the forthcoming campaign."

Representative Will Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the congressional campaign committee and a friend of Mr. Huston, is prepared to urge the latter to quit for the sake of "party welfare."

Lobby Inquiry Was Cause.

And if Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, is invited to the meeting he will do likewise.

The demand for Mr. Huston's resignation grows out of the revelations before the Senate lobby committee that he used the funds of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, an organization interested in Muscle Shoals, to invest in the stock market.

Those who will meet with Chairman Huston today are, with a few exceptions, the officers of the Republican national committee. They include Vice Chairman Ralph E. Williams, of Oregon; J. Matt Chilton, national committeeman from Kentucky, who bears the proxy of Mrs. E. T. Hert, of Kentucky, a vice chairman; Vice Chairman Daniel E. Pomeroy, of New Jersey; Treasurer J. R. Nutt, of Ohio, and General Counsel James Francis Burke, of Pennsylvania.

Among others who will sit in at the conference are Representative Wood, and Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee.

Officers Lack Power.

Earl S. Kinsley, Republican national committeeman from Vermont, and Jeremiah Milbank, Eastern treasurer in the last campaign, also are in town, and they, too, will be present.

Alone, the officers of the Republican national committee do not have

DEBUTANTE SEIZED FOR RANSOM, FEAR

Father of Frances McClenny, Richmond Girl, Insists on Kidnaping Theory.

VIRGINIA CITIES SEARCH

Richmond, Va., July 9 (A.P.).—Detectives and relatives of Frances McClenny, 20-year-old missing Richmond society girl, tonight were engaged in a search throughout Virginia for the girl, now absent from home since Tuesday of last week.

Dr. D. C. McClenny, her father, was in Norfolk tonight while an uncle was in Fredericksburg working on a tip from an unidentified man who said he would give information "in consideration of immunity."

Meanwhile a warrant was sworn out for the girl charging petty larceny of a suit case, "the property of Celeste Bennett," whose identity was not disclosed by police.

Telegrams were sent by Richmond police to police in Norfolk and Baltimore asking authorities to "arrest Mary Frances McClenny, 20 years old—supposed to apply for license to marry in your city. Hold and advise."

Police, on the night of the girl's disappearance, were asked by Dr. McClenny to "stop her from marrying a Richmond garage man." They told him they could do nothing to stop her marriage, or bring her back to the city if she had departed. City police were not asked to help in the search, after that, until the warrant was sworn out early today.

Neighbors said they saw the girl in her car near her home. Soon after, they said, another, smaller car, came up, and after a hurried conversation the missing girl drove away with a man. Search for the girl has been carried from the home of her friend, Ann Ragland, to virtually every city and town in the State.

Dr. McClenny has been with private detectives since the hunt was started, and said he believed "the girl was kidnaped and was held for ransom."

$250,000 RUM RAID NETS YACHT, 23 MEN

Hudson River Foray Also Yields Trucks, Auto and Speedboat.

LEADER'S BOND $10,000

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Making a surprise raid by land and water, police, customs men and prohibition agents arrested 23 men, seized a $100,000 yacht, a $250,000 liquor cargo, seven trucks and touring cars and a speed boat early today at Scarborough, fashionable Westchester County residential section on the Hudson River.

Four alleged rum runners escaped, and one of those arrested, Philip Piscitelli, 30, of Allentown, Pa., was shot by the raiders. He is in a serious condition in an Ossining (N. Y.) hospital.

Scarborough police, suspicious when the yacht, the Halcyon, slipped down the Hudson in the dead of night to halt near a pier, gave the tip which resulted in the biggest liquor haul in recent months.

State police and prohibition agents were notified and two customs patrol boats were dispatched up the river to investigate. About dawn, decks of the yacht bustled with activity. Trucks and automobiles arrived at the dock, one by one. Then alleged rum runners began transferring liquor from the Halcyon to land carriers, using the speed boat for the task.

Land police forces closed in when patrol boats hove into sight. Completely surprised and with both means of escape cut off, the rum crew offered little resistance, although they far outnumbered the raiders.

Piscitelli was shot when he made a motion as if to draw a gun, officers

Coast Guard Watch Lifted as Man Dies

Detroit Police Find Body of Field Assistant Who Threatened to "Wipe Out Outfit" Following Family Quarrel.

Vigilance at the United States Coast Guard quarters here, which has been in a state of seige for ten days, was relaxed last night when ward was received here that the body of Joseph C. Ocker, 38 year, who threatened to wipe out the unit, was found in the Detroit River.

Ocker's threat against the Coast Guard occasioned precautions here to guard against his threat made after he had shot his wife and beat his sister a week ago Friday night in their Detroit home.

Ocker was a field assistant of the United States Coast Guard. Directly after the affray in his home, it was learned that he notified Coast Guard headquarters here that he intended to "wipe out" the outfit.

With the discovery of his body in the river, guards were withdrawn from the homes of Hershall Allen, Towson, Md., and Wendell D. Allen, Walbrook, Md., brother-in-law of Ocker. The latter had received a threat from Ocker.

An autopsy on the man revealed a fractured skull and a broken nose. Whether Ocker had committed suicide or was murdered had not been determined by the Detroit police last night. Mrs. Ocker identified the body.

Ocker's attack upon his wife followed a futile overture with her for a reconciliation. His three children witnessed the assault.

Detroit police, it was learned, tend toward the belief that Ocker took his own life. Several bricks were found in his pockets. It is believed that the man, conscience stricken after the shooting, placed the stones in his clothing and leaped into the river.

Man, 74, Badly Injured In Collision of Autos

William C. Hayes, 74 years old, of 1563 Benning road, was taken to Casualty Hospital yesterday after being injured, police say, when two cars collided at Thirteenth and C streets northeast and one of the mran up on the sidewalk, striking the man. Both arms being broken and it was feared his skull is fractured.

According to police of the Ninth Precinct, the cars were driven by Elmer Klopfer, of 330 Eleventh street northeast, and Napoleon Bonaparte Paris, of 1410 Fifth street northwest.

The bag contained Mr. Makai's tennis clothing. The entire outfit was valued at $14.

Washington Again Heads Big Cities in Traffic Safety

Fatality Rate of 11.6 Per 100,000 Average for 52 Weeks.

For the sixth consecutive month, Washington stands at the head of the traffic safety list with fewer traffic fatalities than any other city of 350,000 or more population.

In the 52 weeks ending June 14, Washington had only 11.6 traffic fatalities per 100,000 population, according to statistics compiled by M. O. Eldridge, assistant traffic director.

Cleveland had the worst record, with 28.3 traffic deaths for each 100,000 population, while Boston ranked next to the District in safety, with 14.1. Newark, N. J., also had a high traffic death rate, ranking next to Cleveland with 27.3.

The rate of 11.6 deaths in traffic accidents for each 100,000 population is the lowest this year, although even the power to oust Mr. Huston, but those who want him to get out—and they include close friends—are hoping that it won't be necessary to call for a meeting of the executive committee, which does have such power, or to urge President Hoover to ask for his resignation.

The way that many Republican leaders feel about the matter was best summed up yesterday by Representative Wood after he had confereed with President Hoover. Said he:

"I feel that Mr. Huston has been unjustly treated, even maligned, but the fact is that things have reached such a pass that it would be unwise for him to continue to insist that he will not give up the chairmanship.

"Senator Watson, of Indiana, told me last night that 32 Republican senators, many of them friends of Mr. Huston, felt he should get out.

Young Guard Is Bitter.

"I think practically the entire Republican membership of the House has the same feeling about it. I am hopeful that Mr. Huston will reconsider his determination not to resign and that he will gracefully step out in the interest of party welfare."

The agitation against Mr. Huston started soon after the hearings before the Senate lobby committee. For a time, after the word went around that he would resign after Congress had adjourned, the agitation died down. But when Mr. Huston, after a conference with President Hoover early this week, defiantly denied that he would get out, the demand for his retirement was renewed.

The widespread feeling that has been aroused by the case is not occasioned entirely by Mr. Huston.

Some of the newer members of the Senate—members of the so-called Young Guard or Young Turks group—are bitter because of Senator Moses' conduct in the case.

Fess May Be Successor.

The New Hampshire senator admitted yesterday that he had urged Mr. Huston to "stick" last spring, just after the lobby committee hearings.

He said he did this because he did not like the idea of Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, and Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, members of the lobby committee, saying who should be chairman of the Republican national committee.

If Mr. Huston should get out, so reports have it, Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, would be named chairman in his place, and Robert H. Lucas, of Kentucky, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, would be made chairman of the executive committee.

In this case, Mr. Lucas would do the real work, occupying a place similar to that of Jouett Shouse, who is directing the affairs of the Democratic national committee, and Senator Fess would occupy about the same position that John J. Raskob now occupies.

Disavowed by Kinsley.

Mr. Kinsley, national committeeman from Vermont, called on President Hoover yesterday and afterward denied that he had been asked to assume the leadership of the committee.

Commenting on a story carried in the Rutland (Vt.) Herald, which said he had been offered Mr. Huston's post, Mr. Kinsley said:

"There was evidently a misunderstanding on the part of the editor. I have maintained in the past that we would have been better off if we had supported Mr. Huston solidly from the start. It is very evident now, however, that many prominent men in the Republican party feel it would be advisable for him to retire."

When informed that the editor of the Rutland Herald insisted that he had said President Hoover offered him the temporary chairmanship, Mr. Kinsley last night would make no comment.

Of the officers who will assemble here today, it is said, a good majority believe that Mr. Huston ought to get out.

Another Row Over South.

In the course of the meeting here, it is likely that another bitter party row will be aired. The principals in this are Col. Horace Mann, who managed the Hoover campaign in the South, and Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, who insisted on having a say with regard to handing out patronage in the South.

Another figure in the quarrel is M. O. Dunning, recently named Republican national committeeman from Georgia. Col. Mann has supported Mr. Dunning, and Chairman Huston, it is said, is ready to move that Mr. Dunning's appointment be confirmed by the national committee.

Postmaster General Brown's forces, so friends of Mr. Dunning say, are trying to block his confirmation, and in doing so, they further allege, have encouraged the movement to oust Chairman Huston.

Rutland Paper Stands Pat.

Rutland, Vt., July 9 (A.P.).—The Rutland Herald published a statement insisting that Earle S. Kingsley, Republican national committeeman from Vermont, told the paper yesterday he had been offered the temporary chairmanship of the national committee by President Hoover.

An official White House statement denied that any such offer had been made and Kingsley today said in Washington that there had been no such tender from the President and that "there was evidently a misunderstanding on the part of the Rutland Herald."

The statement says:

"The Herald does not believe that there was any misunderstanding whatever. The story was printed as given out by Mr. Kingsley and the fact of the offer of the chairmanship or other similar post has been discussed with others as well as with the editor of the Herald."

Far East's Largest Observatory Open

Only German and American Institutions Surpass Japan Plant.

Tokyo, July 9.—The largest astronomical observatory in the Far East, which is surpassed only by observatories in Germany and the United States, was completed recently in Sanaka, a small suburb of Tokyo.

The total cost of the work is put at $200,000. The length of the telescope is 11 meters and the diameter of the lens 26 inches. Work on the building to house this and many other scientific instruments which are included in the observatory equipment went on more than three years under the direction of Dr. Hashimoto, a noted specialist in astronomical instruments.

"At last the time has come when Japanese astronomers can work freely," the doctor said after the observatory had been opened. "Although we have had the will to go more deeply into astronomical lines in this country, we have been unable to do so because of lack of equipment. The situation was tantamount to being at war without weapons. We shall now be able to engage in friendly rivalry with our brother astronomers in all parts of the world.

COMMERCIAL FIRMS ASK DUTY CHANGES

Tariff Commission States Eight Decreases and One Increase Sought.

DATA GIVEN TO SENATE

(Associated Press.)

The Tariff Commission informed the Senate yesterday that petitions for eight decreases and one increase in import duties on articles covered in the new tariff act had been received by it up to July 3 from commercial firms throughout the country. The report was in response to a resolution introduced by Senator George (Democrat), Georgia.

The applications for reductions in duties referred to bentwood furniture, soups, green peppers, fresh tomatoes, hemp yarn, maple sugar, and maple syrup, pulpboard in rolls, bamboo handle toothbrushes and para-chlormetacresol. The increase has been requested on hemp cords.

The commission also listed approximately 50 articles which the Senate requested it to investigate under the new flexible provisions including raw sugar. The resolutions ordering these inquiries sought the cost of production here and abroad of all these commodities.

The commission, however, has been holding up any new cost investigations pending appointment of a new commission by President Hoover.

In its report to the Senate, the commission said it also had been requested by the House ways and means committee to inquire into the class of labor employed in mining coal in Russia and the wages and laws respecting this industry. The commission also had asked it to inquire into the proper tariff differential on raw and refined sugar imported into this country.

Some contend the duty on refined sugar under the new law should be increased to equal at least the spread between the old rates on raw and refined. Before the 1930 act was passed in March efforts were afoot to bring about this higher refined rate, but the move was not carried to the floor of either house.

First Lady Again In Hostess Role

Mrs. Hoover Wil Entertain Wounded Veterans at Lawn Party.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Herbert Hoover will resume her place as hostess at the White House next Wednesday with a lawn party for the wounded veterans of the World War.

The first lady has presided at a White House function but once since she was injured in April by a fall which wrenched her back. She presided with the President at a State dinner given last month for Dr. Enrique Olaya, president-elect of Columbia, but suffered a relapse as a result, and went to the presidential camp in Virginia to convalesce.

The lawn party is an annual affair which hundreds of wounded veterans from Walter Reed Hospital and other institutions in the Capital attend.

175 Living Alone In Town of 1,635

Minnesota Village Again Justifies Its Name During Census.

Spring Valley, Minn., July 9.—Spring Valley, known long as "the village of lonely persons," has 175 homes in which only single persons reside.

The census enumerator found these houses, each the home of one man or woman, most of them well past middle age. They have lost by death the companions of earlier days.

Some of the homes, the enumerator found, formerly housed as many as eight persons. The children have grown up and left and either the father or mother has died. But the old home is kept open by the lone survivor.

The many homes with single occupants have cut into census returns. The total, showing a population of 1,635, compared with 1,871 in 1920, is being checked at the request of merchants.

Change Demanded In Police System

Rector Says Today's Methods of Catching Criminals Are Antiquated.

Special to The Washington Post.

St. Paul, July 9.—Calling the present police system an antiquated as the hoopskirt and leg o' mutton sleeve, Dr. Don Frank Fenn, rector of the Gethsemane Episcopal Church of Minneapolis, told the League of Protestant Women recently that "it is an impossibility to apprehend criminals today."

Dr. Fenn advocated a State constabulary.

"Our present police system came into vogue long before the automobile, the airplane or the fast-moving trains," he said. "Times have changed, but we still go on with our localized police program."

Having served as chaplain in the Colorado Penitentiary at Canon City Dr. Fenn told the audience of experiences with criminals. Law breakers are not being punished while serving time but are persecuted following there release when they are trying to reestablished themselves in society, he said.

"Life in a penal institution is fairly normal, so normal that all of the illegalities outside occur inside," said the speaker. "For instance, bootlegging or the manufacture of intoxicating liquor is a business that is hard to keep outside the walls, despite the strict vigilance of the officers. I knew one prisoner to save prune juice until it fermented."

Portland, Oreg., Citizens Want Curfew Repealed

Portland, Oreg., July 9.—Removal of the restrictions on Portland's night life so there may be dancing in hotels and cafes until 1 a. m. five days a week has been asked of the city council in a letter from the Portland Chamber of Commerce which declares that Portland has less night life than any other city on the Pacific Coast.

The letter from W. D. B. Dodson, general manager, declared that the hotels complained of the fact that theatergoers and others do not have time after the show to drop in for a late dinner and dance before the 12 o'clock curfew on dances sounds and they must go home.

67 KILLED IN MINE BLAST IN GERMANY

50 MORE ARE TAKEN OUT

Neurode, Germany, July 9 (A.P.).—Bodies of 67 miners tonight were removed from the Wenceslaus Mine, near here, which today was wrecked by an explosion of coal gas. About 50 others suffering from gas poisoning have been taken out of the mine by rescuing parties. Authorities tonight hope to save a majority of 73 others still entombed.

Many bodies were taken out by the rescue parties, but they were so disfigured as to be beyond identification, so quickly had the mine gases acted.

Fire brigades and first-aid squads were loaded into motor trucks from many towns surrounding the scene. The rescue work proceeded rapidly.

Experienced mining engineers helped the rescue squads which fought desperately to snatch as many victims as possible from the mine.

Relief workers, despite their gas masks, were obliged to dart in and out of the shaft, remaining only a few minutes at a time and then staggering to the surface to be revived before another trip underground. A number of the rescuers were overcome.

Magistrate's Case Is Reported to Bar

Ewald Said to Be Involved in Alleged Swindle of Investors.

New York, July 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The case of Magistrate George F. Ewald, now under consideration by Federal authorities investigating his connection with the cotter Butte Mines, Inc, was officially brought to the attention of State, county and city Bar Association authorities today by United States Attorney Tuttle.

The formal notification which Chief Magistrate Corrigan, on behalf of the city, and District Attorney Crain, representing the State, received from Mr. Tuttle were not made public. The three-page typewritten statement sent to Charles C. Burlingham, president of the Bar Association of the City of New York, was released to the press, however.

Mrs. Betty Schwartz Ewald, who said she was the divorced wife of Magistrate Ewald, appeared before Assistant istrict Attorney aly today, asking him to consider a bigamy charge against the magistrate.

Further investigation of the Cotter Butte books officially revealed that 576 investors were victims of the promotion to the tune of $350,000.

PARIS-ROME SWAY BRITISH SEA POWER

Admrialty Chief Insists That Building Program Rests on Others' Acts.

TONNAGE BOOST HINTED

London, July 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Dependence of the British naval construction program during the life of the London naval treaty upon the outcome of Franco-Italian naval negotiations was emphasized by the first lord of the admiralty, A. V. Alexander, in the House of Commons today in an explanatory statement issued when he presented supplementary naval estimates of roughly $1,000,000 for the current year.

This dependence was given as one of the reasons why the British government has not yet outlined its naval construction program for the entire period of years covered by the London naval treaty.

Another reason given was the necessity of first conferring with the Dominion and Indian governments, which will probably be done at the imperial conference here in September.

Keeping in Year Limit.

"As a result," the first lord's statement continues, "the government considers that in the present international situation it is not desirable at this moment to formulate general proposals covering the whole period of the treaty, or, in fact, to go beyond the present financial year.

"Further, two of the powers signatory to the London naval treaty (France and Italy) are still engaged in conversations in regard to their naval strengths, and construction programs over the period of the treaty can not definitely be put forward by his majesty's government until the position in regard to these powers is known. The government made it clear at the London Naval Conference that they were negotiating on figures which assumed international agreements upon strengths which would be accepted by all the powers concerned as an equilibrium of security. * * *"

This is a plain hint that the British government may consider excessive naval building by France or Italy, or both, cause for this country to make use of the "escalator clause" in the London naval treaty.

France Adds to Strength.

Paris, July 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Significant decisions by the naval commission of the French Senate regarding future construction of warships by France have just been taken, almost unnoticed. Besides advising the government to refuse to budge from the position taken at the London Naval Conference whenever negotiations with Italy are resumed, the Senate commission urges that in this country's new naval program global tonnage be left absolutely unrestricted.

The commission also recommends that submarines should be built according to France's own needs without restriction as to size or number and that no limitations for their use in wartime be accepted.

Coincidentally, the gfovernment made known today its request for new military credits of just over $45,000,000.

Seas Seize American Girl From Rescuers in Baltic

Loss of Philadelphia Doctor and Young Woman Dietitian in Passenger Plane, With Three Others During Storm Received From Radio Reports.

Berlin, July 9 (A.P.).—The sea today gave up new tidings of the fate of an American doctor, his youthful woman assistant and three others of the ill-fated Lufthansa flying boat lost yesterday off Bornholm, coast of Norway.

Details of the tragedy in which Dr. John L. Burkholder, 42, of Mount Pleasant, Pa., and Miss Ruth Patricia Northrop, 25, of Philadelphia, perished, revealed a disaster of air and sea which has no counterpart in commercial aviation.

After hours of uncertainty and conflicting reports, the Berlin headquarters of the airline today pieced the story together from radio and other messages from torpedo boats and the rescue ship Maja, a Danish craft, which picked up the pilot, mechanic and one passenger of the German plane D-864, forced down in a storm yesterday.

The big flying boat rode the sea for about three hours after coming down. Then a giant wave hit her, crumpled her wings and sent her to the bottom. Three of those on board were rescued by the Maja. The five others vanished from sight.

Dr. Burkholder and the slim blonde, Miss Northrup, an expert dietitian, who, it was reported, had been traveling and studying together in Europe, had planned to go from Stockholm to London, Paris and home to America. Reports on the final moments of Dr. Burkholder were vague. Miss Northrop, however, was snatched back by the waves at the moment of rescue.

The captain of the Dutch motor schooner Spes said a crewman in a lifeboat reached her with a boat hook and grappled the girdle of her life belt. When he tried to pull her aboard the girdle broke and the last the sailor saw was her pleading, upturned face as she was swept away on the crest of a tremendous wave.

BATTLE IN SENATE SETS TREATY ASIDE

TEST VOTE IS AVOIDED

duct any senator to them. But, he added, if senators preferred to have the Secretary of State transmit them with an armed guard that would be quite satisfactory.

"I would not put the Laird of Stanmore to that inconvenience," replied Senator Moses, adding that Senator Reed had no right under the law to have the diplomatic documents in his office and that the Senate preferred to get the documents legally.

Senator Black started the proceedings yesterday after a quorum call by a very slow count brought 49 responses at the end of eighteen minutes. Incidentally, the quorum calls became an unexpected matter of interest when it developed that the roll calls had been padded on the two previous days and that the Congressional Record prints a list in excess of the number who actually responded to their names.

On Tuesday, for example, there were 50 responses and the Vice President announced "Fifty senators having answered to their names, a quorum is present." The Record for that day shows 60 senators and the Vice president is quoted as saying "Sixty senators having answered to their names, a quorum is present."

Document Issue Paramount.

On the second quorum call on Tuesday, there appeared to be 46 responses, but the desk made a count of 50 and the Record shows the Vice President announcing 52 present. As a result of these incidents, Senator Johnson went to the desk and carefully checked the two quorum calls made yesterday. In each case there were just 49 and in each case it took nearly twenty minutes to obtain that number.

Senator Black said the secret documents issue transcended in importance the question of the treaty itself. He directed his attack against the amendment of Senator Robinson to the McKellar resolution, under which the President would be requested to send the documents "if not incompatible with the public interest."

"I expect to vote for the treaty," said Senator Black. "But I will vote to postpone a vote until the rights of the Senate have been recognized and respected by a subordinate branch of the Government."

Mr. Black pointed out that the State Department was a subordinate branch of the Government created by Congress and that the Secretary of State was a subordinate officer, a creature of the Congress.

"Is the head of a subordinate department superior to the Congress which created it?" Senator Black asked, adding that it was an insult to the Senate of the United States to deny it the right to inspect the documents on file at the State Department.

Cites Senate's History.

"Has the Senate an absolute right or is it only a permissive right to be accorded by a subordinate branch of the Government?"

The Secretary of State can not shield himself behind the President, Senator Black maintained, asserting that the Senate had never in its history yielded to a subordinate branch the right to withhold information which is relevant and pertinent to a matter with which the Senate is in duty bound to deal.

Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, suggested an amendment whereby the President would be asked to send the documents to the Senate to be considered in closed executive session. But Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, objected to any suggestion of yielding on the part of the Senate.

"I don't like to see the Senate establish a precedent that it will receive them in confidence," Mr. Borah said. "In order to get the papers it does not seem to me that the Senate ought to make any pledges."

This was the first intimation that the Senate may not be willing to yield an inch on the matter of the fundamental principle involved. It placed Senator Borah squarely in support of the Senate's prestige.

Thomas Amendment Blocked.

"Unless I can get the data," said Senator Thomas, referring to the secret documents, "I shall either refuse to vote for the treaty or vote 'No.'"

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, blocked a vote on the Thomas amendment. Senator Norris got the floor and began an explanation of his position in support of the McKellar resolution, but Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, interrupted to ask a question and kept the floor for about half an hour.

Mr. Robinson made a supreme effort to sway senators to the viewpoint of President Hoover and Secretary Stimson. He emphasized the President's exclusive right to negotiate treaties. If the President thought it harmful to give the documents to the public, Mr. Robinson added, nothing would be gained by asking for them.

"Now, Mr. President and gentlemen of the press gallery and others," Senator Robinson said, "You won't get the papers whether you adopt any resolution or not."

Senator Robinson pleaded for amicable relations with President Hoover and suggested that Republicans should not permit any discourtesy to a Republican President.

Pleads Senators' Duties.

Seantor Robinson, of Indiana, took his namesake to task and also Senator Reed. These two gentlemen are of course embarrassed, the Senator from Indiana said, because they are acting as negotiators and judges at the same time.

"But there is nothing in the Constitution," he added, "which says that treaties shall be negotiated by and with the advice and consent of the Senator from Arkansas and the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Ninety-four senators, in addition to the two negotiators, must pass judgment on the treaty, the senator continued.

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, referred very pointedly to the reports in Japanese newspapers of a secret agreement concerning the American cruiser program, and Senator Reed again found it necessary to enter general denial that he had made any such secret agreement.

Senator Norris took Secretary Stimson severely to task for his letter to the foreign relations committee, quoting part of a message from Washington, but omitting a paragraph which gave the quoted statement a different meaning.

"When the Secretary of State sends that kind of information to a committee of Congress, how much credence can we give to his word?

Borah for Open Action.

"We've got the word of the Secretary of State that we have all the information about the treaty. It may be, like the Washington message, that we have only half of it."

Senator Allen suggested that the Senate resolution call upon the President to send the information in closed executive session. But Senator Borah again objected.

"The Senate must determine for itself what its duties are," said Senator Borah. "I don't like the idea of negotiating. We have a sense of public honor and a sense of responsibility just as the President has."

Senator George proposed to call for all the documents but to add "with such recommendations as the President might wish to make respecting their use."

"The Senate would have the right, if it saw fit to consider them in public session, would it not?" asked Senator Black.

"The Senate could make them public if the Senate desired to assume the responsibility," replied Senator George.

Senator Shipstead said that in the old days sovereigns made treaties and secret treaties and the people had no right to know what thy contained. But in the United States every man and woman is a sovereign, he added, maintaining that there was no justification whatever for asking the Senate to pass judgment on the treaty without knowing all about secret data pertaining to it. The Senate recessed shortly before 5 o'clock until noon today.

PROBLEMS OF CUBA TOLD TO PRESIDENT

Interrupts His Program to Discuss Affairs With Havana Publisher.

ECONOMIC HELP SOUGHT

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's interest in the economic problems of Cuba was evidenced yesterday when he interrupted his busy schedule to discuss Cuban affairs and seek a means of sympathetic treatments.

Carl Byoir, publisher of the Havana Post, was the President's luncheon guest. In order to talk the Cuban situation over with him Mr. Hoover put aside temporarily his conferences over the naval treaty contest in the Senate, and his preparations to meet the crisis in Republican party affairs, brought about by the fight on National Chairman Huston.

Afterward Mr. Byoir said the President was keenly interested in Cuba's problems and was giving them sympathetic consideration.

Details of the luncheon table conversation were undisclosed, but it is known that Cuban industrial interests have been much distressed over the new tariff bill, and that some of them would welcome any help which might be forthcoming from the United States, through other economic means, to offset any harmful effect of the tariff schedules.

The President's interest in the progress of Latin-America, as evidenced by his goodwill trip immediately after his election, is looked upon by Cubans as guaranteeing he will give careful and considerate attention to Cuba's present difficulties.

This trip was cut short before he visited Cuba and Mexico, but since that time there have been repeated reports that the President was contemplating filling out the gaps left in the itinerary of that journey by visiting the countries as President.

Horse Killed by Bees Whose Hives He Upset

Edina, Mo., July 9.—John Wolters, 82 years of age, was moving several stands of bees, using an old horse and wagon. After the stands were on the wagon a few of the bees escaped from the hives and settled on the horse. The irritation caused him to upset the wagon, liberating 100,000 of the bees, most of which settled on the animal.

Wolters did all he could to relieve the crazed horse, not looking after himself until the horse had died from the bee stings. Wolters seems to be but little the worse for the experience.

Society Woman Heads Pound.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 9.—Mrs. Charles M. Kindel, prominent in Grand Rapids society and president of the Kent County Humane Society, has a $1 a year job supervising the city pound. Mrs. Kindel was appointed by City Manager George W. Welsh. The new position was created after complaints were made by the society of methods used at the pound.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 4:55 p. m. to noon today.

When the roll was called, 49 senators answered to their names, exactly a quorum.

Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, called for adoption of the McKellar resolution.

Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, declared that Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, had no right to the documents which President Hoover refused to turn over to the foreign relations committee. He was referring to Mr. Reed's invitation to any senator to see the correspondence in confidence.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, proposed an amendment to the McKellar resolution for consideration of the documents in "closed executive session." This was opposed by Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee.

Vice President Curtis appointed Senators Fess (Republican), Ohio; Overman (Democrat), North Carolina, and Blease (Democrat), South Carolina, to represent the Senate in the celebration of the Battle of Kings Mountain, to be held at Kings Mountain, N. C.

Chairman Nye, of the campaign funds investigating committee, signed new subpenas calling witnesses to appear at the hearings in Chicago next week on expenditures in the recent Illinois Republican senatorial campaign.

Prisoner Hanged By Wrists, Charge

South Carolina Governor Holds Chain Gang Cruelty True.

Columbia, S. C., July 9 (A.P.).—An investigation into alleged cruel treatment of convicts on the Spartanburg County chain gang has been started by Gov. Richards, he said today.

The investigation was begun after a letter had been received from Gaffney attorneys who wrote that Lester Crawford, a Gaffney youth, had been hung by his wrists because untable to work.

The youth, accordin gto the letter, was sentenced to serve two years on the gang for housebreaking and larceny and that when he was unable to work, he not only was hung by his wrists, but he also was kept hanging from a tree "with straps around his waist for over an hour."

"They also would hang him in positions so that he could neighter stand up or sit down," the letter said. "There are other cases of cruelty we understand over there which should be investigated."

Gov. Richards said a preliminary investigation by one of his officers indicated the reports were true.

$300,000 Subscription Asked for Boston Fete

Boston, July 9.—Boston's tercentenary movement is now in full swing by action of the executive committee in giving hearty indorsement to the plan of raising $300,000 by public subscription and by acceptance of two committee reports, one for the decorative and flood lighting of the Charles River Basin and the other for the decorative lighting of downtown Boston.

The committee indicated its desire to provide entertainment practically every day during the summer for the thousands of visitors who will be attracted to the city from all parts of the country.

NEARLY ALL LEGION PROGRAM NOW LAW

Legislative Slate Practically Clear, National Leader Says Over Radio.

ONE MEASURE PENDING

(Associated Press.)

The legislative slate of the American Legion virtually has been wiped clean by the recently enacted laws that have been placed upon the Nation's statute books.

O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the organization, speaking over a Nation-wide hook-up of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., said last night, "practically every important and outstanding legislative request of the American Legion has been enacted into law."

Expressing gratitude to Congress and to President Hoover for their consideration, he said "the President has not been as liberal as some had hoped," but "he has shown a sympathetic attitude with reference to this legislation."

Enumerating the various legion proposals that were written into law during the first session of the Seventy-first Congress, Bodenhamer listed the Rogers hospital bill, calling for $18,000,000 of construction; the Hawley bill, extending the time for applying for adjusted compensation; the Williamson bill, consolidating veterans' activities; the Reed-Snell resolution calling for a study of universal draft, and, finally, the veterans' pension bill, over which Congress labored so long during the last days of the session.

Many other laws in which the legion was interested were passed, he said, including the $100,000 appropriation for the Department of Labor to aid in solving unemployment, the bills liberalizing the Gold Star Mothers act, and the ten-year extension of veterans' preference in homestead entries.

One measure remains before Congress, he said. This calls for additional funds for 4,500 more beds to accommodate the waiting list of disabled men in hospitals.

Wife Leaves Deaf Man Because of Infliction

Boston, July 9.—Walter H. Hargrove, of Woburn, World War veteran, won a decree nisi of divorce in Middlesex Probate Court after he testified that his wife, Augustina, deserted him because he is deaf.

They were married in 1918, he said, and on May 22, 1926, his wife complained about his deafness and left him. He explained that he is one of the service victims of the war and that he is about to enter a veterans' hospital for lung treatment.

Archery Golf Favored By Camp Letts Group

Washington boys vacationing at Camp Letts, the Y. M. C. A. camp, have adopted archery golf as a pastime. Instead of holes ther are straw-filled bags mounted on poles, and the usual par is about three or four, though some holes require more.

The boys make their own bows in the camp woodworking shop. A regular golf tournament has been planned. Almost the only sport which is not losing devotees to the new game is swimming.

WHEAT CROP BRINGS RECORD LOW PRICES

Despite Reputed High Quality of Product, Farmers Fail to Profit.

FURTHER DROP FEARED

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 9.—A crop of wheat, declared by millers to be the highest in quality raised in the Shenandoah Valley grain belt during the past 25 years, is now being marketed at the lowest price of the past three decades as a result of the world-wide collapse of grain prices.

"We bought a 18,000-bushel crop from one valley farmer the other day," said Frank Liskey, "and in cleaning it only three two-bushel sacks of screenings were taken from it. We have received some wheat which is so clean that it is ready for the mill without being cleaned. The grains are plump and large. The unfortunate part of this splendid wheat crop is that farmers are receiving for it the lowest price in the past three decades. I have been offered more wheat than I can handle at 83 cents a bushel.

"Our elevators are filled with grain and yet farmers continue to bring their wheat to market. If this keeps up, trading channels will be choked, and I do not know where the price will go."

Early marketing of wheat by valley farmers is unusual. Normally, more than 50 per cent of the wheat crop of this section is carried into the late winter and early spring. But this year farmers have experienced stage fright over prices, and are marketing their wheat as fast as they can thresh it, fearing a further crash in quotations.

Valley farmers declare wheat prices at between 80 and 90 cents a bushel mean a los sto them. Large wheat raisers like former State Senator George B. Keezell assert that wheat can not be produced on the valley farms for les sthan $1 a bushel.

"There has been no reduction in the cost of production of wheat," said Senator Keezell. "Binder twine costs just as much. Labor costs are the same. At present prices, it means valley farmers will get nothing for their own labor or interest on their investment, so far as their present wheat crop is concerned."

The only ray of hope to many farmers is increased yield ber acre. Many farmers are reporting 30 bushels to the acre, against a normal yield of 20 bushels. Some farmers say this increased yield may offset the decreased prices, but on the whole it is believed that it will mean merely "the swapping of dolars from one hand to the other."

Epworth League Marks Fortieth Anniversary

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 9.—The birthday banquet in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Epworth League climaxed the program for the first half of the week of the Baltimore conference, Epworth League assembly, at Massanetta Spring Bible conference.

More than 350 young people from Maryland, District of Columbia and western Virginia are spending the week at Massanetta in Bible studies and recreation at the sixteenth annual assembly. A new feature this year is the Hi-League assembly for younger boys and girls, which is being operated in connection with the senior branch.

ORANGE HORSE SHOW WILL OPEN JULY 23

Events Bid Fair to Set New Records for Attendance and Entry List.

FOUR RACES SCHEDULED

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., July 9.—The thirty-first annual show of the Orange Horse Show and Racing Association, scheduled for July 23 and 24, has attracted the attention of leading exhibitors in this and adjoining States. H. C. Warren, secretary, with whom entries close next Friday, has already received requests for stall reservations from owners of the leading strings on the Virginia and Eastern circuits this season.

Horsemen who have visited the shows in Virginia this season are unanimous in asserting that the wealth of high-class material being shown this year surpasses in quality and performance any talent that has been uncovered since the World War. The exhibition to be presented here this year gives promise of establishing new marks in attendance and number of entries.

Thirty-seven show ring classes and four races, all of the latter cross-country, are on the progam for the two days. There are nine hunter improvement classes, six events for ponies, four for saddle horses and sixteen for hunters and jumpers. A hunter trial, with horses required to carry 160 pounds over a fair hunting country, is included in the events for hunters. Mrs. T. H. Somerville, the former Marion du Pont, president of the association, won the event with her champion hunter, Phenolax, in 1929, and will send the handsome chestnut back to defend his laurels this year.

Other feature events in the division for hunters and jumpers are the corinthian, horses to be shown over the outside course; hunt teams, lightweight hunters, middle and heavyweight hunters, ladies' hunters, pairs of hunters, 3-year-old hunters, hunters 4 years old and under and the old guard class, the latter open to riders, either to have been members prior to 1906 or an organized hunt, or, if invited to have ridden to hounds prior to that year. The cup in the old guard class is offered by E. B. Sydnor, of Richmond.

Officials of the show are Mrs. T. H. Somerville, president; H. C. Warren, secretary, and Manly W. Carter, manager.

Martinsburg Realty Man Again Accused

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 9.—Ray Barney, local real estate man, was arrested here today on a second larceny charge, and gave $500 bond for his appearance July 15. The second charge was made by Martin L. Lewis, farmer, who said Barney failed to carry out an agreement for payment on property for which Lewis gave him money.

The first charge was made some weeks ago by Sherman Hopper, who said Barney sold him property with the guarantee that the title was clear, Hopper paying Barney $700 as an initial payment. Later Hopper discovered there was a heavy lien against the property. Barney waived a preliminary hearing when the case was called and elected to go directly to the grand jury.

New Forest-Fire District Created

Potomac Division Is Announced for 3 Counties in West Virginia.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 9.—A new forest fire protection district, designated as the "Potomac District," and consisting of Morgan, Berkeley and Jefferson Counties, constituting the eastern Panhandle, has been established by the State Game, Fish and Forestry Commission. The new district was taken from the old Potomac district, which in the future will be known as the "South Branch District" and will consist of Mineral, Hampshire, Grant, Hardy and Pendleton Counties. Appointment of a district forester for the new Potomac district was deferred. G. C. Hampton, present Potomac district forester, will be in charge of the South Branch district.

C. L. Topping, Charleston, former fire marshal, was named chief fire warden by the commission. He will act as assitant to H. S. Newins, chief forester and director of forest fire work. G. Andrew Northcott, Huntington, newly appointed member of the commission, met for the first time at the session with the other members, Chairman Vernon E. Johnson, Berkeley Springs, and Edward Cooper, Bramwell. The commission designated Chairman Johnson to take charge of the fish and forestry work and Cooper and Northcott will direct game work and game distribution.

Decision Is Ready In Cedar Rust Case

Power of West Virginia to Cut Down Diseased Trees Is Issue.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 9.—A case that has attracted more interest than any tried in the eastern section of West Virginia since the treason and murder cases against coal miners and mine union officials in 1922 will be decided tomorrow at Charles Town, near here, when Circuit Judge D. H. Rodgers is to hand down his decision in a test suit against the State of West Virginia in the cedar rust controversy.

The suit is one of many instituted against the State because the West Virginia Department of Agriculture destroyed hundreds of cedar trees on private property in Jefferson County in its effort to eradicate cedar rust and help the orchard industry.

Owners of the land where many of the cedars were cut down took legal steps as a means of enjoining the States and, after a considerable time the legal right of the State was aired in Circuit Court at Charles Town, where suits aggregating almost $300,000 were filed.

Cumberland Soon Starts New Court

Treasury to Ask Bids on Proposed Structure in Ten Days.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 9.—It is expected that work on the new post-office and United States Court Building for Cumberland will get under way before early fall, as $540,000 is available under the second deficiency bill signed by President Hoover. The present building will be sold and may be purchased by the city to form a complement of city building, as the City Hall is on the same square.

Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, this city, who is here, was advised by James A. Whitmore, supervising architect of the Treasury, that plans are being perfected and that the building would be advertised and construction bids received within the next ten days. Bids are opened after 20 days, and, in the meantime inspectors will visit Cumberland to look over proposed sites.

WARRENTON PONY SHOW DRAWS WELL

Entries of Charlotte Smith, Sydnors and Edith Nesbitt Figure.

SUNSET CUP AWARDED

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., July 9.—The eleventh annual Warrenton pony show opened today with a fair morning crowd which was swelled to good proportions in the afternoon. Burksie, Charlotte Smith's pony, swept all before her in the early morning classes, taking down three blues.

Henry Ferneyhough's Trixie took the blue in the ponies in harness class. Benton Stable's Golden Grail was the judge's choice in a large class competing in the handicap class. The jumping was particularly good in this event.

Florence and Eugene Sydnor's entries did well, their Lady Fairfax taking the blue in the pony class and their Trixie getting the blue in the small pony class. Miss Woodford, from the same stable, took two yellows. The Sunset Challenge Cup, presented by J. Temple Gwathmey, a much sought after trophy, went to Anthony and George Rives' chestnut mare, Mistress Anne, after spirited competition. Lady Fairfax placed second in this cup contest, which must be won three times by the same exhibitor to become personal property.

Blue to Miss Nesbit.

To Miss Edith Nesbit went the blue in the local hunter class with her Squiffy and Blickles, U Win second.

Virginia Winmill took the blue in the ponies in harness class for small ponies with her High Fly. The well known Cathode Ray, the property of Miss Elizabeth Nesbit, was given the blue by the judges in a big class of good horses in the ladies' hunter class.

Miss Edith Nesbit took a nasty tumble and was much shaken up in this class when her John Doodle Bug rapped badly and almost went down. Snow Flake, owned by Robert P. R. Blickle and ridden by John L. R. Gaines took first in the Warrenton junior hunt.

The pony handicap class was the most closely contested class of the show. The judges were compelled to call back the ponies and riders time and again for jump off before they finally pinned the blue on Robert Palmer's little bay gelding, Diplomat.

The closing events of the show ran somewhat behind schedule from this event on, due to the unusual amount of time necessary to pick the winner here.

Beautiful weather prevailed throughout. The turf was in good condition, dry, but a little hard. The jumping was clean and of high order and the show was well above the average.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL ACCEPTS POWER BID

Virginia Public Service Co. to Supply Electricity for 30 Years.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The city council yesterday afternoon held a lengthy session considering the bids of the Virginia Public Service Co. and another company represented by R. W. Herfurth for the privilege of furnishing Alexandria with electric light and power for a period of 30 years from date, and after reading both bids and studying the light franchise, the proposition presented by the Virginia Public Service Co. was accepted and the franchise ordinance passed.

Several applications for gasoline service stations were slated to be presented, and R. F. Downham appeared in the interest of an appeal recently presented by him for a service station at King street and Russell road, in a point of land owned by Mr. Downham, and directly across the roadway from the grounds of the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Temple. No action was taken after hearing Mr. Downham, as Councilman Timberman had at a former meeting of council offered a resolution that the city manager and city engineer confer with the abutting property owners, memorial association and interested parties, with a view to cooperating with the city in purchasing this land for a public park, and this committee has not submitted a report as yet.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, was the speaker at the meeting on Tuesday night of the Business and Professional Women's Club, which was presided over by Mrs. Mary W. Troth, the president, who introduced the speaker.

Mr. Hollenga gave a talk that held the interest of his hearers, giving his idea of the manner in which all could work for the good of Alexandria and the cooperation of all civic and other organizations for the common improvement of the city. He spoke of the general comment of "poor business," and said that business is not poor, but the general tendency of the American people is toward extravagance, which will have to be curbed to arrive at a normal status.

Mrs. Anna B. Woodward, a former club member who had resigned several years ago, applied for membership and was accepted, as was also a new member, Mrs. Mary Lee Bayol. The former is principal of Lee School and latter an employe of the Virginia Public Service Co.

Mrs. L. W. Cannon, of Durham, N. C., and Mrs. Van Maldegham, of Alexandria, were visitors, the guests of Mrs. Louise Witter; and Mrs. Grimm and Miss Johnson, now of Washington, D. C., but recently residing in Joplin, Mo., and members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of that city, visited the local club with letters of introduction from their home organization.

Vocal selections were given by Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, with Mrs. D. C. Book at the piano. Mrs. Helen V. Reed was appointed chairman to arrange for the annual August picnic meeting, and communicate with Mrs. John M. Reed regarding an invitation to hold the meeting at her summer home at Wellington. Mrs. Rathbone Smith gave the legislative report for the club, on the passage of the Cabell bill, giving citizenship rights to American women who have married foreigners. Mrs. Troth presented the report from the recent State board meeting held in Petersburg.

Seminole Tribe, No. 35, Improved Order of Red Men, will hold a joint installation of chiefs tonight at 8 o'clock, when the officers to be installed are: Frank Travers, prophet; William DeSilva, sachem; George Dixon, senior sagamore; Frank Smith, junior sagamore; B. H. Cook, collector of wampum; L. D. Sullivan, keeper of wampum, and Norman Roberts, chief of records. Tribes will be present from Herndon, Fredericksburg and Alexandria. The installation service will be in charge of the new deputy great sachem of district No. 1, W. W. McClincy, of Seneca Tribe of Herndon.

The third public band concert of the Citizens' Band will be given tomorrow night at 8 o'clock on Windmill Hill, in the 500 block South Lee street. The band will be under the direction of Prof. Otto Siebeneichen.

Mrs. Virginia Ethel Clem, wife of Walter A. Clem, died yesterday at her home, 19 West Linden street. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning from the home, conducted by the Rev. Dr. D. L. Snyder, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial will be at Woodstock, Va.

Guard W. H. Miller yesterday escorted Clay T. Brittle, former cashier of the Bank of Del Ray, to the penitentiary at Richmond to serve a term for larceny of $61,430.17 from the bank. Brittle pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six years in prison, but will be allowed time off for good behavior.

Bruce L. Stanbaugh, of an O street address, Washington, and E. J. Henry, of a D street address, the same city, were treated at the Alexandria Hospital yesterday for slight injuries received when the automobile driven by the first-named was in collision with one driven by E. J. Nevitt, of Newington, Va.

The body of Arthur Hicks, who was murdered in Norfolk on Sunday night, is to be brought to this city today and funeral arrangements made.

Hicks, it is alleged, was struck over the head with a broomstick wielded by Henry Borden, and then pushed into the Elizabeth River to drown.

30 MAY ASK WRITS IN PRINCE GEORGES

Habeas Corpus Action Gets Prisoner Out on Point of Technicality.

DECISION IN BALTIMORE

Possibility that approximately 30 prisoners now serving terms in the Maryland House of Correction may obtain their freedom through writs of habeas corpus loomed yesterday as the result of the action of Judge Walter I. Dawkins, of Baltimore, in releasing Fred H. Stroebel on such a writ.

The Baltimore judge released Stroebel after attorneys for the latter had raised the point that the signing of commitments by the clerk of the Prince Georges County Police Court is in contradiction to the State constitution, which requires that committing magistrates, other than in a court of record, must sign their own commitments.

Judge Dawkins held that the Prince Georges County Court is not a court of record and that, therefore, Judge J. Chew Sheriff and not Clerk Thomas R. Henault should sign commitments.

Prince Georges County officials took issue with the judge on his ruling, however, pointing out that the law creating the police court gives the power to sign commitments to the clerk of the police court. Officials are anxious to find out whether or not Judge Dawkins had been made cognizant of the county police court law before passing his decision.

If the judge's action is to be taken as a precedent for future actions, it is probable that attorneys for all of the persons now serving sentences in the House of Correction as the result of trials in the county police court will be released on similar writs.

Stroebel was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction in default of a fine of $250 levied in a liquor law violation case. He was arrested April 1 at Bowie Race Track when a quantity of alleged liquor was said by police to have been found in his car. He is married, has four children and lives in Baltimore. He is 38 years old.

Mrs. Marie Elliott, of Beltsville, was adjudged guilty of assault and battery yesterday in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court and fined $10, the sentence being suspended. A charge of larceny of a dog was dismissed.

Mrs. Elliott is alleged to have struck Thomas Reihm, of Beltsville, who was custodian of a lot of 150 chickens which had been taken under a writ of distraint for nonpayment of rent when she went to the home of Reihm to replevin the chikens in company with County Policeman Claude Reese and Deputy Sheriff Ralph Brown. The larceny charge resulted from the finding of a puppy belonging to Mr. Reihm at the woman's home. She told the judge the dog followed her home.

Fines and forfeitures at the police court totaled approximately $1,100 and court lasted until 6:30 o'clock in the evening. Most of the cases were minor violations.

Thomas Garrison, former deputy sheriff and head of a private detective agency in Washington, has filed as a candidate for sheriff of Prince Georges County, Samuel A. Wyvill, clerk to the supervisors of election, announced yesterday. He is the second to file for this office on the Republican ticket, Bernard Beall, of Browns Station, having filed last week. Mr. Beall is the brother of a former sheriff.

Man Facing Life Term In Killing Takes Bride

Beckley, W. Va., July 9 (A.P.).—Facing life imprisonment for the killing of a man near here, Kent Fleming, 25, of Beckley, was a bridegroom today.

Fleming married Miss Jane Louise Brown, 25, of Evansville, Ind., yesterday shortly after he was returned to the county jail to await a hearing on a motion to set aside the verdict returned at his trial. He was convicted of first degree murder for the killing of Benjamin Moss. The jury recommended mercy.

Orange County Board Will Assess Property

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., July 9.—The Orange County Board of Equalization, recently appointed by Judge Alex T. Browning, has organized to fix all property assessments in the county.

The office of land assessor has been abolished and the entire responsibility of determining assessments rests upon the equalization board. Figures set by the equalization board are final except where appeal is made to the circuit court, where the judge may change assessments.

LANDING OFF AFRICA ENDS OCEAN FLIGHT

French Pilot Comes Down in Sea and Is Saved by Steamer.

STARTED FROM BRAZIL

Dakar, Senegal, July 9 (A.P.).—An oil leak spoiled what promised to be a brilliant round-trip commercial and postal flight between France and South America soon after 10 o'clock this morning.

The gallant effort of the French pilot, Jean Mermoz, to cover the route both ways and thus demonstrate the feasibility of regular postal and commercial service by air between Paris and Buenos Aires came to naught through a slight accident to the plane's oil pipes when the seaplane was within 650 miles of Dakar and over 1,000 miles out of Natal, Brazil.

The plane came down on the sea in perfect fashion and the patrol boat Phocee, which had been notified of the difficulty, was already there to take aboard the crew and the 600 pounds of mail. Those with Mermoz were Leopold Gimme, radio operator, and Jean d'Abry, navigator, both of whom had accompanied Mermoz on his flight from Africa to South America last May.

Had Sufficient Fuel.

Mermoz was deeply disappointed at the ending of the flight, for which he had made so much preparation. He had discovered the leak about 9 o'clock this morning when about twelve hours out of Natal, but it did not then appear to be serious and he informed Dakar by wireless he expected to arrive between 5 and 6 o'clock. Dakar prepared with the greatest enthusiasm for a rousing reception and welcome to the aviators.

Some time later the plane came down and the Phocee picked up the crew at 7 degrees north latitude and 24 west longitude. When he came down Mermoz had enough fuel to reach Dakar easily and the whole crew had been in the highest spirits as they approached the African side of the Atlantic and the success of their venture appeared to be certain.

Mail Possibility Proved.

They were not more disappointed than Dakar, where delight at the prospective success of the round air trip was general. The disappointment was somewhat mitigated by the fact that despite the oil leak regular postal air line and commercial service between France, Africa and South America appeared assured.

In order to lose as little time as possible in the dispatch of the air mail, the Phocee decided to turn the pouches over to a second faster boat that also was patroling the airmen's route.

The fliers will get a cordial reception when they arrive here that will perhaps comfort them somewhat for disappointment at being obliged to come down at sea. Dakar has taken Mermoz and his companions to its heart and regards them as pioneers in the new enterprise which links the name of their city with that of South America as the first stage on this side of the Atlantic for the rapid dispatch of South American mail.

Real Estate Operator Loses Extradition Plea

Albany, N. Y., July 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Herman Goodstein, millionaire real estate operator of Forest Hills, Long Island, today lost his fight against approval of the application of Pennsylvania for his extradition to answer a charge of involuntary homicide.

Gov. Roosevelt announced that the man who is wanted for prosecution by Reading, Pa., authorities in connection with the death of Thomas Maggiaro through the explosion of a still, must be turned over to the Pennsylvania authorities. Attorneys for Goodstein, however, indicated they will take the last course of action available and begin a court fight against his removal.

None Believed Killed In Pier's Collapse

Penns Grove, N. J., July 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The police today said they were convinced that nobody had been killed in the collapse of a 200-foot section of the pier of the Delaware-New Jersey Ferry Co. late yesterday, and that none had been injured outside the five who were taken from the wreckage soon after.

Nevertheless, because several eyewitnesses told of seeing several persons on the front end of the pier when it sank, crews of men continued to search the waters for the bodies of persons who might have drowned. The cost of rebuilding was estimated today at $200,000 and the loss of freight at $10,000.

'Train Rider' Loses Life In Freight Derailment

Steubenville, Ohio, July 9 (A.P.).—One "train rider" was killed and several others were injured this afternoon at Broad Acre, near here, when a derailed box car on a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train caused 35 other cars to topple over an embankment. Both main tracks of the road were blocked.

The dead man was Raymond Jenkins, 21, Lawrenceburg, Ind. Those injured were Jenkins' father, Walter; Ben McClinton, Detroit, and L. T. Lovelace, Columbus, Ohio, brakeman. Railroad officials declared the Jenkinses and McClinton were "stealing" a ride.

Man Tarred, Feathered, Turned Nude on Street

Orange City, Iowa, July 9 (A.P.).—John De Jong, 41, widower and father of five children, today told Sioux County officers he was captured by a band of men who tarred and feathered him and left him nude in the streets here. He said he could recognize seventeen of his attackers.

Sioux County officers said they expected to make arrests soon. They said they believed the attack was the result of rumors involving De Jong in a scandal. De Jong said he was captured at the fair grounds and driven into the country where he was forced to undress.

Senator and His Bride On Return to Capital

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.).—Even though on a honeymoon Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, today was on the way to the Capital with Mrs. Smoot to vote for ratification of the London naval agreements. They will be guests of President and Mrs. Hoover in the White House during the special session of the Senate.

He said he would vote against the McKellar resolution as he did not believe it necessary for details to be made public. "I believe we can rely on the President's judgment in the matter," he said.

NINE DEAD AS HEAT GRIPS MIDDLE WEST

Mitchell, S. Dak., Reports Top Temperature of 108 Degrees.

97 REGISTERED AT KIOSK

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.).—Summer heat cooked the Middle West today as the temperature soared toward new high figures. Nine deaths in two days are reported.

Many were the cities sweltering around 100 degrees, Mitchell, S. Dak., heading the list as the hottest city at 108. Sioux Falls, Des Moines, Lincoln and Sioux City each reported 100 and experienced their hottest day of the year.

Chicago, where a gentle lake breeze stirred, was enjoying milder weather with the thermometer hanging around 84. Milwaukee, St. Paul and Minneapolis each boasted of 89, while Omaha had 97.

Texas and Oklahoma were suffering less than States to the north. The same situatoin prevailed in the Rocky Mountain area, it being warmer near the Canadian border in Montana than at Phoenix, Ariz.

Predicted showers and thunderstorms gave promise of relief for Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, New Mexico, Utah and Arizona.

The hot, dry spell prevailing in the mountain region for three weeks has created a fire hazard in national forests, and emergency regulations have been placed in force on campers. In some districts persons are not allowed to leave the main roads in forest territory.

Atlanta, July 9 (A.P.).—Paul Briggs, a Negro, died here today from heat prostration and his death brought to two the number of fatalities in Atlanta from the heat wave that has the South in its grip.

Mrs. Waite Keck, of Bowling Green, Fla., died here yesterday following a heart attack, which doctors said was caused by the heat.

Washingtonians yesterday noted that the temperature steadily rose from 76 degrees at 2 a. m. to 80 degrees at 10 a. m., while the kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue registered 97 at 4 p. m.

Ottinger Urges Tuttle As Choice for Governor

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Albert Ottinger, candidate for Governor of New York in 1928 and former attorney general, today announced that he is not an aspirant for the governorship in the coming election and favors United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle.

Mr. Ottinger stated that Mr. Tuttle could make his election certain by adopting the platform of Ambassador Dwight Morrow, which calls for return to the State of liquor control, and called on the Republican party of the State to declare for repeal of the eighteenth amendment "as the only way to accomplish true temperance."

Former Hotel Man Slain After Detroit Quarrel

Detroit, July 9 (A.P.).—A man identified as Louis Candea, former hotel proprietor, was shot to death in a saloon on West Jefferson avenue in Ecorse at 5 a. m. today. The slayer escaped.

John Belford, described by police as owner of the place, said that Candea quarreled with an unidentified man and that the other man beat him to the draw. Belford was wounded in the hand. He was held as a material witness.

Run on Florida Bank Forces It to Close

Haines City, Fla., July 9 (A.P.).—The State Bank of Haines City, oldest financial institution in Polk County, failed to open for business today.

Lisle W. Smith, president, announced that withdrawals aggregating $400,000 in the past 60 days caused directors of the bank to close for reorganization. The bank was organized in 1913.

Mrs. Mosby Granted Alimony of $400,000

Cincinnati, July 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Roberta Mosby, 29, who sought a divorce and $2,000,000 alimony from Gilbert H. Mosby, president of the Mosby Medicine Co., today was granted the divorce and $400,000 alimony. She charged gross neglect.

Mosby previously asked for a divorce and his wife countered with a cross-petition.

Syrian Religious Group To Hold Annual Outing

The St. George Society and ladies' auxiliary, the Myrrah Bearing Society, both Syrian religious organizations, will hold their annual outing today at Seaside Park.

The Rev. Job Saloom, priest of the Syrian Orthodox Church in Washington, and George Aed, president of the St. George Society, will be in charge of the outing.

Police Court Wins In Liquor Decision

Adkins Decides Judge May Send First Offender to Jail.

A Police Court judge's right to commit a prisoner to jail on a first offense liquor possession charge was affirmed yesterday by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, in District Supreme Court, in connection with habeaus corpus proceedings instituted by Lawrence Dodd. Attorneys James A. O'Shea and John H. Burnett, representing Dodd, contended that as the only penalty for a first offense charge of possession was a fine, the Police Court could not imprison the accused if the fine were not paid.

Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher, however, countered with the claim that imprisonment was merely a means of enforcing the fine, and was not a part of the penalty. Should the contention of opposing counsel be upheld, he added, the court would be powerless to enforce its sentences, and all persons convicted of first offense possession could go free by merely refusing to pay their fines.

Dodd, who is at liberty on bond, is expected to carry the case to the Court of Appeals.

Sergeant Cleared In Two Complaints

Police Trial Board Finds Swain Not Guilty of Complaints.

Charged with unjustifiable arrest and with conduct unbecoming an officer, Sergt. John H. B. Swain, of the Eleventh Precinct, was cleared on both counts by the Police Trial Board yesterday.

Theodore Roosevelt Taylor, colored, of 631 Harvard street southeast, who claimed to be a close friend of Representative Oscar DePriest, was complainant against Swain, alleging that the policeman had addressed him offensively and arrested him without justification.

Court records show that Taylor, arrested by Swain after an accident on charges of reckless driving and failing to exhibit his operator's permit, was fined $2 on the latter charrge, thus nullifying Taylor's assertion of false arrest. Taylor failed to prove his charge that Swain had addressed or treated him in other than a courteous manner, and the Trial Board dismissed the case.

Events of the War 13 Years Ago Today

President Wilson issued a proclamation ordering all National Guard troops to be drafted into the Regular Army on August 5.

Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman were sentenced to two years in prison and $10,000 fine for conspiracy against the selective draft act.

Six persons were killed and 31 injured in a mysterious explosion at the Mare Island Navy Yard in California.

Military authorities at Fort McPherson, Ga., frustrated an attempt to liberate 400 German sailors interned there.

Miami, Fla., July 9 (A.P.).—The seaplane Miami, said to be the largest airliner in scheduled service in the world, left here for Havana today on its maiden flight. It will be operated by the New York, Rio & Buenos Aires Line between Miami and the Cuban capital.

Plaintiff Assists Defendant's Case

Acts as Interpreter for Man He Sues, and Wins Action.

Faced with the problem of interpreting the non-English testimony of the man against whom he had brought suit, one of the Putrovsky Bros., wholesale dealers in kosher meat, obligingly assisted his opponent in a strange court battle before Judge Robert E. Mattingly.

Putrovsky claimed that Isreal Mensh, a retail kosher meat dealer, owed him $600. The defendant disputed the claim, and a great dispute arose between the principals and their counsel, William B. Wolf for the plaintiff, and Hyman Waldman for Mensh.

Mensh decided to testify in his own defense, but he couldn't speak English. It was suggested that Mensh's attorney interpret, but Attorney Wolf objected. Finally it was decided that the plaintiff would interpret for the defendant. He did so and won the judgement.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

U. S. NAVY TO HONOR NEVILLE AT FUNERAL

Light Cruiser Is Dispatched to Service for Marine Corps Commandant.

BURIAL IN ARLINGTON

Naval rites will accompany the burial tomorrow of Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, commandant of the Marine Corps, who died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John P. W. West, at Edgewater Beach, Md.

A short service will be held at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Marine Barracks, the commandant's late home, but only the family and relatives will be present. The Rev. Sydney K. Evans, chief of the Naval Chaplain Corps, will officiate.

Brig. Gen. John T. Myers, Marine Corps headquarters, will be in charge of the burial in Arlington Cemetery at 2 o'clock. The light cruiser Richmond will arrive at the Washington Navy Yard during the morning and will be docked during the service.

Honorary pallbearers at the interment will be the following:

The Acting Secretary of the Navy, Ernest Lee Jahncke; Rear Admiral Jehu V. Chase, U. S. N.; Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, U. S. N.; Rear Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, U. S. N.; Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U. S. M. C.; Brig. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, U. S. M. C.; Brig. Gen. Hugh Matthews, U. S. M. C.; Col. Rush H. Wallace, U. S. M. C.; William T. Saunders, 6406 Georgia street, Chevy Chase, Md.; Brig. Gen. Rufus H. Lane, U. S. M. C.; Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, U. S. A.

The Marine Band concert scheduled for tonight in the Sylvan Theater has been canceled out of respect for the late commandant.

Brig. Gen. Ben H. Fuller has been placed temporarily at the head of the Marine Corps. Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, now in command at Quantico, Va., is in line to succeed Gen. Neville as senior ranking officer. The second on the list is Maj. Gen. Logan Feland, in command of the Pacific Department at San Francisco. The ranking officer usually succeeds to the post.

Mrs. Emily Hyde Dies at Age of 78

Funeral Services Will Be Held Tomorrow Morning for Capital Woman.

Funeral services for Mrs. Emily Hyde, who died at her home, 1760 Euclid street, yesterday will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. She will be buried privately.

Mrs. Hyde, who was 78, was active in various charitable and improvement associations. She was a charter member of the Starmont Auxiliary, which provides a camp for tubercular cases in nearby Maryland, and a charter member of the Columbia Heights Art Club. She had been active in Y. W. C. A. work and was also a member of the board of the Aid Association for the Blind. She had been affiliated for 25 years with the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Mrs. Hyde is survived by five children—the Misses Edith and Elizabeth Hyde, of Washington; Mrs. R. E. Lee, of Douglaston, Long Island; Edward Hyde, of Vermont, and J. Lawrence Hyde, of Seattle.

Col. Oliver Hershman, Publisher, Dies at 71

Pittsburgh, July 9.—Col. Oliver S. Hershman, 71, former Pittsburgh newspaper publisher, died at his home here today after a three-weeks illness. He published the Chronicle Telegraph until 1900, when he bought the press. In 1923 he disposed of the latter paper. His military title came through appointment as aid de camp to Gov. E. S. Stuart in 1907.

In addition to membership in a number of Pittsburgh clubs, he was affiliated with the Del Mar Club at Santa Monica, Calif., and the Deal Golf Club of Deal, N. J. His widow and three children survive. The children are Mrs. Madison J. Keeney, of Los Angeles, and Harold B. and Elda Belle Hershman, both of Pittsburgh.

Bishop of Cuernavaca, Once an Exile, Dies

Mexico City, July 9 (A.P.).—Mgr. Francesco Uranga y Saenz, Bishop of Cuernavaca, died today.

Mgr. Uranga y Saenz was appointed Bishop of Cuernavaca in May, 1922. He was among the foremost churchmen who went into exile during the religious difficulties in Mexico in 1927. In June, 1929, the bishop arrived back at Mexico City, being the first high ranking Catholic prelate to return to Mexico after the possibility of a solution of the religious controversy became known.

GREEKS PAY HONOR TO BYRD ASSISTANT

Order of Ahepa Gives Dinner to Epaminondas Demas at Press Club.

EXPLOITS ARE PRAISED

Epaminondas J. Demas, of Greece, Washington, and points north and south, and known affectionately to the members of three expeditions lead by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd as "Pete," was the guest of the Order of the Ahepa, Greek international society, at a dinner at the National Press Club last night.

Mr. Demas, who came to Washgton from Greece 13 years ago when he was 12 years old, is a graduate of McKinley Technical High School, and ever since his graduation he has followed the profession of explorer, having been with Admiral Byrd both to the North and South Pole, and in connection with his transatlantic flight. His home is at 1906 Irving strete northeast, and he is a cousin of Dr. Charles J. Demas, of 1301 Massachusetts avenue northwest, president of the local chapter of the Order of Ahepa.

About 30 of the leading Greeks of Washington were present at the dinner, at which Soterios Nicholson acted as toastmaster. Emile C. Vrisakis, First Secretary of the Greek Legation, expressed the regrets of the Greek minister at being unable to attend, and emphasized the pride which the Greek nation feels in the achievements of young Demas, who was airplane mechanic for the Byrd expedition.

Achilles Cateonis, supreme secretary of the Order of Ahepa, also paid high tribute to Mr. Demas, and declared that, of all the Greek immigrants who have distinguished themselves, Mr. Demas wsa among the greatest and his record was a stirring credit both to his native Greece and his adopted United States.

Sergt. Kennard F. Bubier, U. S. M. C., Mr. Demas' pal among the 65 members of the expedition, was another guest at the dinner. He spoke in high praise of Mr. Demas, who, he declared, probably was easily the most popular, most courageous and most willing worker at the pole.

W. Howard Kelly, a young New Zealander who joined the expedition when it touched at New Zealand on its return trip and who came to the United States to study under a scholarship granted by his government at Syracuse University, was present as Mr. Demas' guest.

Mr. Demas said he plans to remain in the United States "until there is another expedition led by Admiral Byrd" to study aeronautical engineering at New York University.

Billfold With $20 Reported Stolen.

A billfold containing $20 was stolen from Gerald Garner, of 3577 Warder street northwest, he reported to police yesterday. The wallet was in the pocket of a pair of trousers hanging in a house at Thirty-fourth and Fessenden street northwest.

MINE CHIEF FOUND GUILTY OF CONTEMP

Lewis and 14 Other Union Officials Cited for Violation of Injunction.

WAIVER OF FINES URGED

Springfield, Ill., July 9 (A.P.).—Strife between warring factions of the United Mine Workers of America received renewed attention today when Master in Chancery Frank Trutter returned a report in which he held that John L. Lewis, international president, and fourteen other Union officials had violated the injunction restraining them from interfering with affairs of the Illinois Union.

Basing his opinion upon the trial which was held here late in May, the master recommended that no fines be assessed against Lewis and his cohorts. He held that they had "unintentionally" violated the injunction.

Original charges of contempt named Lewis and 33 of his followers. During the trial Attorney Thompson recommended that the names of 17 men be dropped from this list. Of those still charged with contempt, Trutter held that A. T. Pace, of Herrin, and Former State Senator William Sneed of Herrin were not guilty.

In addition to Lewis, those found technically guilty of violating the injunction were Frank Hefferly, Illinois district provisional president; Joseph P. Goett, provisional vice president; John T. Jones, provisional secretary-treasurer; Joe Masner, Terrence Hughes, Myo Vigliocco, Andrew Wilson, Charles Griffey, J. J. McGuinn, O. T. Vanwinkel, Frank Davis, Charles Wenschel, George D. Bowlin, and John W. Gerard.

Man Found on Circle Held Amnesia Victim

Eighth Precinct police were attempting last night to locate the home address of a man believed to be an amnesia victim who was found ill at Thomas Circle by John F. McGoldrick, of Benning.

The man gave the name of John Patrick Bingham and said he lived on West Twenty-seventh street, New York. He declared he was a former marine and had been undergoing treatment at Mount Alto Hospital for shell shock. Hospital authorities were unable to identify him. He is about 35 years old.

Jewelry Salesman Robbed.

Necklaces worth $100 were stolen from Leon N. Hyndall, a jewelry salesman living at 1820 Kalorama road northwest, he reported to police yesterday. The ornaments were stolen from his automobile, which was parked at Eighteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest.

VANNUTELLI, DEAN OF CARDINALS, DIES

Body Probably Will Repose in St. Ignatius Church; Rites Saturday.

OSTIA SITE IS PROPOSED

Vatican City, July 9 (A.P.).—The body of Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli, dean of the Sacred College, lay in state tonight in the throne room of his apartment in D'Ataria Palace while preparations were made for his burial on Saturday.

The prelate died early this evening of uremic poisoning and heart disease ailments which the wiry and vigorous prince of the Catholic Church had combatted successfully for many years.

The prelate, who ranked higher than any other in the Catholic Church excepting the Pope, will be buried, it was believed tonight, with services in which all of the curia, cardinals resident in Rome, will participate.

His body will repose probably in the Church of St. Ignatius. Mgr. Respighi, secretary of the congregation of rites, in charge of the funeral, has been besieged by requests that Cardinal Vannutelli be buried in the Cathedral of Ostia, which he dedicated only a few months ago, with exercises that overtaxed his strength, brought on a cold and precipitated his end.

The cathedral is in Rome's old seaport where the prelate served as bishop for nearly two decades. It was Cardinal Vannutelli's dream of many years and was built practically through his personal efforts.

Cardinal Vannutelli died shortly after he had received the customary deathbed blessing from the Pope and a special blessing which His Holiness bestowed as a signal honor to the aged cardinal.

Until he sank into unconsciousness the nearly a century old prince of the Catholic Church continued to talk with brother prelates gathered at his bedside. Although there was a perceptible weakening in his voice, he seemed to derive pleasure from the conversations and his doctors did not forbid them.

Just before Cardinal Vannutelli died he received a visit from Francesco Giunta, undersecretary to the prime minister, on behalf of Premier Mussolini.

Jupiter to Mars Line Brings $2.80 at Sale

Palm Beach, Fla., July 9 (A.P.). For $2.80, C. P. Corrigan was the owner tonight of a railroad that for erly ran from Jupiter to Mars.

Of course, the railroad, which long ago ceased actual operation, was not an interplanetary system, although it had been dubbed the "Celestial Line." In its day its narrow gauge rails ran for 8 miles between the towns of Jupiter, Venus, Mars and Juno.

It was the old J. & L. Railroad, consisting of a wheezy little engine, a passenger coach, two flat cars and a box car that was built in 1888.

At the tax sale today, Corrigan paid the taxes due and thereupon became the owner of a railroad, in name, if not in fact, for the rails have been torn up long since. He bought the short right-of-way in Juno.

Communist Activity Hearing Opens Tuesday

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—To investigate communist activities in the United States, a congressional committee, headed by Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., will inaugurate here a series of public hearings next Tuesday.

Subsequent hearings will be conducted in Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago and Philadelphia, the findings to be laid before Congress.

1,833,000 Jobless in Germany.

Berlin, July 9 (A.P.).—The number of unemployed in Germany receiving government doles at the end of June was officially announced today as amounting to 1,833,000. This is 900,000 more than a year ago. The total number of unemployed at the end of June, 1930, was 2,636,000.

U. S. WORKERS FACE PAY INCREASE DELAY

Raises Under Brookhart Act Are to Be Included in Second July Check.

M'CARL STUDYING BILL

The Brookhart salary law increases for Government employes will not be noticeable in the pay checks of July 15 because of several questions which have arisen regarding the administration of the act.

Comptroller General McCarl will be called upon to give an official interpretation of the law, and it is expected that increases for the whole month of July will be incorporated in the second salary checks of the month.

The Association of Personnel Officers is drafting a set of questions to put before Mr. McCarl probably tomorrow or Saturday. It was the Comptroller General's interpretation of the original Welch salary act which led to the passage of the Brookhart bill to clear up certain questions in the former law.

Among the questions which have appeared to plague the administrators of the new act is whether only those Government employes who are in the same grade now as they were on July 1, 1928, when the Welch act went into effect, will be eligible for the increase.

The purpose of the Brookhart measure was to give an increase of one additional salary step to employes who were advanced only one step within their respective grades under the Welch act.

Other disturbing questions are whether those eligible on July 1, 1928, but since promoted to a higher grade, and those who are in the same grade now as on that date, but who have received an independent salary increase, are eligible for the Brookhart increase.

New York Raid Plucks Spice From Earl Carroll Vanities

Police, Unappreciative of Impresario's Sophisticated Sketches, Nab Star and Eight Girls After Matinee and Start Search for Producer and Treasurer.

New York, July 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Earl Carroll, known as the big drapery and undrapery expert, of Broadway producers, 2½ years out of Atlanta prison, whither he was sent as an aftermath of his famous bathtub party, ran up against police department show censors again today.

While a matinee crowd guffawed and snickered over the broad humor of the latest "vanities" and craned their necks to see as much as possible of the sparingly garbed show girls, a squad of policemen quietly entered the New Amsterdam Theater, went back stage and informed the stage manager that a raid was in progress. Two hours later they left the theater with eight girls and one of the stars, Jimmie Savo, in tow.

They were booked on the charge of violating section 1148 of the penal law, which makes a misdemeanor of producing or participating in an indecent or vile show which tends to corrupt public morals.

The "Vanities" went on tonight, but there were several changes in the sketches.

Mr. Carroll himself missed the general mop-up, but Acting Police Capt. James J. Coy, police expert on obscene shows, told reporters at the station house that two other warrants had been obtained, along with the other nine, from Chief Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, and that one of these warrants was for Earl Carroll. Early tonight police were seeking him and for the treasurer of the show, Louis Lotti, for whom the eleventh warrant was obtained, it was said.

The raid caused the greatest excitement on Broadway. As news of it passed from lip to lip, several thousand persons pressed into West Forty-second street, around the front entrance of the theater, and other thousands into West Forty-first street, where a line of uniformed police attempted to keep the crowd moving. Scores of the curious hung out of windows of a newspaper office across the street.

Within the theater, however, all was order. Detectives working under the direction of Capt. Coy, quietly served the warrants, waited for the final curtain to fall and for the actors and show girls to dress. No word of the raid was allowed to get to the ears of the audience, and it was not until its members reached the street and noted the great congestion that they knew what had gone on back stage.

The young women booked were Irene Ahlberg, Kay Carroll, Dorothy Britton, Eileen Wenzel, Frances Joyce, Constance Trevor, Naomi May and the fan dancer, Faith Bacon, also a featured number of the show.

Miss Bacon's act consisted of prancing down the stage several times and prancing back again, appareled in nothing, but waving two large ostrich fans. When she turned her back to the house a gasp went up from the audience upon each occasion, it being quite apparent that the wavng fans were all she had in the way of "garments."

All of those arrested tonight were released on $500 cash bail and will appear tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in Jefferson Market Court.

Meantime the management announced that the regular performance would be given tonight. On hearing this, Deputy Chief Inspector Bolan declared he would keep a policeman in the theater to see if there is a repetition of objectionable scenes, adding that he had been informed parts of the show will be omitted.

NOT GOING WELL.

The injury that can be done to a good cause by inexperienced and uncandid negotiators is exemplified by the controversy that has arisen in the Senate regarding the papers relating to the London naval treaty. The controversy would not have arisen if the Secretary of State had dealt frankly with the Senate as a coordinate part of the treaty-making power. More than one Secretary of State has looked upon the Senate's careful scrutiny of treaties as an impertinent interference with the Executive. This was the attitude of John Hay, as privately expressed, but in dealing with the Senate he skillfully avoided controversies revolving about the Senate's share in the power to make treaties, including its right to amend them.

The present Secretary of State, confronted by questions propounded by members of the Senate committee on foreign relations, deemed it wise to use parts of certain documents in support of his position, and then to deny to the committee the documents in their entirety. When the committee formally asked for the documents the Secretary of State reported that he was directed by the President to say that their production would not, in his opinion, be compatible with the public interest. The inference conveyed in the Secretary of State's reply was that if the documents should be transmitted to the Senate they would become public, and that the only way in which the confidence reposed in the United States Government by foreign governments could be preserved was by withholding the papers from the Senate.

There can be no question of the Senate's right, in considering a treaty, to call for all papers relating to the negotiations. The President is not bound to transmit them, but if he refuses to do so he runs the risk of having the treaty rejected.

Members of the Senate who favor the naval treaty have been needlessly affronted by the present Secretary of State in his intimation that the Senate can not be trusted to withhold confidential papers from the public. In an effort to avoid a controversy over this matter it was suggested yesterday that the Senate should give some assurance that the documents would be kept confidential. This was very properly opposed by Senator Borah, who held that the Senate should not enter into negotiations or make pledges for the sake of obtaining the papers.

The Senate is now in a mood to demand the production of the treaty papers, unconditionally, and to abandon consideration of the treaty if the papers are not produced. It would be on solid constitutional ground if it should take that position.

It is very unfortunate that consideration of the treaty on its merits has been impeded, and doubts cast upon the nature and true purport of the negotiations, by the action of the present Secretary of State. President Hoover is earnestly desirous of obtaining the advice and consent of the Senate to the ratification of the treaty. His effort to promote international good will by bringing about limitation of armaments and a cessation of naval rivalry is universally applauded. It is regrettable that his effort is made more difficult by the mistakes of the Secretary of State.

"INTERPRETING" PAY INCREASES.

Probably it is necessary that an official ruling should be rendered by the Comptroller General with respect to the application of the Brookhart pay-raise act. The measure was designed to bring relief to those who were discriminated against by the application of the Welch act of 1928. Those who were advanced but a single grade under that act would be given an additional grade, and questions now arise as to those who, since the advances under the Welch act, have been raised one or more grades. Personnel officers plan to ask the Comptroller General for a ruling. Meanwhile, all advances will be held up.

It seems strange that pay legislation should call for a variety of "interpretations." Congress intended that certain classes of Government employes should have specified pay raises, and it legislated to this end. But the Welch act was "interpreted" to make possible raises to certain groups while others were overlooked. It took Congress two years to enact a bill designed to rectify this injustice, and now the rectification itself is plunged into controversy.

Those discriminated against in the application of the Welch act have waited long enough for the increases to which they are clearly entitled.

WHY NOT A SENATE COMMITTEE?

The House accepted in bad grace the liberalized District bill as insisted upon by the Senate. Following the vote, Representative Cramton, originator of the lump sum method of making the Federal contribution, made a speech in which he said that a precedent had not been set, and that future bills might contain a smaller Federal contribution than $9,000,000, while Representative Simmons introduced a resolution calling for the appointment of a select House committee to study Federal-District fiscal matters. The committee has been appointed by Speaker Longworth, and it is directed to carry on its investigation during the recess. The committee is composed of Representatives Mapes, Republican, Michigan; Frear, Republican, Wisconsin; Holaday, Republican, Illinois; Beers, Republican, Pennsylvania; Crisp, Democrat, Georgia; Collins, Democrat, Mississippi, and Patman, Democrat, Texas.

The House is opposed almost to a man to adjusting the Federal contribution upon a fair and equitable basis. It sustained its conferees when they were holding out for no more than $9,000,000 by a vote of 283 to 16 and it turned thumbs down on Representative Moore's resolution calling for the creation of a special commission, composed of Government officials, members of Congress and citizens, to prosecute a study of the fiscal problem. It appears well nigh inconceivable that a committee from the membership of the House would be willing to make an impartial study of the question of fiscal relationship. It seems likely that the committee will set to work to prove that $9,000,000 is an overly-generous Federal contribution and that, based on the committee's recommendation, the House will attempt to shove through future District bills that are even more unjust and inequitable than those of recent years.

Senator Bingham is seriously considering the advisability of introducing a resolution early in the next session calling for the creation of a permanent commission on fiscal relations, to be made up of representatives of all interests concerned in District matters. Such a commission should be created, but the House refused on three separate and distinct occasions in the session just closed to consider such proposals and, unless its make-up changes radically in the elections, there is no reason to believe that it would permit the fiscal problem to be studied by a disinterested body.

Why should not the Senate appoint its own committee to consider the fiscal relationship problem? The Senate proved by the gallant fight in the recent session that its members have a proper conception of the problems and rights of the Federal City. Any select committee it might appoint could be depended upon to consider questions of fiscal policy and relationship with due regard to the interests of the District, and its reports would be useful to refute any biased reports of the House committee if the need should arise.

NEW PROHIBITION POLICY.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, new prohibition director in the Department of Justice, announces that "steady pressure" will be brought to bear to reduce illicit liquor and bootlegging activities throughout the country. When he took office he announced that spectacular methods of enforcement would be abandoned and now he says that padlocks will be invoked freely for the purpose of plugging up holes through which liquor has been accustomed to flow. Mr. Woodcock has worked out a system of daily reports calculated to gauge the process of "steady pressure." Every administrator and deputy administrator will report his activity at the close of every day, and the reports will be summarized on charts that are designed to give a graphic day-to-day picture of the status of the enforcement war in both the detection and legal phases.

Mr. Woodcock enters upon his onerous duties with a commendable show of reticence and discretion. Obviously he plans to speak through actions rather than with words. He will attempt to dry up America, with full regard for the fact that other laws on the statute books must not be violated for the sake of enforcing a specific law. The steady, inexorable pressure that he plans to invoke against lawbreakers should have positive results.

With the Department of Justice responsible for enforcing prohibition there will be less tendency to subordinate all other law to the eighteenth amendment and the enforcement statutes. If the drys will let Mr. Woodcock carry through a campaign of "steady pressure," there is a possibility that he will make a better record than have his predecessors, who were themselves subjected to "steady pressure" from fanatics who demanded that prohibition be enforced with fire and sword.

EXPLORING AIR ROUTES.

Three years after the epochal flight of Col. Lindbergh aviators and navigators are still searching for the best air route across the Atlantic. A flight from America to Europe is still a hazardous adventure, and the time for establishment of regular airplane service between the two continents seems to be much farther in the future than was predicted on that occasion. Many routes have been negotiated since then, but each presents formidable hazards.

An expedition set out this week from London to explore the Arctic route, with a view to promoting air travel from Scotland to Canada. In theory the Arctic route appears to be safer than any of the others. The stretches between land are nowhere more than 300 miles in length, and the entire route is not much longer than the more direct lines over open water. Iceland, Greenland and the Faroe Islands provide land bases, and diminish the danger of overseas flight. But this route has not been friendly to airmen. Before it can be regarded as the most practical air line across the Atlantic extensive research will be necessary.

The British expedition, under leadership of H. G. Watkins, will give special attention to that part of the route which crosses Greenland. The ice cap of this frozen region will be explored for a more feasible passage than any heretofore traversed. Meteorological studies will be made. The fog handicap will be given attention.

On the outcome of these investigations the feasibility of the route depends. The weather was so treacherous in Greenland last summer that Capt. Ahrenberg was unable to complete his flight to North America. Until more is known of the obstacles encountered in this region the Arctic route must be considered extremely unsafe.

This British expedition is attacking the problem in a scientific way. Trial flights are not sufficient to establish the feasibility of a route over this type of country. Many lives may be saved and the Atlantic may yield to commercial aviation sooner than would otherwise be possible as the result of this exploration work.

The early Egyptians, it was recently discovered, carried insurance. Look where it got 'em.

CHINESE PETS

Peiping Correspondence Christian Science Monitor.

The famous dog bazaars of Peiping are almost deserted nowadays, but the bird stores continue to do a merry business. For the Chinese, despite their adoption of many foreign customs, still prefer to make pets of birds, fish and singing insects instead of dogs.

Even the Pekingese spaniel has practically vanished from this ancient city, which gave it its name. Introduced by the Manchu emperors 300 years ago and maintained exclusively in the golden-roofed Forbidden City, this toy dog became noted the world over and hundreds of foreigners who visited Peiping patronized the local dog bazaars in the hope of finding a palace pet which had been smuggled out for sale. But now fine pedigreed specimens of this dog may be found in almost any country—except China.

Instead of accepting this little court favorite, the Chinese people taught their Manchu conquerors to enjoy birds, and with the downfall of the imperial dynasty eighteen years ago, no one is now left to cherish the Pekingese puppy. A few noble families here still raise the former palace dog, but the animals for sale in the public bazaars now are a mongrel lot.

The present popularity of trained birds is also said to date back three centuries to the time when the Manchu horsemen captured old Peking. The new rulers considered themselves above the law and swaggered down the streets of the Tartar City ever ready to pick a fight with the inoffensive Chinese subjects.

But instead of scheming counter-attacks, the Chinese merely showed the Manchus that a gentleman should go walking accompanied by his pet bird. Thus equipped with a bird cage on one arm and two highly polished walnut shells in the other hand, which the Chinese also recommended as a token of culture, the Manchus were seriously hampered in their sword play.

The custom thus established has continued in Peiping to this day, and while no Chinese gentleman will go out for a walk with his dog, it is a common practice to take birds out for an airing. It is believed desirable for a singing lark to meet others of his kind so that he will learn new notes and thus improve his song. For this reason Chinese regularly take their birds to fashionable houses of refreshment and while the masters regale themselves and nibble walnut seeds, the birds take vocal lessons of each other.

An American resident here recently was given a valuable lark by a Chinese friend, but he learned at the end of the first month that its upkeep amounted to $1 a day, the cost of hiring a servant to take the bird to the tea houses and paying there for the man's refreshments.

Chinese are also very fond of goldfishes, which originated in this country. Gorgeous hues and fanciful shapes are highly esteemed and fish peddlers, carrying flat bowls of water with young goldfish, do a profitable trade every spring.

In the summer months singing insects are popular, and these, too, are hawked about, each chirping bug in his own tiny bamboo cage. A peddler accompanied by two big baskets of crickets and cicadas makes considerable din as he strolls down the streets. But his customers, with keenly attuned ears, listen sharply to the discordant concert before finally selecting the insect whose song they find most pleasing.

Pigeons with bamboo whistles attached to their tails are also kept as pets by the Chinese and the whirring humming noise of these trained flocks, as they fly and circle overhead, is one of the interesting features of life in Peiping.

PULLMAN NAMES.

It should be stated, says Fortune, that Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, daughter of the late George Mortimer Pullman, never, though thousands have believed that she did, named a single Pullman car. It was Richmond Dean who achieved the brilliant record of naming 300 Pullman cars in 24 hours. He did so by dispatching a phalanx of assistants to the public library and having them copy virtually every old Roman and Grecian name of which there was record.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

BOY OR GIRL.

Oh, what a curious world 'twould be without divine control
And we could order children as we order meat and coal.
Then folks who wanted little boys their whims could gratify
And those who wanted little girls, a boy would never buy.

But some might order one of each to learn which one is best,
As if so grave a problem could be solved by such a test.
And some might build a family exclusively of boys
While richer folks might order twins to multiply their joys.

Oh, if the choice were left to us, who knows which way 'twould go?
Some fancy they would ask for boys,
some others say not so
They'd rather cherish little girls, they're prettier when they're dressed
But no one would be wise enough to know which one is best.

I think it better as it is, were ours
the choice to make,
There's none of us could be quite sure which one we ought to take.
So whether it be boy or girl, in this the question ends,
We should be grateful to the Lord
whichever one He sends.

Where Money Gives Social Standing, People Aren't Particular About the Way They Get Money.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

THERE is a natural perversity in all of us that causes us to resent benefits that are forced upon us.

Failure to make allowance for that reaction is the chief fault of modern educators.

If a normal boy is called from his play and required to gather nuggets of gold, while a taskmaster stands at his elbow to criticize his efforts and punish him if he does too little, he will go at the business without enthusiasm—perhaps resentfully—and his one desire will be to finish as easily and quickly as possible the labor that is required of him.

If he must fill ten baskets before he is free, he will pick up many a useless stone when the master isn't watching.

But if that same boy is made to understand that the nuggets will enable him to buy luxuries and pleasures and leisure for play, and if he is made to believe that the man at his elbow is not a tyrant to be feared, but a helper whose one desire is to enrich him, he will work cheerfully and feel no temptation to cheat.

When the education of ordinary children was limited to the three R's, and switches were regarded as aids to learning, the pupil saw in his lesson nothing more than a disagreeable task that must be done to escape punishment.

As the land became more civilized and education more comprehensive, parents and teachers outgrew the theory that knowledge must be laid on with a stick; but old customs die hard, and still the student is made to feel that instructors are enemies to be pleased or placated by such means as may be necessary.

He doesn't study because he is eager to learn, but to achieve a rating that will save him from criticism, punishment and disgrace.

And since study is a disagreeable labor and the rating is all that matters, he finds a way to cheat and tricks his instructors.

A Yale publication confesses that 50 per cent of university students cheat in examinations.

In other schools it is not uncommon for students to hire "professionals" to stand their examinations and answer to their names.

I know numbers of young people who have cheated their way through every grade of grammar and high school and on through college.

While a "passing grade" remains the goal of education, young people will cheat to win it.

Teach a boy that the chief purpose of honesty is to keep out of jail and he will steal what he wants when nobody is watching.

THE SEARCH FOR NATIONAL NOTABLES AS FEATURE WRITERS.

(Following Former President Calvin Coolidge's debut as a daily feature writer.)

Mr. Herbert Hoover, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Hoover—You no doubt are aware of the entrance of former President Calvin Coolidge into the newspaper feature field. As there is a big demand for features of this type, we are writing to ask if we could interest you in a proposition to do something for a chain of 600 newspapers. It seems to us that a strip cartoon by a President of the United States would be a distinctive novelty. If this appeals to you, we will be pleased to make an immediate contract. Name your own salary.

Anticipating a reply that you do not know anything about drawing, we beg to state that in newspaper cartooning this is not essential.

Very sincerely,
SUPER FEATURES CORPORATION.

Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Washington, D. C.

Dear Justice Holmes—We are in the market for bright, snappy newspaper features by national dignitaries and are wondering if you would consider a long-term contract to join our galaxy of famous writers. In your capacity you, of course, pick up a lot of interesting material concerning facts and persons, and we would particularly like a daily column to be called "Your Supreme Court and Mine" or "Looking Them Over With Holmes," or something.

We feel that we could put you over in a big way and to our mutual advantage.

Awaiting an early reply, we are, yours very truly,
NATIONAL FEATURES SERVICE.

Mr. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury.

Dear Mr Mellon—Could you call at this office at an early date relative to undertaking a daily feature for American newspapers? Money matters are among the chief concerns of every newspaper and we feel that there is a place in journalism for a feature by you dealing with financial problems as they affect the average man. We already have a title for this feature. It would be called "Bring Your Financial Troubles to Uncle Andrew." A photograph of you would be used each day. If you cared to do so, you could illustrate the text with little pen and ink sketches.

Very truly yours,
ANGUS W. TIPPET, Manager,
Peerless Press Products.

Senator William Borah, Washington, D. C.

Dear Bill—I am wondering whether you would care to undertake a contract to write a daily dozen wisecracks to appear in American newspapers from coast to coast? We are certain there is a demand for a dozen crisp paragraphs a day written by a member of the United States Senate, and we feel there is a future for you in this line of work. Even if the paragraphs are not much good it won't make any great difference. Your name will be the important thing. Or would you rather do a bedtime story?

Yours hopefully,
JASON WIDGETT, President,

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

World Peace Can Not Be Secured by Two Nations Only—Bishop Freeman's Talk, in London.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his recent talk over the radio from London, Bishop James E. Freeman said in regard to the London naval treaty:

"More important than anything set forth in the treaty is the spirit that lies behind it. England and America have given a new demonstration of their purpose to work in harmony for high and holy ends.

"It is not an Anglo-American agreement to safeguard and protect Anglo-American interests. It is an affirmation of the will of the two nations to set forward the peace of the world."

I wish I could join the bishop in his optimistic view of the treaty. Even if it were a five-power pact my assent would not be full-hearted. As a three-power pact it is disappointing. And as "an Anglo-American agreement," which is the shape in which some of its chief advocates seem to view it, it is very far from satisfactory.

In fact it looks as if the good feeling that exists between the people of the United States and the people of England might lose some of its present power for good through the envy and suspicions aroused by such a treaty among other peoples.

What I am trying to get at is that English and American friends of the London treaty who talk as if France, Italy, and other countries have no flair for "high and holy ends" are apt to do more harm than good to the cause of world peace. Indeed, you will notice that in sounding its praises the bishop makes no mention of Japan, one of the treaty's three signatories.

The one encouraging circumstance in regard to the movement for world peace is that since the World War, peace has been the dream of all peoples if not of all governments. Should it be realized within a generation, as there may be some who think possible, it would be the most startling, as well as by far the most beneficent, forward step in the history of mankind.

Whatever happens it is important to remember that the movement is alive in the thoughts of the world's inhabitants everywhere. A mere Anglo-American peace alliance based on the particular armament needs of the two great branches of the English-speaking race, even if it does no positive harm, will seem ridiculously inadequate to the world at large.

MERE CITIZEN.

Bishop Cannon's Proposed Restriction of Basis of Representation Denounced as a Trick.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Tuesday morning's Post carried an Associated Press dispatch setting forth Bishop Cannon's suggestion that the basis of representation should be revised by the elimination of unnaturalized aliens. This elimination is advocated as a political device to bolster up the fortune of the eighteenth amendment. Prohibition is a moral measure, the outcome of a moral movement, and will stand on the basis of its own merit without the bolster of cunning devices and tricky contrivances.

The fundamental principle of the Constitution is that representation shall be based upon the number of persons within its jurisdiction, and subject to its authority. A troublesome temporary situation compelled a temporary compromise in case of "other persons" who were accorded proportional representation. But this was wiped away by the thirteenth amendment. To meet an emergency which the thirteenth amendment created, the curtailment clause of the fourteenth amendment was enacted, both as an inducement for the fulfillment of the original intent of the Constitution and as a punishment for its nonfulfillment.

The fifteenth and nineteenth amendments were calculated to include additional elements of the population in the active participation of the functioning of the Government. The whole trend of our political history has been toward a wider inclusion. The only exception to this tendency is seen in the restrictive constitutions in sundry Southern States with a preponderance of colored citizens. These restrictions must pass away with the progress of time and events. The discredited proposition which Bishop Cannon's suggestion would revive is not only reactionary, but is violative of the vital principle of American institutions. Prohibition is a moral reform which can not be advanced by the adoption of devious reactionary methods.

Why Not an Inspection of Defective Motorists, as Well as Defective Cars?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every one who gives thoughtful attention to traffic conditions will subscribe to what you say about defective automobiles, and in my opinion the traffic authorities will be derelict if they do not act on the suggestion of a rule "providing for official mechanical inspection of every automobile as a prerequisite to licensing." And why not likewise, a provision for psychiatric inspection of automobilists?

INDIA ROUND TABLE CALLED FREE TO ACT

Viceroy Irwin Reasserts British Plan for Dominion Status of Country.

ADVISES MUTUAL TRUST

London, July 9 (A.P.).—Announcement that the forthcoming round table conference on India will meet "with liberty unimpaired" by the Simon report was one of the chief features of a speech made by Viceroy Lord Irwin in Simla today.

In the speech, delivered before both houses of the Indian Legislature and simultaneously made public in London, the viceroy also asserted the British government's declaration of November last that dominion status was a natural completion of India's constitutional growth "still stands."

The evening papers in London commented on the "remarkable nature" of the speech. The Evening Standard, referring to "Lord Irwin's strange words," asked if the Simon report was to be shelved.

The Evening News said the viceroy's announcement regarding the place of the Simon report in the conference would cause immediate discussion among conservatives and liberals who already have expressed disappointment at the laborite government's apparent lack of enthusiasm for the document.

Actual Freedom Promised.

Viceroy Irwin told the Indian Legislature that after careful consideration his majesty's government had decided that the round-table conference on Indian constitutional questions would enjoy full freedom of action.

He said the conference would be free to approach its task "greatly assisted by but with its liberty unimpaired by the report of the Simon Statutory Commission."

"I see no reason," he said, "why, from frank discussion on all sides, a scheme might not emerge for submission to Parliament which would confound the pessimism of those who tell us that it is impossible to reconcile Britain and India or for various interests in India to reach an agreement."

The viceroy referred to the civil disobedience campaign of recent months and stated that the government intended to combat such a "dangerously subversive movement." He made an appeal for both sides to adopt the spirit of mutual trust.

"Two roads lie open," he concluded, "one leading, as I think, to turmoil, disunity, disappointment and scattered hopes. The other guiding those who follow it to the India of our dreams—a proud partner in a free commonwealth of nations, lending and gaining strength by such honorable associations."

Fatal Riot in Madras.

Vellore, Madras, India, July 9 (A.P.). One person was killed and several others were wounded tonight when police fired on a mob demonstrating before the revenue office at Gudiyatam and attempting to rush the jail.

Police engaged mobs which tried to support Civil Resistance Volunteers who were picketing liquor shops. The officers charged with their staves; and when these weapons proved ineffective, fired into the crowds.

Calcutta, July 9 (A.P.).—A bomb was thrown this morning into the house of the detective police inspector of Calcutta. It exploded in a room occupied by a woman servant. Nobody was injured.

For the third successive day the university law examinations were postponed because of picketing, which has continued in spite of the monsoon and oppressive heat.

The Calcutta Corporation today announced its refusal to purchase British gas mantles, which have been used for many years, and stated that it had decided to accept a German contract to supply the mantles instead.

Figures on New Jersey Senate Primary Given

Trenton, N. J., July 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.). The final official figures for the State primaries for the United States Senate were made public today by John F. S. Fitzpatrick, secretary of State.

The vote for the full term was: Republican: Dwight W. Morrow, 422,978; Franklin W. Fort, 118,621; Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 47,811; John A. Kelly, 6,335. Democratic: Alexander Simpson, 118,494. The vote for the unexpired part of Walter E. Edge's term was: Republican: Morrow, 466,917; Kelly, 32,935. Democratic: Miss Thelma Parkinson, 107,723.

Secretary of Labor's Dog Hunted by Police

Seventh Precinct police were asked last night to aid in the search for Secretary of Labor James J. Davis' dog, believed to have been stolen from his home at 3012 Massachusetts avenue early this week.

Secretary Davis and his family are away from home, according to police, and the theft was reported by his cook, Pedro Aytana. The dog is an Eskimo spitz named Snowball, and wears a tag with his owner's name on it. Value of $35 was placed on the dog.

Methodists of Mexico Form Independent Body

Mexico City, July 9 (A.P.).—The Methodist Church of Mexico, an institution which is to be independent of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, has been formed here, it was announced today.

About 100 Methodist congregations are affected. They will all be joined in this new federation, which will work along the same lines as other Methodists, but will be directed autonomously. The announcement says that this step was undertaken in a spirit of cordiality and in order to give the Methodists of Mexico an opportunity to work out their program in their own way.

Traffic Signs in Court Teach Drivers Lessons

Feeling that most motorists are "like young children in regard to traffic regulations and must be taught," Traffic Court Judge Gus A. Schuldt has revived the practice of posting warning signs about his courtroom.

The chief Police Court magistrate inaugurated his blackboard lessons several months ago, but they were discontinued when other judges came to the Traffic Court bench. In addition to posting major traffic rules and penalties for their violation, Judge Schuldt intends to exhibit a new safety slogan each day.

Census Rise Small For Pennsylvania

Low Increase May Decrease Number of Members in House.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 9 (A.P.).—A population increase insufficient to preserve for Pennsylvania the present total of 36 members in the House of Representatives is indicated by the Associated Press compilation of 1930 census returns.

On the basis of complete preliminary figures for three-quarters of the State, a new population total of less than 9,900,000 is promised. This aggregate, in accordance with the provision of the House reapportionment bill, is only slightly greater than the figure required for 35 representatives and is more than 200,000 below the total necessary to retain the existing quota of 36 representatives.

The figures for 52 counties complete and half of Philadelphia show a 1930 aggregate of 7,620,179 as compared with 6,759,275 in 1910. This is an increase of 860,904, or 12.74 per cent. If the percentage of 12.74 per cent were preserved by the counties not yet reported, the total State population would be 9,830,947.

The steady growth in volume of Post Classified ads bears testimony of satisfactory results.

Lampert Resting Easily in Hospital

Representative Received 6 Broken Ribs, Fractured Shoulder in Crash.

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.).—Representative Florian Lampert, of Wisconsin, a resident of Oshkosh, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident yesterday, was reported by St. James' Hospital, Chicago Heights, to be resting as easily as could be expected today.

Examination showed that Mr. Lampert, who is 67 years old, is suffering from six fractured ribs and a fractured shoulder.

Representative Lampert was en route to his home from Washington. His car was driven by Charles F. Nolan, of Oshkosh, a student of Georgetown University. The car skidded on a slippery road south of Chicago and crashed into a coal truck. Nolan was uninjured.

THREE VOTES BALK M'DONALD DEFEAT

Trio of Liberals Forestalls Passage of Its Own Bill Amendment.

FINANCE MEASURE ISSUE

London, July 9 (A.P.).—Prime Minister MacDonald's Labor government had its narrowest escape from defeat during its present tenure of office tonight, defeating by a bare majority of three votes—and these all Liberals—a Liberal amendment to the finance bill.

With the aid of the Liberals themselves, the prime minister managed to muster 278 votes to 275. His previous narrow escape was several months ago on a coal mines measure when the government got a majority of only eight.

It was generally conceded tonight that if the government had met defeat on the finance amendment, it either would have resigned or would have dissolved parliament. The amendment was designed to provide for the nonimposition of income tax on profits which could be proved to have been spent upon the purchase, installation, direction or improvement of a plant or machinery with a view to modernization or improvement of such plant or machinery.

The Liberals, realizing that a new election was imminent in case of a government defeat, stepped in and saved the day by beating their own amendment—nobody apparently desiring a new election at the present time.

While recently Mr. MacDonald said he might accept a slight majority as a real censure and resign, parliamentary observers anticipated no such political development as a result of the finance vote.

It was said that Mr. MacDonald was fully satisfied with the result, particularly as the division had been precipitated fully an hour before it was expected in the hope of catching the government before all its forces were available.

The Conservatives voted solidly against the government. Four Liberals voted for the government. Three Independents voted with the government.

Previously the Laborites had scored a victory by a much bigger margin on a Liberal amendment proposing that the rate of income on company reserves invested in plant machinery, instead of buildings, should be at the rate of 4 shillings, instead of 4 and 6 pence. This amendment was supported by the Conservatives.

Cleric From Capital Received by Pope Pius

Vatican City, July 9 (A.P.).—Pope Pius today received in private audience Mgr. Paolo Marella, auditor of the apostolic delegation at Washington, with whom he talked on conditions in the United States.

He congratulated the auditor on the progress of Catholic work in America and asked him to convey his affectionate regards to Mgr. Fumasoni-Biondi, Apostolic Delegate to the United States. He then imparted the blessing.

Condemned Land Sold, Court Rules on Will

Condemnation of land by the Government is equivalent to a "sale" as that word was used in the will of Mary Frances Bishop, Justice Jennings Bailey decided yesterday in the District Supreme Court. The justice directed that $26,000 obtained from the condemnation of property on D street be distributed among the heirs, Jennie Williamson and Catherine Curtis.

The D street property was intrusted to the Washington Loan & Trust Co. by the will, with a life interest to Jennie Williamson. Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert and Rudolph H. Yeatman represented the beneficiaries, while Attorneys Arthur Peter and William S. Glover appeared for the trust company.

CAPITAL TOMORROW WILL HONOR TINDALL

Capper to Make Address at Reception Dedicated to District Bureau Head.

IS AT WORK ON VOLUME

Dr. William Tindall, the "grand old man" of the District government, will be honored with a public reception in the board room of the District Building at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning and the wheels of the municipal government will be stopped to pay him honor.

Beloved by every employe and official of the District government, Dr. Tindall was accorded unique recognition by Congress in the appropriation act for the current year. Despite the fact that Dr. Tindall is beyond retirement age, Congress decreed, with the approval of District officials, that the retirement law should not apply to the genial and Chesterfieldian doctor. That means that Dr. Tindall may keep on working for the District government as long as he lives.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, will preside at the gathering tomorrow morning, and Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, will make an address.

When he was mustered out of the Union Army in 1867, Dr. Tindall began to work for the District government. He was for several years secretary of the Board of Commissioners, serving the first Board of Commissioners in that capacity. Advancing years and his own desires brought about his relief from that job and he now is in charge of the District Bureau of Information. He is the author of several pamphlets and books on the history of the District and is engaged in the preparation of a larger volume, despite his advancing years and the absence of actual need to force him to work.

Where Good Peaches Go

IT has been said by a whimsical international wit that when a good American dies he goes to Paris. In all truth, many Americans who have gone to Paris to live have become only memories here.

But where do the good peaches go?

We know where a lot of them go—the finest downiest, rosiest peaches that ever grew in a Southern orchard. When they are ripened just to the proper point they go into freezers filled with purest, richest Southern milk and cream, to become delicious parts of

The Velvet Kind
Fresh Peach Ice Cream

If you can think of any more desirable fate for the most tempting peach, we cannot. Consider the thousands of people to whom this Fresh Peach Ice Cream will bring comfort and joy. You should be one of them this very evening! And we mention Peach in passing as only one of the many succeeding flavors.

Made in immaculate sanitary plants, managed and manned by an efficient personnel—every ingredient of best obtainable quality.

Southern Dairies never stops at half measures in foraging the whole South for its prize products to be incorporated in the popular seasonal flavors of The Velvet Kind—the finest berries, fruits, nuts the land produces, and all those caterer's delicacies that are introduced in noggs and frozen puddings when the Autumn logs are lighted.

From its intimate touch with literally hundreds of communities through the South, this organization is able to draw upon the entire resources of this unequalled section to make ice cream for your own particular enjoyment.

This is ice cream making reduced to a science and elevated to an art. Again we submit a De Luxe Pint Package of Fresh Peach Ice Cream, is positive proof of Where Good Peaches Go.

Chief of Staff Post Is Topic Of Discussion

Social Circle Wondering Who Is to Succeed Gen. Summerall.

By JEAN ELIOT.

WITH Gen. Charles P. Summerall's tour of duty as chief of staff, U. S. A., due to end in November, there is considerable speculation as to who will be named to succeed Maj. Gen. Preston Brown as deputy chief of staff, for this may well be a stepping stone to the Army's blue ribbon post. Due for foreign service, Gen. Brown has been detailed to command of the Panama Canal department, his orders to be effective in October, and will succeed Maj. Gen. Malin Craig, who will take over command of the Eighth Corps Area, with headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

The reappointment of Gen. Summerall would be received with enthusiasm in Washington, where he and Mrs. Summerall are extremely popular, but among Army big-wigs it is conceded that this move is not probable since the general is nearing retirement age. Two distinguished general officers, who might well be considered, Maj. Gen. Hanson Ely and Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, are said to be out of the running, the one because he is too old, and the other because he is too young. Gen. Ely will retire before long, but Gen. MacArthur is still well on the sunny side of fifty.

However, several officers who are well known and particularly well liked in Washington are discussed as being possibilities for the post of chief of staff, among them Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, Maj. Gen. Fox Conner and Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy. Gen. William D. Connor is now in command of the Army War College, and both Gen. Nolan and Gen. McCoy have had tours of duty in Washington from time to time. Indeed, Gen. McCoy was here for months serving with an international boundary commission before he went South to take command of the Fourth Corps area, and he and Mrs. McCoy made their home at the picturesque little bachelor club in H street, which has played so important a part in the scheme of things social in Washington. It was Gen. McCoy who supervised elections in Nicaragua after the revolution and he has had a varied and interesting career, including brilliant service with the A. E. F.; a period as director general of the Red Cross and earlier duty as aid to President Roosevelt and to the late William Howard Taft when he was Secretary of War.

Gen. Nolan, now in command of the Fifth Corps area, with headquarters at Columbus, Ohio, also had a distinguished war record, winding up as chief of the Intelligence Service of the A. E. F. In England he is "Sir Dennis Nolan," having been decorated after the war with an order involving a title, so the name "Lady Nolan," by which Mrs. Nolan has been affectionately known for years, now has justification in fact.

Numerous officers for whom Washingtonians have an affectionate regard have been involved in recent Army orders, notably Maj. Gen. John L. Hines and Lieut. Col. H. Conger Pratt, who has been appointed Assistant to the Chief of the Army Air Corps, with rank of brigadier general, to succeed Brig. Gen. Frank P. Lahm. Gen. Hines, once Chief of Staff, who has been in San Francisco commanding the Ninth Corps Area, will go to the Philippines in the fall relieving Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who, in turn, will take command of the Ninth Corps Area.

Col. and Mrs. Pratt are now stationed in Honolulu, the colonel being air officer of the Hawaiian Department, and her sister, Mrs. Ord Preston, of Washington, with her sons, is en route to Hawaii to visit them. Not only have the Pratts been frequently stationed here, but Mrs. Pratt spent much of her girlhood in Washington. She was formerly Miss Sadie Murray, daughter of the late Maj. Gen. Arthur Murray and granddaughter of the late Gen. Rene de Russy. It is probable that when Col. Pratt assumes his new duties in the fall he will go to Wright Field at Dayton, Ohio, to have charge of the Army Air Corps materiel division.

Commander Paul Duban To Enjoy Furlough.

With the return of Commander Louis Sable, naval attache of the French Embassy, Commander Paul Duban, assistant naval attache, will start on his vacation. Accompanied by Mme. Duban he will go to New York Friday and will sail for France on Saturday on the S. S. de Grasse. Commander and Mme. Duban will remain in France for the next three months, returning to Washington in the autumn.

J. A. Hinckleys Return From Honeymoon

Couple Now Established at New Residence on F Street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Arthur Hinckley have returned from their wedding trip and are at their new residence, 2029 F street. Mrs. Hinckley was Miss Helen Robinson and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson. The marriage took place on June 14 at Mr. and Mrs. Robinson's country home at Herkimer, N. Y.

The Robinsons now have a double tie to bind them to Washington, where they made so many friends while Mr. Robinson was serving as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, for another son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. Blaise de Sibour, make their home here. Mrs. de Sibour was Miss Betsy Mary Robinson. Both the Robinson girls made their debut in Washington as well as in New York and when their younger sister, Miss Alida Robinson, reaches debutante age it seems probable that she, too, will have a taste of society in the Capital.

Representative and Mrs. B. Frank Murphy, of Ohio, are at the Hotel Brighton in Atlantic City, but will return to Washington late in the week before going to their home in Steubenville, Ohio.

Washingtonians Enjoy Baden-Baden Visit.

HAVE us call for your mattress in the morning and it will be made new and returned the same day.

Six hours of sleep will rest you more on your new mattress than eight hours on one that sags and keeps muscles tense and tired. You rest so perfectly that you will not mind the alarm clock's ring—the rooster crowing—the dog barking—the thud of the morning newspaper on the porch. Even the clatter of the milk wagon may be forgiven.

In a few hours' time we make a new mattress of old ones.

First, the mattress is sterilized—230 degrees of heat kills all germs. Then the felt or hair is cleaned and its buoyancy restored.

A charming new ticking is put on and you have a new mattress at a cost of $4.00 to $9.00.

For 30 years more people have used Colgate's than any other dentifrice ever made

FOR 30 years—toothpastes have come and gone. Now one springs up and bids for leadership . . . now another.

BUT today . . . as 30 years ago . . . and all the years between . . . Colgate's is the biggest seller.

THAT'S a fact worth pondering—and here are some facts—equally worth considering.

COLGATE'S has healthfully and completely cleansed more people's teeth than any other toothpaste the world has ever known.

COLGATE'S has done this for more years and more people than any other toothpaste ever made.

COLGATE'S has been more universally recommended by dentists than any other dentifrice ever made.

COLGATE'S is advised by leading authorities who have been retained to make analytical tests and render expert opinion. Such eminent authorities as Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Health of New York City, Dr. Hardee Chambliss, Dean of School of Sciences, Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., and others agree Colgate's has cleansing properties found in no other dentifrice.

COLGATE'S toothpaste costs as much to make as any toothpaste on the market. The large demand created over all these years has enabled the company to manufacture this superlatively fine product and to sell it for 25 cents.

THE price is important—but the quality, not the price, has held Colgate leadership for 30 years.

For 30 years—toothpastes have come and gone. Today—as 30 years ago—and all the years between—Colgate's is still the biggest seller.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

FAIRFAX CHAMBER ELECTS OFFICIALS

Edmund H. Allen Reelected as Head of County Trade Body.

MAN HELD IN ROBBERY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 248, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, was reelected president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting in the auditorium of the Annandale School. He is the second person to be reelected for two terms as president of the chamber since its organization. Since Mr. Allen was elected president for the first time last year, the membership of that organization has been increased almost 100 per cent. At the present time there are more than 400 persons from Fairfax and nearby counties and cities on its rolls.

It was brought out at the Annandale meeting that under President Allen's regime the following projects sponsored by the chamber have been accomplished: An office of the chamber has been established at Fairfax and a full-time secretary employed, a new crossing over the railroad at Springfield built by the county, a number of road projects completed or under construction, the best known of which is the elimination of the Snake Hill and the Gum Springs Curve on the Washington-Richmond highway; a tax levy for county-wide fire protection, and the Potomac River Commission authorized by the last State Legislature to cooperate with the other States in the possible development of hydroelectric power at Great Falls.

President Allen addressed the meeting, thanking the members for their confidence in him. He also praised the members and the various committees and the Fairfax County officials for their excellent cooperation during the last year in the many projects sponsored by the chamber. Other officers elected at the meeting were Edward C. Gibbs, of Mount Vernon, first vice president, to succeed Martin T. Webb, of Annandale. (Mr. Gibbs has served two terms as president and has been one of the most active members of the chamber since its organization.) William J. Cleveland, of Seminary, was reelected second vice president; Crockett C. Carr, of Legato, was reelected secretary, and Robert R. Buckley, of Clifton, treasurer. Mr. Buckley has held this office continuously since the founding of the chamber.

The following directors were also elected: J. W. Cox, of Mount Vernon District; Miss Ludema Sayre, of Centerville District; Mrs. G. Ashley Money, of Dranesville District; Benjamin J. Nevitt, of Lee District; W. J. Cleveland, of Falls Church District, and J. A. Beattie, of Providence District. The following directors at large were reelected: Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, and Merton E. Church, of Falls Church.

Preceding the election of officers much time was devoted to the discussion of the question of the most suitable location for the proposed vocational high school for Fairfax County. Representatives of the various communities addressed the meeting, urging that the school be located in their locality. Those speaking on the subject were Mason Hirst and Martin T. Webb, of Annandale; Arthur H. Buell and George F. Harrison, of Herndon; John Rooney, of Forestville, and Franklin Williams, of Vienna. No action was taken on this question by the chamber at this time.

The chamber was informed that the special committee of the county board of supervisors and the school board will hold a meeting at Fairfax Saturday morning, at which time the public has been invited to attend and express their views on the question of locating the proposed vocational school in the county.

John Rooney, a member of the water power development committee, spoke on the importance of cooperating with the Potomac River Commission. He urged that the other trade bodies of Virginia and Maryland get behind the movement started by the Fairfax chamber for the hydro-electric development of Great Falls under the State's supervision. He stated that he believed that great commercial developments would take place in this section of the State if electric power could be furnished to the consumer at a low cost, which is possible under the proposed water power development. The chamber instructed the members of the water power committee to bring this question to the attention of the trade bodies and chambers of commerce in the surrounding territory.

The highway committee reported several projects under way by the county and State forces. These will be completed before winter. On the invitation of George K. Pickett, of Groveton, the August meeting of the chamber will be held in the schoolhouse at Groveton, with the Groveton Community Club acting as hosts.

Leonard Frye, 19, of Alexandria, is in the Fairfax County jail charged with breaking into and robbing the gasoline filling station of Charles Crump, on the Washington-Richmond highway, just south of Alexandria. Frye was arrested Tuesday evening by State Prohibition Inspector Virgil Williams, at the instigation of Crump. It is claimed that Frye made a confession of the robbery and also admitted that he had broken into and robbed the store on four other occasions. Frye, who was recently released from jail for a robbery committed in Alexandria, has been suspected by the county police, who had been on the lookout for him since the robbery last week.

The Vienna Council, No. 12, Order of Fraternal Americans, which is celebrating its thirty-fourth birthday, has elected Howard King as president; E. E. Eldridge, vice president; Leonard Frenzal, marshal; Aubrey Pearson, warden; Robert Porch, inner guard; Donald Frenzal, outer guard, and L. B. Trammel, chaplain. The other officers—George W. Darne, recording secretary; Charles Jones, financial secretary, and Treasurer Lloyd E. Wright—were elected at the December meeting.

The members of the Episcopal Sunday School at Falls Church will hold their annual picnic today at Great Falls. The picnic is in charge of Gordon Nicolson, superintendent of the Sunday school.

The Annandale Boy Scout Troop committee will meet this evening to make plans for the troop's anniversary celebration tomorrow and Saturday at Annandale. William L. Leitch, of Alexandria, scout executive for northern Virginia, will have the management of the program.

Invitations have been sent to all the scout troops in northern Virginia asking them to take part in the Annandale rally. The local troop is planning to camp out tomorrow night on the school grounds and will act as hosts and entertainers to the scouts from other sections.

Elkwood Train Victims Will Be Buried Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., July 9.—Both victims of the grade crossing accident at Elkwood last night will be buried at Elkwood tomorrow, the funeral of Ernest C. Smith, 30, being set for 3 o'clock, and that of his 7-year-old nephew, John Donald Smith, being at 1.

Ernest Smith, a merchant of Elkwood, was instantly killed when his car was struck by a fast freight train on the crossing and the boy was so badly injured that he died in the Fauquier County Hospital early this morning.

TAX RATE BELIEVED SAFE FOR THIS YEAR

Increase Looms in Future if $9,500,000 Sum by U. S. Is Not Forthcoming.

ESTIMATE TASK RUSHED

The District estimates for 1932 will be fixed at an amount which will use the estimated revenues for 1932 plus a $9,500,000 Federal appropriation, the District Commissioners have decided.

This means that the estimates which will be submitted soon to the Budget Bureau by the Commissioners will contemplate a maintenance of the $1.70 per $100 tax rate on tangible personal and real property.

The Commissioners will formally fix the tax rate for the current fiscal year within the next few days. They have not been especially worried about the delay in announcing the tax rate for the current year because they regard it as being generally accepted that the rate will remain at $1.70 this year.

But there are several "ifs" about the 1932 estimates and the 1932 tax rate, the most important being the amount of the Federal appropriation. Assuming that the amount asked of the Budget Bureau is approved by that bureau and by Congress, it is likely that a higher tax rate may be necessary for next year unless Congress appropriates $9,500,000 out of the Federal Treasury.

The $9,500,000 has been taken by the commissioners as the basis on which they should figure the Federal appropriation which shall be available because, as one Commissioner puts it, that amount is "the latest expression on the subject by Congress."

Should Congress next year go back to the $9,000,000 it has appropriated in the last several years, or reduce the Federal appropriation below that point, it will mean that there will have to be an increase in the tax rate or that the estimates submitted by the Commissioners will have to be cut.

The Commissioners have been holding long sessions daily going over the estimates submitted by the various department heads and have almost completed their job. They went over school estimates yesterday with Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and other school officials, who presented them with additional requests to fill in what school authorities felt were discrepancies in the school program.

Cutting of the school estimates has not yet been undertaken by the Commissioners, who plan to confer again with school officials. Nor have they undertaken to cut the Park and Planning Commission and public buildings and grounds estimates. They want to hear Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d discuss his estimates in person. He is out of the city and will be heard on his return.

When these things have been done the Commissioners will go back over the estimates and, after studying the results of the cuts already made, will decide on several items in various departments which have been passed over for decision later.

About two-thirds of the cutting necessary to bring the total within estimated revenues and a $9,500,000 Federal appropriation has been done so far. The balance will have to be taken from schools, parks, and the items in the other departments which have been tentatively passed over.

Although the Budget Bureau had fixed July 15 as the date by which estimates had to be filed with it, the bureau has informed District officials that it is aware of the difficulties with which they have been confronted because of the fight over the appropriation act for this year and the consequent delay in its enactment and additional time will be allowed for filing District estimates. Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners, however, said that every effort would be made to get the estimates ready as near that date as possible.

Full-Time Health Work Sought in Hagerstown

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 9.—Following a visit here by Dr. R. H. Riley, of the State board of health, it was announced today that an effort will be made to have the United States Public Health Service furlough one of its health officers to Washington County to organize the full-time health department here.

The mayor and council and county commissioners recently approved the full-time health plan and are jointly contributing to its maintenance.

Gazley and La Sha Added to Air Force

Named to Engineering Section of Aeronautics Branch.

Richard C. Gazley and Stanley S. La Sha have been appointed chief and assistant chief of the engineering section of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, it was said yesterday by Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics. The two men have been consulting aeronautical engineers, having their offices in the Hill Building.

The previous incumbents, Kenneth M. Lane, who was chief, and Earl C. Friel, have both resigned to go into commercial aviation. The appointments will become effective August 1.

Both the appointees have served previously in the section, which has charge of the examination of designs for approval as to airworthiness.

ARLINGTON TO OPEN SCHOOL BIDS TODAY

Washington-Lee High Will Be Enlarged to Contain 32 Classrooms.

J. C. IVES I. O. O. F. HEAD

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Bids for enlargement of and alterations to the Washington-Lee High School, the specifications calling for the addition of 32 classrooms, will be opened at the courthouse today at 10:30 o'clock, according to an announcement made by County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp.

Mr. Kemp further stated that it is the hope of the County School Board that it will be in a position to award the contract not later than Saturday morning.

With the contract awarded on Saturday, Mr. Kemp stated that he hoped that work would be under way not later than July 15, that the building will be ready for the fall opening in September.

In addition to the opening of bids today, the school board will be prepared to distribute to contractors wishing them plans and specifications for the enlargement of school buildings at Aurora Heights, Lyon Park, Bon Air and Aurora Hills.

J. Claude Ives, of Clarendon, was installed as noble grand of Arlington Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F. at a largely attended meeting held last night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon. Other officers installed were Roy Leary, vice grand; Thomas S. O'Halloran, secretary; C. P. Heins, financial secretary; Walter Huffman, treasurer; C. F. Edwards, warden; J. W. Meyers, conductor; E. W. Newman, chaplain; R. P. Tucker, right supporter to noble grand; B. F. Wiltshire, left supporter to noble grand; W. E. Clever, right supporter to vice grand; H. P. Gaul, left supporter to vice grand; C. E. Powers, right scene supporter; W. E. Willis, left scene supporter; A. Jones, inside guardian; and George H. McCrillis, outside guardian.

The officers were installed by Charles E. Butler, deputy grand master of Odd Fellows in Virginia, from Sarepta Lodge, at Alexandria.

Tomorrow night at the office of Judson Reamy, Clarendon avenue, the "Ball for Congress Club," recently organized in Clarendon Precinct No. 1, will hold a special meeting at which time plans will be perfected for the carrying on of an intensive campaign in the interest of State Senator Frank L. Ball, of Arlington County.

Supporters of Senator Ball, one of five candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Eighth Congressional District, announced last night the organization of two additional "Ball for Congress Clubs." One at East Falls Church, with the election of J. V. Turner as president, and another at Lyon Park, with the election of Thomas R. Mechem as president.

The presidents of these two new clubs will appoint their own committees and workers to assist in carrying on the work in their respective districts.

The Cherrydale Council, No. 11, Daughters of America, will hold its monthly meeting in the Rucker Building at Clarendon tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The council will have as its guests at this meeting State and national officers.

During June there was a total of 348 deeds recorded in the county clerk's office, according to the monthly report released yesterday. The tax to the State amounted to $1,054.72.

Other items included in the report are: Wills and administrations, six, State tax, $27.50; chancery suits, seven, State tax, $10.50; actions at law, sixteen, State tax, $17; fines collected during the month for violations of the prohibition law amounted to $635, with costs amounting to $771.25; fines in cases other than prohibition were $173, with the costs totaling $258.

Delinquent real estate taxes collected during the month going to the State treasurer amounted to $45.87. The amount collected which goes into the county treasury totaled $282.86.

During the month there were 22 marriage licenses issued.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its first anniversary meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club. The newly elected president, A. F. Thelander, will preside. All members are requested to attend, as a special program has been arranged by the committee on entertainment.

With the installation of the equipment, costing $7,500, for the new Clarendon Postoffice having started yesterday, the building, which is located at the intersection of Wheeler avenue and Wilson boulevard, will be ready for the Postoffice Department on Tuesday, July 15, according to schedule, J. E. Spaulding, owner of the building, announced last night.

The building, which is a two-story structure, will in addition to housing the postoffice have two storerooms and office rooms on the second floor. The building, which is of stone construction, has been erected under the direct supervision of Arthur C. McMillan, builder and contractor, of Arlington County.

The plans and specifications were prepared by A. F. Thelander, architect. The building cost $80,000, exclusive of fixtures.

The Arlington Community Vacation Church School closes a three weeks' session tomorrow. Commencement exercises will be held in the Arlington Methodist Episcopal Church Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Following the exercises there will be a picnic lunch on the church grounds.

The total enrollment during the term was 70 pupils in the three departments, with Mrs. Dove as head of the junior department; Mrs. Wolf, the primary department, and Miss Simmonds, the beginners' department.

According to an announcement made last night by John R. Mossburg, general chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the annual convention and jubilee of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association, there will be a special meeting of the committee held tonight in the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall. All members of the committee are asked to attend this meeting.

Midshipmen End Month in Air Work.

Annapolis, Md., July 9 (Special).—The new second class of midshipmen at the academy today completed its first month of preliminary aviation instructions. The class, which has numbered 461 members, was reduced by one member today when H. B. Severs, of Owensboro, Ky., had his resignation accepted and departed for home.

Democrats Unopposed In Hardy County Voting

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 9.—Not a single member of the Republican party in Hardy County, in the eastern end of this section, is anxious to run for office in the November election.

The time for the filing of candidacies expired a few days ago, and, although offices to be filled include those of prosecuting attorney, county commissioner, county superintendent of schools, seats on the board of education in several districts and delegates to the Legislature, no job will be contested by the G. O. P. There are several contests for nomination within the ranks of the Democratic party.

BOOK ON ROOSEVELT UNDERGOES CHANGE

Story of Hostess' Alleged Ruse Deleted From Wister Volume.

LIBEL WARNING IS MADE

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—The New York Times says today that fear of a possible libel suit over one of the incidents related in Owen Wister's new book, "Theodore Roosevelt, the Story of a Friendship, 1880-1919," was the cause of its temporary withdrawal by the publishers, MacMillan & Co., last month.

Copies of the book, which had been distributed in advance of the date of publication, were recalled by MacMillan with no explanation other than it was made necessary by "circumstances beyond their control."

The Times says the story which led to the recall purported to tell of a ruse used by a hostess in a Southern city by which she succeeded in inducing Mr. Roosevelt to enter her home while he was a visitor in the city to the great vexation of other ambitious hostesses.

Mr. oosevelt, according to Mr. Wister's story, was much displeased when he learned several months later, that he had been imposed upon.

After advance copies had been distributed, the Times says, there were intimations of a libel suit. Mr. Wister was abroad. The publishers consulted their attorneys, then recalled the advance copies and waited until Wister could be reached.

The objectionable passages were deleted.

Hagerstown Apartment Damaged by Flames

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 9.—The rear of the Wayne Apartments were damaged by fire here this afternoon, entailing a loss of about $5,000. The fire is beleived to have started in a waste paper basket on the ground floor. The flames sweeping up the chute, the kitchens and porches of the apartments were destroyed by the flames, but the main apartment building was not damaged.

Apples Inspected In Eastern Panhandle

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 9.—Federal inspection of early summer apples is being offered Eastern Panhandle growers this year for the first time, it was announced today by B. Woods Rannells, who is organizing the service, and who will be in charge until J. J. Gardner, Federal inspector, and H. B. Davis, representing the State service, arrive later. Inspection work has been normal during the production season.

Civil Service Aid Ends 37-Year Job

J. G. Yaden Presented With Chair by Colleagues in Bureau.

James G. YaYden, chief of the examining division of the United States Civil Service Commission, yesterday presented a chair to James J. Kemp, who retired yesterday after 37 years of service with the Government. Mr. Kemp has been, for a number of years, an examiner in Mr. Yaden's division.

Civil Service Commissioner George C. Wales spoke briefly during the presentation ceremonies, commenting on Mr. Kemp's long and faithful servitude. Chief Commissioner Thomas E. Campbell was also present.

Mr. Kemp began his official connection when he became attached to the Railway Mail Service in 1891. Two years later he was transferred to the commission, with which he has been ever since.

SPIRITED BIDS LOOM ON COURTHOUSE JOB

At Least 33 Contractors Have Entered Contest for Montgomery Work.

WALSH TO MAKE SPEECH

Montgomery County officials are well satisfied with the prospects for spirited bidding on the contract for the construction of Montgomery County's new $400,000 courthouse. They point out that the unusual interest shown by contractors is a sign of the good standing of the county in the financial world as well as with the building trades.

According to a certified report presented to Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners, by the architects of the new courthouse, Smith & Edwards, of Washington, there have been 33 contractors who have paid the $25 necessary to obtain copies of the plans and specifications of the courthouse upon which bids are to be based. This is considered an unusually large number of contractors to become interested in a single job.

Bids for the construction work will be opened July 16 at the office of the Montgomery County Commissioners in Rockville. It is expected that more bids will be received between now and that time.

Mr. Clark has issued a notice to members of the courthouse building committee and all subcommittees to sit with the county commissioners and counsel to the county commissioners at the time of opening bids.

It is hoped to have actual construction work started this summer. The square west of the present courthouse has practically been cleared and very little work remains on this part of the undertaking. Work is being carried on now of removing several buildings on the block.

Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, is scheduled to be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Catholic Evidence Guild of St. Martin's Catholic Church, Gaithersburg, Tuesday evening. There also will be other addresses.

George T. Leiter, 48 years old, and Mrs. Mabel Chapman Leiter, both of Hagerstown, Md., were married for the second time yesterday by the Rev. Bertram Osgood, of Rockville, at the Baptist Church parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Leiter had been divorced, they told the deputy clerk in obtaining a license to rewed, but had decided the divorce was a mistake and so decided to give marriage another trial.

Two suits for divorce were filed yesterday in circuit court at Rockville.

Patrick A. Sugrue, of Montgomery County, asks an absolute divorce from Mrs. Helen R. Sugrue, whose last address is given as Gallatin street near Sixth street northwest, alleging desertion. Through Attorney Robert Peter, jr., the husband states that the marriage took place January 7, 1908, at Alexandria, Va., and that there are two children, both of age.

Mrs. Carroll LaRue Shields, of Boyds, Md., asks for a limited divorce from Charles Lester Shields, alleging extreme cruelty. Through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville, the wife alleges that she was beaten on numerous occasions and that the husband ordered her from their home March 25, 1930, and told her that he would not live with her any longer. The husband earns a salary of $60 a month.

The wife asks permission to resume her maiden name, Carroll LaRue Norris, and permanent alimony. The couple was married July 5, 1917. Six children, the result of the union, are all deceased.

tobacco will be eliminated from British trade.

"We saw much fine tobacco from the colonies," he said, but manufacturers everywhere unhesitatingly said that they can use only a limited quantity of it as the trade demands the Virginia product and is satisfied with no other."

Mr. Parrish is vice president of the State Port Authority of Virginia, of which J. Gordon Bohannan, president of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the party, is chairman. They plan to draft a report to the authority based on their studies of English ports. Thirty-eight towns and cities were visited, including all the great seaports, under the auspices and at the invitation of the three leading British trade organizations. More than 100 addresses were delivered by the Virginians, urging the use of Hampton Roads, especially for imports.

TWO FROM CAPITAL TO MAKE COURT BOW

Mrs. Roy Baker and Miss Lee Washington Will Be Presented.

FINAL FETE OF SEASON

London, July 9 (A.P.).—Eight American girls and women are among those who will be presented at the last royal court of the London season tomorrow night. It was still unknown tonight whether King George would be allowed to take his place beside the queen in the throneroom; his rheumatism, which caused cancellation of his presence at last month's court, perhaps will keep him away again.

The Americans who will be presented tomorrow night are:

Miss Lee Washington, of Washington, D. C.

Miss Justine Townsend, of New York.

Miss Elizabeth Wurtz, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Roy Baker, of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Nathaniel Davis, of Princeton, N. J.

Mrs. Samuel Meek, of New York.

Mrs. B. B. Moon, of Indianapolis.

Mrs. W. K. Botsford, of New York.

They will be presented by Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the American Ambassador.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IF the listener who is inclined to turn on his speaker too loud will exercise a little common sense and tone it down, Maj. Pratt will not have the slightest difficulty enforcing the new antinoise law.

We believe, in many cases, the trouble is caused by thoughtlessness, or persons not realizing how far the sound of a radio carries, and that a hint to the wise will be sufficient.

The radio audience has become fed up with the continual plugging of talkie song releases discovered by Freddie Rich, orchestra leader.

Contending that the present liquor laws are directly responsible for the wave of crime, Thomas R. Keith, of Fairfax, candidate for Congress in the Virginia Democratic primary, will give his reasons tonight why the Volstead act should be repealed (WJSV, 8:15 p. m.).

YIELDING to a complaint printed in these columns Monday that the station had withdrawn the serial drama at its most exciting part, word comes from K. H. Berkeley, manager of WRC, that "Mystery House" will be resumed. However, not on Thursday, but next Sunday at 6:30 o'clock.

A feminine reader, I. W. P., writes: "Just as I was patting myself on the back because Rudy Vallee was to be on the air all summer, came the announcement that the Sunshine Hour will be discontinued while Rudy is barnstorming New England. If you know anything about a change in the plans, will you be kind enough to let me know?"

As far as we have been able to learn, Rudy Vallee will not be heard on the air during the coming six weeks summer period, unless it happens that he is playing a town from which he might broadcast his regular Saturday evening program of dance music.

The excitement of the first experiment having worn off, engineers are renewing their efforts to perfect methods of transmitting facsimile pages of ready-printed newspapers to ships at sea by radio.

At present it takes about 90 minutes to transmit a page. At that rate it would take about 30 hours, or a part of two days, to transmit a 20-page newspaper, which is the average size of The Post.

Another compliment for Herluf Provensen, announcer for Station WRC, has been received by this column. The listener expressed the opinion that his work compares favorably with that of the late John B. Daniel, when here at WRC.

FANS were caught in a jam at 6 o'clock last night as to what to tune in on, the Crockett Mountaineer wedding, or to hear whether Henry Van Porter was going to get the $75 which Amos had drawn from the bank.

The wedding was the real thing and probably the first time in radio history a hillbilly orchestra tried to play the Lohengrin wedding march. There was a slight break in the bride's voice as she acknowledged her vows, but otherwise the ceremony proceeded without a hitch.

For a time the affair was solemn, like any other wedding, and we imagine a trifle weepy, but with the the hillbillies playing "Turkey in the Straw" things were soon back to normalcy.

For the benefit of those who missed Amos 'n' Andy, it seems in the excitement of the argument between Van Porter and the Kingfish the night before the former departed forgetting to collect the $75 from Amos.

So last night the boys went over to Van Porter's to give him the money. Van Porter, caught asleep, with shoes off and holes in his sox, was nevertheless "charmed" to see them. As the scene closed Amos was counting out the money, but had not yet given it to him.

Amos n' Andy will leave Chicago in a private car tomorrow night for Hollywood to begin making their talking picture. It is expected they will stop off en route so as not to miss their Saturday night broadcast.

Jane Interprets the MODE

A chic black satin dress with the fashionable touches of white at the neck, lining the cuffs and the flower at the waist. (Courtesy of Tollman, Paris.)

Paris, July 9.

DON'T overlook the practicability of the sleeveless crepe de chine or georgette dress with its matching long-sleeved jacquette. Its practicability lies in its versatility—that's a mouthful, but it is exactly what I mean. Because even in the cities on very warm days it is permitted to wear a sleeveless dress, although, of course, it is more what one expects and should see out of town. Then comes a slightly cooler day, and the jacquette slips on even as the evening jacquette is now worn to give the formal evening gown less formality and give its wearer fewer chills.

If you don't care about wearing sleeveless frocks in town, as, indeed, I do not myself, then your sleeveless dress with its jacquette is a smart street or afternoon ensemble, depending upon its material, and by the simple removing of the jacquette is a dress for week-ends or a vacation in the country.

A one-piece dress without something removable about it which changes its appearance is almost unknown these days. And the trickiness of the designs seems to be especially in sleeves or no sleeves—if the dress has no sleeves the jacquette has some; if the dress has sleeves, the jacquette is either sleeveless or with large three-quarter sleeves. Interesting, isn't it?

Have the kiddies got plenty of summer togs? If they have, you, of course, won't be interested in the illustrated leaflet I made for you this week, telling you how to make practical and cunning vacation togs—for sonny as well as for little sister, too. But, then, maybe it wouldn't be such a bad idea to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this leaflet, because you might just miss the announcement of a similar leaflet next summer, and these little garments are guaranteed not to go out of style while kids are kids.

* * * *

Cleverly thought out touches of white gave it its individuality, this very smart black satin Tollman dress. Nothing so obvious as a white collar! But a black collar edged in white, a tie that was lined in white, and a white flower at the waist. And for further trimming the reverse side of the satin used for the bolero-like drape on the blouse, and a skirt incrustation. And, oh, yes, I almost forgot about the sleeve being lined with white!

Mode Primer.

Are you going yachting? Don't sniff; you might get an invitation 'most any day—and what the heck woud you do about it?

Well, light-weight flannel, or shantung or tussor pajamas; yachting pajamas, of course, have quite taken the place of the pleated skirt that one used to wear, although the upper part of the costume is still very middy-like as before.

For hats you had best have a very large straw, for when you are yachting in the harbor, and small woven berets in different colors when the wind blows. And, of course, a warmish sort of a flannel topcoat. This is only for pretty cold sailing, of course; otherwise the little navy or French blue double-breasted jacket with the brass buttons fastening it, just like all of the handsome pursers on transatlantic liners always wear, will do.

If you have brown eyes and dark hair, or brown eyes and blonde hair, or blue eyes and dark hair, sit down right this minute and address another letter to the Dare Departmnet of The Washington Post for a leaflet telling you what type you are and what colors you should wear. They're basic color suggestions, you see, and, using them as a guide, you can always choose the right colors for yourself. Don't forget to send us an extra letter for this, so that our dear, delightful editor can see how popular we are.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me why the leaves fall off the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. Even the buds are now beginning to drop. I keep the plant in a window where the sun shines on it from 11 a. m. until 5 p. m. and water it thoroughly every day. MRS. S. C. H.

Whenever a begonia loses its leaves or buds it is due to too much or too little sun, too much or too little water and not enough fresh air. Your plant will do better on the porch at this time. Choose a place where it will not be in direct sun. A begonia does better in real shade than in a place that is too sunny. It really should have the early morning sunshine. The roots must be kept moist at all times. If, after a month's trial in the open, the plant continues to drop its leaves it should be cut back to the roots and be permitted to send forth new growth.

My wife contends that I should not cut our grass until it gets very high, claiming that I expose the roots too much by close cutting and that it will burn up when the summer really comes in August. I have the impression that by constantly being cut the grass becomes thicker. Am I right? J. R. T.

Landscape architects suggest that a fall-sown lawn will hardly stand in need of mowing the same season. If the seeding was done this spring, you should not cut it until the blades are about three inches high; in other words, until they are tall enough to reach between the knives of the mower.

The first cutting should be left on the ground to act as a mulch. After the grass has commenced to grow freely, it should be cut once in ten days and also rolled. In the first season the grass will not be rooted very firmly and the pulling of the knives of the mower will not tend to help things along. For this reason it is well to see that the knives of the mower are set high and keep the grass about two inches long during the entire season. In extreme hot weather the cutting may be lighter; rolling would be of more service. As the fall approaches, the mowing machine may be set to cut closer than it was in the summer, but cutting should cease in the middle of September.

Mowing is necessary, as it keeps the grass from going to seed. The prevention of seeding encourages vigorous growth, which means abundant foliage and a bright, healthy color. Nothing will work greater injury than seed formation. It exhausts the plant, and with many of the grasses which are included in lawn mixtures will invariably result in their dying out.

Please tell me the names of the inclosed specimens. MRS. J. G. W.

The small leaf is from a species of begonia. The larger leaves resemble the leaves of a black birch.

Please tell me the trouble with the inclosed geranium leaves. The plants from which these leaves were taken were all greenhouse grown. Also, tell me how to overcome this condition. NEIL W.

It may be a case of too much water or too rich soil. I know of a collection of very fine geraniums that suddenly began to turn yellow. The florist who owned the plants was a man of wide experience. He knew that the amount of water they were receiving and their location was of the best, so he repotted the plants, using less fertilizer. In a short time the plants had completely recovered.

Please tell me what to do to make my lovely white narcissus bloom. I have moved them twice. They come up abundantly. FANNIE E. G.

Try incorporating some bonemeal with the soil. Scatter a sufficient quantity over the soil to whiten it. Make two such applications, one at this time and a second one in August.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Compromising Conduct.

DEAR Miss McDonald: Is it ever permissible for a wife to allow a certain limited amount of love making on the part of another man just to prevent unpleasant relations that would affect the husband's business? I have been very strictly trained in such matters, and I am hoping to be able to stretch a point just temporarily during the stay in this city of a certain man who has helped my husband before and is going to do so again. We have had an awful time financially the past year. In fact, I do not know what will happen if this man does not come to the rescue with the business we are counting upon. However, when he was here before, he was always scheming to get near me, and it made me terribly uncomfortable. This is not imagination on my part, as he told another man I was a "knockout" but "did not seem to know it." Of course, my husband does not know of this remark, and the man who told me only did so to warn me, as he said my husband's business friend was "a prince among men but a devil among women." He is due here next month, and my husband is just counting the days till he arrives. So am I, but for a very different reason.

He is a man about 50; very attractive except for this one thing. He is jolly and generous. A wonderful companion, yet every one says the same thing of him—that he has no respect for a woman, and believes that every woman expects the same thing, and is disappointed if she does not get it. Now I want no love except my own husband's. I do not want to be a "knockout" to any man but him. However, I would rather put up with a moderate amount of this man's antics than have any trouble with him. Could such a "compromise" be accomplished without leading to further complications. WIFE.

Any "compromise" that involves a woman's integrity is unthinkable always. And in your case it is entirely unnecessary.

Just calm yourself, for I assure you this world is full of men "about 50" who act as this one does, solely because they are sincere in their regrettable conviction that women do expect to be made love to by any man who happens along, and the reason they believe as they do is that so many women are, like yourself, ready to temporize, and to compromise, and what is a man to think?

There are very few dyed-in-the-wool villains prancing around, but just thousands of men ready to grasp at any thrill that comes their way. I want to be shown any civilized man of breeding who will make love to another man's wife if she is sincerely intelligent and convincingly unwilling.

The trouble with most women is that they do not know how to control a situation. If the man leads, then there is likely to be love-making. This is natural, for men have a thousand interests—but only one in common with women. So a man left at a loose end will turn to the personal as the surest way to get the woman's interest, and in many instances as the only way to converse with her in terms within her understanding.

The clever woman is made love to only when she wishes to be. She can so handle a conversation that the man would feel an utter idiot to inject the personal, and she can do so in such a way that he would be the last in the world to suspect her evasion.

But when a woman sits fidgeting and wondering just what he is going to do, whether he will kiss her or carry her off to his cave, you can't blame the man for deciding the poor little soul would welcome a little excitement. It is just as simple for a man to make love as to make conversation.

Stop expecting the worst of this man and expect the best. Regard him as a man instead of a hooded monster. Talk of him as one intelligent being to another, or go visit your grandmother during his stay. These tales about men who are "devils" are sickening. Pay no attention to them. Men classify women as inteligent, moron or weak. The intelligent ones understand men, and men understand them. The morons fear and love men but never understand them, and usually do anything a man happens to suggest. It is simpler than objecting. The weak ones are often intelligent, know what they should do, but can't do it. This type keep men from being bored, because they keep them wondering why women do not have more character. It is this intelligent weak woman who causes men to believe women expect to be insulted and imposed upon.

Pick your classification, my dear, and always remember the masculine judgment of a woman allows for no "compromise." Man is color blind. He sees only black and white. He is not clairvoyant. He does not know that a woman's sole reason for "compromising" is to keep her husband's business afloat. He would still despise her even if he knew. A woman can be a charming hostess and a satisfying companion and retain a man's respect, and his lifelong friendship, too. It is only when she becomes cheap that man hastens to cheapen her still further and dismisses her as one like the rest.

Respect a man as a man and he will respect you as a woman.

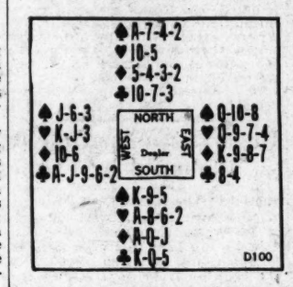
WORK ON BRIDGE



The above hand was played in a game of Contract; South bid two No Trumps and North jumped to three on his Ace "and any other count"—two Tens in this case.

At Auction South would have obtained the contract with one No Trump.

West started by leading his fourth best Club and Declarer, with a somewhat disappointing dummy, could count upon two Spade tricks, one Heart, two Diamonds and one or two Clubs; he was sure of only six tricks and needed three more. One of these could be made by establishing a thirteenth Spade in dummy if the adverse Spades were divided 3-3; another by winning an extra Diamond if the King of Diamonds be with East and can be led through twice; and the third if the Club Ten can hold the first trick or if dummy duck the first trick and East play the Jack. The disconcerting odds against this triple good fortune did not deter Declarer from "playing for everything."

He saw that dummy's best play on the first trick was the Ten of Clubs both for the sake of getting an extra entry in the open hand and to ensure two Club tricks. When the Ten won, he tried the Diamond finesse; and when that also succeeded, two of the three needed pick-ups had come his way. Now he was assured of two Spades, one Heart, two Clubs and three Diamonds (unless West was holding up the King, which was not probable). With only one entry in dummy, establishing a fourth Diamond in that hand could not gain anything as it would necessitate leading the Ace and Queen of Diamonds; and that would involve losing a trick to the adverse King unless East had only two Diamonds and without the even split the thirteener could not be set up.

So the Declarer had to fall back on the Spade suit. He could lead the King and a small Spade to tricks 3 and 4, ducking in dummy; or he could lead a small Spade to trick 3 and duck. He adopted the former method and made game because of his good fortune in getting an even split of the adverse Spades.

When he told me about the hand he christened it nil desperandum.

Summer bridgers, get this valuable free new, twelve-page booklet, "Correct Bridge Play," a vacation time Guide Book of Auction and Contract laws clearly explained in nontechnical language and illumined with graphic examples by Milton C. Work, the world's preeminent authority on Bridge and chairman of the rules committee of the American Bridge League. This booklet will decide all the moot points and many important conventions so frequently discussed at Bridge parties. It is yours with the compliments of The Washington Post upon request accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed, return envelope. Address Milton C. Work in care of The Washington Post.

Boston Liberty League Rum Petition Is Filed

Boston, July 9 (A.P.).—The Constitutional Liberty League today filed at the statehouse a referendum petition containing 8,882 supplementary signatures, thus insuring placement on the ballot at the fall election of the question whether the State prohibition enforcement act shall be repealed.

Of the total number of signatures, 6,038 were those of women. League officials said the authenticity of each woman's signature had been passed upon by a handwriting expert in anticipation of possible claim of fraud. Only 5,000 signatures were necessary.

Midshipmen Leave Germany.

Kiel, Germany, July 9 (A.P.).—The warships of the American midshipmen squadron, Arkansas, Florida and Utah, started for Oslo, Norway, today. They were given a cordial farewell by the population of Kiel.

A Goofus Desire

(Suggested by C. M., Boston, Mass.)

For years I hoped that I might be Just like the Goofus Bird
Whose song throughout the summer months
Most everywhere is heard.
But now I've found the Goofus Bird
Just sings for fun—not pay;
Alas, as yet I can't do that,—
Perhaps some day I may!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF July 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 1:30 a. m., 4:30 p. m. to 6 p. m. and 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8 a. m., and 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.

Business depression is anticipated on this date, and Saturn may be blamed. Take care of the things in hand, and do not attempt a change, or to launch anything new. Do not place too much confidence in friends—you have some false ones.

The child born on this July 10 will have splendid ability, but its success will be impeded by adverse circumstances. It will be a natural history student, and will be interested in architecture. It will have a friendly disposition, and will make friends most readily.

You may be a wizard at figures, but you are no good at the arithmetic of life, which is well worth practicing. You are blindly thinking that you are hard done by as far as fate is concerned. You have never properly added up the good things that have come your way, without the asking; nor have you subtracted from the above what you are pleased to call your ill-luck. The result will show that you have nothing to complain of, and much to be thankful for. You do not realize that much of your life's debit side includes all the chances which you have thrown away. No one knows why you choose to be a "Calamity Jane," instead of a "Polly-Anna."

Your real physical ailments seldom receive sympathy or a proper diagnosis, as both friends and doctors privately call most of your illness neurosthenia, and you may even suffer from "hospital-itis," a most expensive malady. Your habit of exaggeration is a fatal one, and it grows upon you. You like to impress your audience with a real tale. Even white lies are not always harmless.

You seek wealth and position for the power they will give you. You live to have a whip hand over things. Your position in life will either be greatly advanced or injured through a love affair.

Succesful people born July 10: Sanford R. Gifford, landscape painter.

John W. Griggs, Attorney General under McKinley.

Clarence Urmy, poet.

Peter Finley Dunne, journalist.

John Calvin, religious reformer.

Albert Bigelow Paine, author and editor.

GANGLAND INQUIRY IN CHICAGO LAGGING

Writer Who Accused Reporters Denied Direct Trip to Grand Jury.

TORTURE DEN DOUBTED

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.).—Investigation of charges of racketeering among Chicago newspaper reporters, inspired by the assassination of Alfred Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, ran up against a stone wall today when the St. Louis Star held to its decision not to send its reporter to Chicago to divulge information unless he could go directly to a grand jury.

Harry T. Brundige, the St. Louis newspaperman, has offered to talk to the Cook County grand jury, but not to the prosecutors.

William A. Rittenhouse, assistant State's attorney, said the grand jury could not be burdened with rumors and that the reporter must show his hand.

"Brundige must go through the usual procedure before appearing before the grand jury," the prosecutor said. "He must first be questioned by a member of my staff to see if he has knowledge of violation of the criminal code. If he shows he has this knowledge, he will be taken before the grand jury in five minutes. It is a hard-working body and we can not burden it with rumors."

To this the St. Louis Star replied in an editor's note that in view of Rittenhouse's unwillingness to send Brundige before the jurors without preliminary questioning the newspaper regarded the incident as closed.

In his published articles Brundige had referred to the slain Tribune reporter as not the only Chicago newspaperman holding a questionable liaison with gangland.

Meanwhile there appeared no new development on the main track of the investigation into the slaying of Lingle just a month ago today.

An assistant State's attorney was en route to California to fight for custody of Frank Foster, gangster, who has admitted former ownership of the revolver found beside Lingle's body.

HUGE HAUL IS MADE IN HUDSON RIVER RAID

said. Four men dashed through the line of police and escaped.

The Halcyon, customs officials discovered, had been cleared out of Chicago for Nyack, N. Y., coming through the lakes and Erie Canal to Albany and on down the Hudson.

Prohibition Administrator McCampbell, elated at the success and extent of the seizure, expressed belief that the Halcyon had taken on its cargo at Chicago. He said all the men taken in the raid would be questioned closely to determine whether Chicago racketeers are extending their liquor-running into New York.

Loaded into one of their trucks and brought to New York, 22 of the alleged rumrunners were arraigned before a United States commissioner and released in bail.

All the men gave New York addresses, and Joseph Bedelle, 32, was pointed out by prohibition agents as the leader of the outfit. His bail was set at $10,000 and that of the others at $2,500 each.

Warrants were issued for five others, including Piscitelli and Arthur Schoenstad, listed on the Halcyon's papers as captain of the yacht. The owner of the vessel was not disclosed.

Well Water Flares Up; Found to Be Gasoline

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., July 9.—Cleveland Compton, of Culpeper, today drew a tub of water from his well and set it in the basement of his home. A little later some one lit a match, and the supposed water caught fire and blazed so rapidly that the house was threatened. The Culpeper Volunteer Fire Company extinguished the blaze, and examination showed that the so-called water assayed about 75 per cent gasoline.

One of those attracted to the fire drew several gallons from the well and put it in the tank of his car. It is thought that one of the many filling stations in Compton's neighborhood has a leaky underground tank which is discharging gasoline into the well.

Hyattsville Man Hurt In Tumble From Ladder

Serious injuries were received yesterday by Allen Duvall, 40 years old, of Hyattsville, Md., when he fell off a ladder while at work at Fifth street and Florida avenue northeast. At Casualty Hospital it was said he had suffered a fractured skull, a fracture of the right wrist, a dislocation of the right shoulder, and that his pelvis was possibly broken.

The man, an electrician, was standing on a ladder pulling wires through a tube when he fell.

Moonshiners Blamed For Mountain Blaze

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 9.—Moonshiners are blamed for starting a fire which burned over 200 acres of timberland on Sugar Loaf Mountain, in Frederick County, during the last two days. Part of an abandoned still and much mash was found at the scene where the fire started.

The moonshiners had dismantled part of the still, which had been removed. Fifty men fought the blaze before it was finally extinguished.

Sheriff Will Confront Robbed Farmer Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 9.—The much delayed interview between Sheriff Michael P. Carter and Clifton Borneman, 30, will take place tomorrow. Sheriff Carter has spent several days collecting information and will tomorrow confront the man who alleges that he was held up by four men and robbed of $340 and valuable letters after being attacked.

Reports that Borneman stated today that he could identify one of the four men who attacked him had not reached the sheriff.

Many Summoned In Election Inquiry

Senator Nye Signs Batch of Subpenas in Illinois Investigation.

(Associated Press.)

New subpenas were signed yesterday by Chairman Nye, of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee, calling for witnesses to appear at the hearings in Chicago next week on expenditures in the recent Illinois Republican senatorial campaign.

Pending service Senator Nye would not make public the list, but the batch of papers was quite thick, indicating a lengthy hearing.

Nye said the committee's investigators in Illinois have run into some "blind walls" and that one purpose of the hearings was to open up leads the investigators have not been able to develop.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, who won the senatorial nomination from Senator Deneen, has told the committee she spent $252,000 of her own money in the race. The committee wants to know how much more was spent in her behalf.

$6,000,000 Gift Barrier Removed

Brother Drops Attempt to Prevent Division of Hubert Riches.

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—The way was cleared today for distribution of the $6,000,000 which Conrad Hubert, flashlight manufacturer, left to educational and charitable institutions selected by a committee composed of former President Coolidge, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist.

Joseph Horwich, his brother, who received a bequest of $1,000,000, filed an application to withdraw his suit objecting to probate of Hubert's will. A clause had stated he was to forfeit the bequest if he contested the other provisions.

In a statement through his attorney, Horwich said he was withdrawing because of his sympathy with the charitable plans of his brother and because of the "great respect and admiration I hold for the committee." Thirty-three institutions have been selected to receive the money.

Interne Is Suspended After Patient's Death

New York, July 9 (N.Y.W.NS.).—Dr. William J. Eisen, an interne at Gouverneur Hospital, was suspended from his duties today pending further investigation into the death of Martin Lewison, a patient who died Tuesday while being forcibly fed.

According to a report made to Dr. J. G. William Greeff, commissioner of hhospitals, and an autopsy performed by Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, deputy chief medical examiner, Lewison died of asphyxiation while being fed. It was pointed out that forcible feeding is not an unusual procedure, and is followed invariably, where it is believed necessary to save the patient's life.

While State Department officials were not averse to discuss the minister's arrival and his loss, they declined to comment upon a report Mr. Hart made of his trip through Russia to his new post. His journey through that country was arranged by Boris E. Skvirsky, chief of the Soviet information bureau here.

Mr. Hart was transferred to Teheran from the ministerial post at Tirania, Albania.

Truckload of Beans Burned on Highway

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., July 9.—A North Carolina produce truck, heavily loaded with lima beans, ran wild on the Norfolk highway about 7 miles south of Petersburg early this morning and was destroyed by flames together with its cargo after a collision with a second produce truck. None of the four men on the trucks was injured.

The truck, laden with beans and bound for New York, it is said, was driven by Hank Marshburn and is owned by B. J. Sandlin, of Berkley, N. C., both of whom came to Petersburg police headquarters this morning and made a report of the accident. Sandlin's truck is said to have been struck from behind by a truck owned by H. F. Middleton, of Warsaw, and driven by Levi Moore, of Turkey, N. C.

Martinsburg Bakeries Reduce Bread 1 Cent

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 9. — A one-cent reduction in the price of standard 10-cent loaves of bread was made effective by retailers here today generally reflecting the baker's corresponding reduction.

Bakers said the reduction in the price of wheat made possible the cut. The saving applies to all loaves except those sliced at the bakery.

15-Year Hunt Ends In Slayer's Arrest

Prisoner Who Fled From Chain Gang Betrayed to Police Here.

The last chapter in a 15-year-old man hunt was written yesterday when Washington police arersted one Pinkney Saunders, alias Rogers Greenwood, Negro, and identified him as the man who escaped from a North Carolina deputy sheriff while he was en route to a chain gang to serve a life sentence.

Saunders, now a middle aged Negro, made a dare devil escape from custody following his conviction on a charge of murder. He successfully eluded the officers of the law so long that a feeling of security duued his wariness and police here picked him up.

The Negro was living on Canal street in Southwest Washington. He had been here for years, and had kept out of trouble. Then a "pal" from his home town saw him and notified the police. Police here have been asked to retain the Negro until the proper papers can be sent here for his extradition. He is charged with the technical "investigation" usually adopted for such cases.

Boy Hit by Automobile Is in Serious Condition

The condition of Donald McCubbin, 5 years old, of Mount Rainier, Md., remains unchanged at Providence Hospital, where he was taken Tuesday after being run over by an automobile near his home. His condition is serious, though his companion, another little boy, escaped with slight injuries.

Harvey Staley, of Mt. Rainier, who, police say, was the driver of the car which struck the children, was released on $500 bond.

18-ROOM GAMBLING HOUSE FALLS IN RAID

Dice, Hats and Garments Left as New York Detectives Batter Way In.

PARK AVENUE SETTING

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—A dapper young man who said his name was George Herrick, and a Negro who said he was William Sullivan, valet, were arraigned in magistrate's court today, charged with having maintained an eighteen-room gambling house, occupying the entire eighth floor of a Park avenue hotel.

Subsequently they were taken before the United States commissioner in Federal court. Police detectives said they found, in addition to cards and dice, liquor in the luxurious and extensive quarters. Herrick was held in $500 bail on the liquor charge for hearing July 23.

Gave Secret Pass-Word.

The raid was conducted last night by Detectives James Brady and Robert Morris, on a tip supplied by the undercover police. Brady said they walked right through the lobby of the hotel, gave a secret password to an elevator operator, and were taken immediately to the eighth floor.

There, in the foyer, he said, they found Herrick and Sullivan, and that Herrick sprang to the door leading into the big living room, locked it and threw the key out the window, while Sullivan let out a yell that could be heard a block away.

There was the sound of a big commotion beyond the locked door, Brady said, and by the time he forced his way in, the room was empty save for overturned tables with the conventional green baize tops, cards and dice, poker and roulette chips, and enough discarded hats and other garments to indicate that there must have been 60 or 70 persons present. They evidently escaped, he said, down inside fire escapes.

Herrick told police he was a broker, but the police said the stock exchange did not know him.

Wife-Beaters Warned Of Punishment by Whip

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 9.—Wife-beatings are becoming so frequent here Magistrate Richard Duffey has served warning upon all future offenders that the whipping post would be put into use again. The magistrate, promising that all husbands found guilty of beating their wives in the future could expect such a sentence, imposed a ten-day jail sentence upon Frank Kriner today. Mrs. Kriner, badly mauled, said she had been beaten thrice this week.

Method of Placing Service Men Told

Peters Describes Plan for Employment Drive to Lions Club.

New methods of the Department of Labor to secure employment for ex-service men were described to members of the Washington Lions Club meeting yesterday in the Hotel Mayflower by Robert J. Peters, of the United States Employment Service.

Since the first of this month more than 100 have been placed in the District of Columbia alone, Mr. Peters said. He explained that prospective employers within geographical areas covered by the department's branch offices were canvassed with a different appeal than had been followed sometimes to find work for veterans.

Employers are asked to give the men work if they have work and providing that the ex-service men are capable, according to Mr. Peters. He declared that the appeal carried with it no allusion to patriotic service and duty. Disabled men were sent out with a full statement of their disabilities and capacities for work. Mr. Peters predicted that this new activity would place a large number of unemployed ex-service men in gainful and pleasant work.

COAL CHIEFS AGREE ON CHECK-OFF PLAN

Anthracite Parley Goes On as Operators Give In to Miner Group.

30-YEAR PLAINT ENDED

New York, July 9 (NY.W.N.S.).—Having agreed to apply the check off for collection of union dues and assessments, the anthracite wage conference at adjournment today was seeking a name for the new baby.

"And name but check off," was the position of the operators. "Any name you wish so long as we get it," was the position of the miners.

Pending final decision, the official communique, issued by Secretary Chris J. Golden, termed it "an arrangement for collection of dues on a reasonable basis."

Concession of the principle represents abandonment of the 30-year theory of operators that it was not for their interest to "help the union build up a treasury with which to fight us," and recognition that anything that may make for stabilization in time of distress is good for everybody in it.

Previous to taking up the demand for cooperation in collection of dues, Thomas Kennedy, of the Miners, group, presented a digest of resolutions governing working conditions presented to the recent Hazleton convention. These included the perennial demand for elimination of the charge for compressed air, providing power drills and certain safety devices, and elimination of the practice of laying off maintenance men when miens may not be operated; and their replacement by foremen or 'white collar" employes.

Taken singly, none of these grievances is serious. None applies throughout the region. In the aggregate, however, they are serious in that they create much ill feeling and friction.

Application of the check-off principle will save local unions many thousands of dolars annually. Under the existing system it has been necessary to employ a large number of men for collection of dues. The existing system has also caused thousands of "button strikes," where, to enforce payment of dues, represented by a monthly button, collilieries have been held up some times for days by a few recolcitrants.

New Orleans Fireman Survives 12-Story Leap

New Orleans, La., July 9 (A.P.).—Given up for dead after a plunge from a 12-story window of a skyscraper, Bernard Getz, a city fireman on sick leave, was discovered breathing after reaching a hospital and tonight physicians had slight hope of saving his life.

Getz had gone to the office of the Veterans' Bureau in the building for examination. Suddenly he disappeared out of the open window. His body hurtled over the heads of pedestrians and crashed through the top of a parked truck. In an ambulance a physician pronounced him dead.

Recently he was released from the city hospital for mental diseases, and had expected to take treatment at a Government hospital.

Student Flier Is Killed As Plane Plunges to Bay

Oakland, Calif., July 9 (A.P.).—Alfred O. Smith, 47, weather aviation enthusiast and former automotive engineer of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., died today in the 3,000-foot plunge of his training plane into shallow water off Oakland airport.

Smith, an advanced student of an aviation school here, had taken off to practice tail spins. Twice he threw his plane into right spins and each time pulled out. Then he slipped into a fatal left spin. He wore a parachute, but did not try to use it.

Secretary of Highways Urged by Roads Group

Oklahoma City, July 9 (A.P.).—Creation of a cabinet post to be called secretary of highways and a further increase in Federal aid for good roads "on a continuing basis," as an investment proposition were advocated in resolutions adopted here today by the United States Good Roads Association in the closing business sessions of the organizations' eighteenth annual convention.

Charlotte, N. C., was chosen as the 1931 convention city and T. L. Kirkpatrick, of that city, was unanimously elected president of the organization for the ensuing year.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

W. CLYDE GARDNER, an experienced showman, on Monday of this week was appointed by Managing Director Hardie Meakin to the post of assistant manager of the Fox Theater, to succeed Carol F. Winchester, who left the Capital yesterday by motor to assume the corresponding position in the Fox house in Detroit, Mich.

When I conversed with Mr. Gardner at some length on Tuesday, I found him to be a clean-cut and impeccably groomed young man, of blonde complexion and agreeable manner, standing, I should say, some six feet in height.

He has learned his showmanship by beginning at the bottom and working his way up through every department of theater conduct. A native of Johnstown, Pa., Mr. Gardner surrendered to a yen for the theater while still at school and ushered for 50 cents a night. About midway of his college course at Penn, he left the university and accepted a position with the Harris interests in Pittsburgh, then controlling an extensive string of theaters. A little later he returned to his native city to take advantage of an offer from the Johnstown Amusement Co., a Keith affiliation, where he remained for seven years.

When the Fox Theater in Detroit was opened, Mr. Gardner was assistant manager under Jack Stebbins, formerly of Washington. He was transferred thence to the Fox in St. Louis and later back to Detroit, the Fox home office subsequently shifting him to their de luxe house in Brooklyn.

About two and a half months ago, this enterprising young executive left the Brooklyn Fox to assume the assistant managership of the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater in this city, which he now relinquishes to rejoin the Fox organization. This latest move is made, of course, with the full knowledge and sanction of John J. Payette, general manager, and the other local Warner executives, who are pleased at the opportunity to contribute to the advancement of a capable associate.

Mr. Gardner is unmarried and, I feel safe in predicting, will prove popular with the F street clientele. The best wishes of this column go with him to the new duties, which he assumes tomorrow.

In the recent death of Anders Randolf, both the stage and the screen lost an able character actor and the world a fine artist in both water colors and oils.

It was my privilege to meet "Andy" Randolf only once, at luncheon with Richard Barthelmess in the Lambs Club, New York, shortly after both had returned from making "The Bright Shawl," in Cuba, but I was impressed on that occasion by the many fine qualities in his nature that the screen never revealed. At the moment, he was intensely interested in the amount of his portrayal that had been "left in" in Edwin Carewe's production of "Mighty Lak' A Rose," starring Dorothy Mackaill, which I had seen in its finished state and he had not. Incidentally, it was largely as a result of that conversation that Dick Barthelmess forthwith engaged Miss Mackaill for the lead in his next picture, "The Fighting Blade."

Randolf had with him that day a portrait of Gene Buck that he had just executed as a gesture of friendship for a pal whom he evidently held in high regard—as who does not. A gregarious, kindly, jovial man—although I have never seen him in a film that did not misrepresent him as a dastardly, villainous, double-dyed so-and-so.

He was born December 18, 1876, in Denmark, where he received his education. After playing in stock and in important Broadway productions, he entered pictures in 1912. He died as the result of an operation.

It is communicated to me by one whom I deem excellent authority that "the Art Shires of the Fox symphony orchestra" is very low in his mind these days.

It seems that Eli Amanuel had been hurling golf challenges around with the abandon of a Bobby Jones until recently taken into camp by a modest and apparently "soft" opponent who was just recovering from the debilitating effects of a broken arm. This partial cripple, I am told, "took" Mr. Amanuel over the course to the tune of a handful of smackers and a top-heavy score.

Whataman!

Unless the heat has generated a complete indifference, it may be of interest to know that next week's attractions will be as follows: Columbia, Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery, in "Our Blushing Brides;" Fox, Fifi Dorsay and J. Harold Murray, in "Women Everywhere;" RKO-Keith's, Betty Compson and Ralph Forbes, in "Inside the Lines;" Earle, Jack Mulhall and Loretta Young, in "The Road to Paradise;" Palace, Gary Cooper and June Collyer, in "A Man From Wyoming;" Metropolitan, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Dorothy Revier, in "The Way of All Men."

And don't forget, Will Osborne and his radio band will be back at the Earle for a fortnight's return engagement, beginning tomorrow.

And not a bathing beach in town!

SPIRIT OF OLD SOUTH STILL RULES LABOR

Virginia University Survey Finds That Paternalism Controls Workers.

SCALE OF WAGES LAGS

Charlottesville, Va., July 9 (A.P.).—Out of the glamour of old plantation days, when powerful, if kindly, despots ruled the lives of their vassals, has survived an economic influence that still works mightily in the problem of labor for the Old South's new industries.

The Institute for Research in the Social Sciences, established at the University of Virginia in 1926 by the Rockefeller Foundation, has found this fact in an exhaustive study of present conditions in the South and the reasons why it has endured for more than half a century.

Dr. Abraham Berglund, professor of commerce and business administration; Dr. G. T. Starnes, assistant professor of commerce and business administration, and Frank T. deVyver, research associate in labor problems, conducted the study. They extended its scope into the eleven "slave States" of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas.

Large Labor Supply.

They found relics still existing from the system of paternalism that linked the plantation owner with slave; a supply of labor large in proportion to wealth and capital; low living standards among workers; a relatively isolated communal life in some sections and a craftsmanship becoming out of date in a machine age.

The Southern industrial worker is receiving a compensation much below that of the country as a whole, the study revealed. While the eleven Southern States owned 12.6 per cent of the total number of manufacturing establishments of the United States and produced 10.2 per cent of the value of manufactured output, they employed 14 per cent of the total number of workers and paid them only 9.2 per cent of the aggregate wages.

Low Economic Level.

The relatively low economic level in which the greater part of the white population of the South lived before the Civil War is still effective, the investigators found. Small farms then were very numerous, and did not yield the returns of Northern farms of similar size. This was attributed in the report to location, farming technique and lack of facilities for marketing surplus products.

A striking difference between the South and the remainder of the country was shown in comparisons of per capita wealth. While the eleven Southern States studied contained over 26 per cent of the country's population in 1890, they had only a little more than 13 per cent of its wealth. In 1922 the figures were slightly more favorable, but even then the States referred to had only 15 per cent of the wealth of the United States with more than 25 per cent of the population. The per capita wealth in 1890 was $519 for the South as against $1,036 for the country as a whole, and in 1922 the corresponding figures were $1,747 and $2,919.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.
Washington, Wednesday, July 9—8 p. m.

Forecast: For the District of Columbia and Maryland—Partly cloudy and not quite so warm, preceded by local thundershowers in early morning, Thursday; Friday fair; gentle to moderate winds, mostly north and northeast.

For Virginia—Partly cloudy and not quite so warm, probably local thundershowers Thursday; Friday fair; moderate shifting winds, becoming northeast.

Pressure remains low over the Canadian Maritime Provinces and the North Atlantic States, and it is low and falling thence southwestward to Georgia. Harrington, Quebec, 29.68 inches, and Baltimore, Md., 29.78 inches. Pressure remains low also over the northern plateau and the northern Rocky Mountain regions and the northern Plains States, Miles City, Mont., 29.68 inches, and Kamloops, British Columbia, 29.70 inches. Pressure is relatively high over the northern lake region, Nevada, Saskatchewan and over southeastern Alaska, and in the vicinity of Bermuda, Juneau, Alaska, and Hamilton, Bermuda, 30.08 inches; Winnemucca, Nev., 30.04, and Port Arthur, Ontario, 30.00 inches. There have been local thundershowers within the last 24 hours in the North Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley, Florida, southern Texas, and the plateau and northern Rocky Mountain regions, while fair weather has prevailed in practically all other sections. The temperature has fallen in New York, New England, Nevada, Utah and western Colorado, but it has risen slightly from the Plains States eastward to the Middle Atlantic States and the lower lake region, and the weather is abnormally warm over nearly all sections east of the Rocky Mountains, except New York and New England, many stations reporting maxima of 100 degrees or higher from Montana and Wyoming southeastward to the interior of the South Atlantic and Gulf States. The highest was 108 degrees at Miles City, Mont., while Omaha, Nebr., reports 104 degrees.

The indications are for local thundershowers in Virginia and the Carolinas Thursday, and at scattered points in the Ohio valley, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida, Thursday and Friday. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Thursday and Friday in the Washington forecast district. The temperature will be slightly lower Thursday in the upper Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States, but it will rise again Friday in the lower lake region and the upper Ohio Valley.

THE GIRL IN THE AIR - -

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX.

The telephone was ringing. Margaret jumped to her feet and ran to answer it.

Janet, her face buried in a green silk pillow, sought vainly to extract from the whirlwind of thoughts in her little head one tangible idea. . . . Another plane shot down . . . the pilot killed. . . . Murderers . . . murderers! If—oh, if she could only do sometming . . . to catch them . . . to make them pay.

"It's for you, Jan," Margaret called across the room. "A deep, tickly man's voice."

Janet sat up, touched her eyes with a kerchief, and went to the telephone.

It was Tolbert, a little agitated. "Miss Sears just called from the field, Miss Decker," he explained. "We've had more trouble."

"Yes, I know . . ."

"Did she call you, too?"

"No . . . I'll explain later. . . . Are you going out?"

"Yes, at once. I thought perhaps you might go along. This will probably upset our plans to go to Boston tomorrow. It may mean a trip tonight."

"I'm ready now," Janet informed him. "Will you come by for me?"

"Of course. I'm leaving at once. Good——"

"Just a minute," Janet cried quickly. "I can't tell you anything over the phone, but I want to prepare you for a shock. I've made what may be a very important discovery. . . . That's all for now, but don't be surprised at anything. . . . Good-by."

Margaret, elbows resting on the table, chin in her hands, asked casually: "It must be lots of fun to work for a flying company, isn't it, Jan? Seems to me you're mixed up in some kind of excitement all the time."

Janet had to laugh. "Giddy!" she said. "Don't you know that after just so much excitement you're sick and tired of it? I don't know what I'd give to be out of it."

"And back in the employment bureau?"

Janet hesitated. "No, . . . You've hit my weak spot now, darling. With all the trouble and worry and heartache of this darn job," she admitted, "I'd rather be a flying secretary than a stenographer in the Peerless Employment Bureau, . . . That's one thing that gets me, Marge. The more difficult it gets the harder it is to think of getting out of it. Right now it would be almost impossible. . . . You see, I've learned something that sort of puts me under obligation. To stay, I mean."

Margaret said: "I wish I was as brave as you are, Jan."

"Brave? . . . Listen, darling, I get so scared sometimes I almost shake myself to pieces. Right now, for instance, I'm in a nervous fever. I feel it in my bones something terrible is going to happen. I don't know what it is and it may be nothing; but I'm scared just the same. . . . See what a fine heroine I'd make? . . . But I've got to wash my face. Mr. Tolbert'll be along pretty soon now."

Margaret followed her to the bath room and thence to her bedroom.

"Are you coming back right away, Jan?"

"I don't know, but I doubt it. I may have to take a trip with Mr. Tolbert. Tell Mud to look for me when she sees me, and not to worry . . . There's a car. Is it stopping?"

Margaret ran to the front door and came back immediately. "It's him," she whispered excitedly. "He's coming up the walk."

Janet gave her sister a little hug, caught up her things as she passed through the living room, and opened the door just as Tolbert rang the bell.

"All ready?" he asked, smiling. "I'm sorry to have to drag you out like this."

"Before we get back," Janet advised, "you'll probably be saying I dragged you out. . . . Do you mind waiting just a second? I want you to meet my little sister." She stepped back through the door and crooked a finger at Margaret who had taken up an advantageous position by the front window from where she could see them as they went back to the car.

"This is Mr. Tolbert, Marge . . . And this, Mr. Tolbert, is the nicest little sister in the world. . . . We've got to hurry now, darling."

Margaret, not a little embarrassed, had acknowledged Tolbert's courtly bow with a broad smile. Now she backed through the door and returned to her post by the window.

"She's almost as pretty as you are, Miss Decker," Tolbert declared seriously. And, when they were in the car: "It's rather unusual in these times to find a young woman who is proud of her family and doesn't care who knows it. I've yet to find an imperfection in you, Miss Decker."

Janet laughed gaily. "If you were Hugh Temple and said that to me," she told him, "I'd say the natural thing: Whale oil! . . . But I can't be impudent to the president of the company. We'll let it pass on one condition, that you quit calling me Miss Decker. I hate it, even from my boss. It makes me feel too grown-upish."

"Janet, then?" Tolbert asked. "For the first time since you came to the field, I begin to feel easy with you."

Janet had a feeling that she was just discovering the real Tolbert. He had always been agreeable enough; but paternally agreeable. Now—— she didn't know what it was, but, somehow, he was different, less formidable.

"Did Miss Sears give you any of the details about the plane being shot down?" Janet asked abruptly.

Tolbert shook his head gravely. "Very little. The plane was found about 30 miles south of Philadelphia. Gillman dead. That's about all, but it's quite sufficient. One of these days, Janet, we may get a line on those brigands . . . and when we do, I think I'll take up murder seriously."

"I've a better scheme than that," Janet told him. "Let's capture the ringleader, get confessions from him as to the other bandits, how they have disposed of the money they've stolen and then let the law take its course."

Tolbert smiled tolerantly. "That is really an ideal plan. All we have to do now is discover the identity of the ringleader. You might do that in your spare time some evening."

Janet marvelled at the man's composure. Tolbert was never so occupied with business or so burdened with worry that he could not rise to the good humor of those about him.

Affecting a tone of indifference, Janet said: "What would you say if I told you, Mr. Tolbert, that I already know the identity of the ringleader?"

Tolbert grinned. "What would I say? . . . I'm not sure. But probably something like this: 'You're wasting your talent in the flying game, Miss Decker; you have done what two of the most famous detective firms in this country have failed to do. Hire yourself out to the Pinkertons and your fame and fortune are made' . . . Would that be appropriate?"

"It not only would be, but is . . . am almost sure I know who is the chief of the bandits, Mr. Tolbert. . . ."

"Come now, Janet, we've rather overworked that joke; suppose I tell you the one about——"

"Not only that," Janet resumed, "but I am just as confident that I know who shot down the plane the day before I became your secretary——"

"Janet, please. . . ."

". . . who kidnaped Hugh, and who murdered Belter!"

Tolbert said soberly: "Whereupon the amateur detective opened his handbag and produced the villain in person. . . . You'll forgive me, Janet, if I seem to have no sense of humor, but you're treading on what is very sacred soil to me. Do you mind if we talk of something else?"

She saw that he was honestly irritated by what she had been saying, certain in his own mind that she was either drunk or suffering from a distorted sense of what constitutes an amusing topic.

"Will you," she asked, "listen to a little story? It isn't very long and you may find it interesting. It has to do with a book called "Practical Flight Training," a gullible young man and two villains. ' '"

"I've a copy of the book somewhere at the office," Tolbert replied pleasantly;" the young man and two villains may prove more interesting."

Janet began with the night Henry Frenda gave her the book on aviation, and step by step led Tolbert through the process of thought and discovery that had revealed to her first the mysterious code and, weeks later, the key to its messages.

At first Tolbert appeared to be slightly bored, then quietly amused. But as Janet went on, talking quietly, almost casually, his face showed an unmistakable interest, and, ultimately, conviction. It was a logical array of facts and he realized gradually that this girl had gotten very nearly to the heart of things.

"How Mr. Belter got hold of the schedule of money shipments, I don't know," Janet admitted; "but——"

"Pardon me," Tolbert interrupted; "didn't you know that Belter always had access to my files? He got them there . . . But I'm not at all clear about this Crell person. You say he has posed as a lumberman?"

"He told Henry's mother he was looking over timber in the Valley," Janet explained. "He's been staying there about a month now, I think."

"And you think that Belter was betraying us to Crell by means of the book given young Frenda? . . . But why didn't he go direct to Crell himself?"

"Belter was just that cagey," said Janet. "Henry would take the book to Crell knowing nothing of its secret contents, and no one would ever be the wiser. If Crell was ever caught, no one could say they had seen Crell and Mr. Belter together . . . One thing that bothers me is why Mr. Belter was so angry about it when he learned that the book had not been delivered. Surely he could have copied the schedule again."

"I think you've already answered that question. Being, as you say, cagey, Belter was afraid the book would get into the wrong hands and his complicity found out. That's reasonable, isn't it?"

Janet nodded. "Belter's out of it anyway; only," of course, he did get another copy of the schedule and saw that it got to Crell. Otherwise the plane wouldn't have been brought down this afternoon . . . All of which brings me to the climax of my story, Mr. Tolbert——"

"Meaning," Tolbert offered, "that this man Crell is the seat of all our troubles, chief of the bandits, and the master murderer . . . Dammit, Janet, I think you've really run headlong into the solution of the whole thing . . . Is Crell still staying at Mrs. Frenda's?"

"He's taking his meals there, but since they put Henry in jail, Mr. Crell's been sleeping in the city. I don't know where."

Less than a mile from the airport and already in the reach of its powerful, revolving beacon, Tolbert drew up to the right of the road and stopped the car. "There are more than a few ways to kill a cat," he said mysteriously; but I've an idea the best in the present case is to turn the job over to experts. The question is, how can we bring Crell and the police together with the least delay?"

"Hadn't we better find out where Crell is first?"

"Of course; but how? We can't very well go up and ask for him."

Janet considered a moment. "Can't we?" she said to Tolbert. "We might, you know. Just drive up to the house for a chat with Mrs. Frenda and in the course of the conversation ask if Mr. Crell is in; and if not, where he is . . . Sounds pretty easy to me."

But Tolbert suggested, "Crell might be a little nervous about strangers, mightn't he, Janet? Hearing a car drive up, I suspect he would leave immediately by the rear door."

"Then why take the car? I have it, Mr. Tolbert! You let me out at the top of the hill and I'll stroll over alone. I told Mrs. Frenda I'd call on her again some time and she'll probably be glad to see me."

Tolbert asked: "And what am I doing all this time, sitting out in the cold and probably letting Crell get away?"

"Of course not. When I get out, you drive on to the field, get the night watchman, one or two other huskies and some guns. Then wait in your office. If——"

"And leave you there alone?" Tolbert demanded. "Well, hardly!"

"Please don't interrupt, Mr. Tolbert. We've got to act quickly now. As I was saying, if Crell is there, I'll pretend I've got to telephone the office for some one to come by and take me home. If he's not there—well, you can come back by for me whenever you're ready to go back to the city."

"But," asked Tolbert, "suppose he is there and you do telephone, you can't say bluntly that Crell is there."

Janet was inclined to be a mite sarcastic. "Will it be necessary, Mr. Tolbert?" she inquired sweetly. "If you have the board plugged in on your office and the phone rings and my voice says, 'Will you look around and see if there's anybody about who can drive me home tonight?' you'll know Mr. Tolbert, that what I'm really saying is, 'Bring your gang on down here quick; the big bum's waiting to be captured.' Understand?"

Tolbert's grin was his only answer. He started the car and they moved slowly up the long incline

"Don't be all day about coming," Janet warned him. "Crell may suspect something and get under way in a hurry. Or he may get tough. In any case I'll feel better to know you are all set for murder."

At the crest of the hill the car came to a stop and Janet jumped out quickly. "There's a light in the front room," she said in an undertone. "Mrs. Frenda's home anyway, thank heaven."

Tolbert whispered after her: "I'll be ready and waiting in less than five minutes. Good luck, Janet."

Janet glanced back and saw the lights of the car slipping quietly up the hill. "He's a peach," she thought, for no reason at all. "If he was just a few years younger——."

Then she was running up the steps of the Frenda home, a little depressed by the quiet, dark woods that almost surrounded it, but saying a little prayer for Crell's presence inside.

Tolbert had his little party collected and waiting in the main office of the administration building. He leaned against a desk and lit a cigaret. "I'm sorry I can't go into details, men," he said amiably; "but everything depends on a telephone call. If it comes, we're going out after a desperate criminal who will be willing enough to shoot it out. You fellows won't mind a little excitement, will you?"

Even as they grinned in acquiescence, there was a movement of hands towards mysteriously heavy pockets. They were, plainly, ready and eager for excitement.

Tolbert looked at his watch. It had been almost 15 minutes since he had left Janet.

The group of men shifted restlessly. They wanted action, and apparently they were to be cheated out of it.

Then the sharp tinkle of the telephone in Tolbert's office. It was like the explosion of a bomb. Tolbert darted through the two open doors to his desk. The men in the main office were suddenly on their feet, tense.

Tolbert jerked the receiver up and put it to his ear. "Yes . . .?"

The men, crowding to the door of the office, watched his face for some sign.

"Yes . . .?" Tolbert repeated.

Silence. Then a dull rumbling. Then, like a sharp sword cutting through the wire and striking at his heart, a shrill, piercing scream . . . Again . . . a third time!

"Janet! Janet!" Tolbert cried into the mouthpiece. No answer.

Tolbert was already out of the room and running toward the door. The men swept out behind him like a pack of bloodthirsty hounds.

MANUFACTURED UNDER STUDEBAKER PATENTS

STUDEBAKER, Builder of Champions, presents improved, enlarged, more powerful editions of seasoned Eights—the world champion President, the world famous Commander—plus free wheeling.

Free wheeling is a triumph of that same Studebaker progressiveness that pioneered the popular priced Eight—tested it, seasoned it and proved it to the satisfaction of over 100,000 owners. Today the whole industry is following the Eight trend that Studebaker inaugurated three years ago.

A New Experience

Prepare to drive the most unfettered, yet most obedient car in the world—a car that literally floats along, in gear and fully controlled, yet free and silent as though there were no gears!

You shift with silence and safety from high to second, back and forth, at any speed—forty, fifty miles an hour—and never touch the clutch!

The instant you lift your foot from the throttle, no matter how swiftly you may be traveling, your engine drops to idling speed—with no forcing of the engine by car momentum—with no sensation of "piling up".

You know, of course, that Studebaker Eights hold many world records for speed and endurance and more American stock car records than all other makes combined. But the increased power of the great Studebaker Eight engines which drive these new cars is a revelation. You marvel at the extra smoothness made possible by a nine-bearing crankshaft.

Save Money, Too

With free wheeling, you save 12% on gasoline, 20% on oil—and the heavier the traffic the greater the saving. Carbon is reduced. The terrific reversional strains thrown on rear axle, universal joints, clutch and transmission of an ordinary car are utterly unknown.

You are ready for any emergency of road or traffic on the instant. No sudden grabbing of new Duo Servo brakes—no swerving. Instead, a smooth and reassuring drop in speed—swift as your need dictates.

Your steering gear rights itself after a turn—automatically the car swings to "straight ahead". Your car, floating at each spring-end on oil-sealed ball bearings, rides friction-free.

Enviable in Appearance

All the new delights of free wheeling are yours as the crowning achievement of Studebaker's 78 years of manufacturing integrity. They are yours in new bodies designed to interpret the very spirit of free wheeling—with new Ovaloid headlamps—with new parking lights glimmering on broad, sweeping fenders—with closed cars wired for quick radio installation.

Visit the nearest Studebaker salesroom. Drive one of the New Series Studebaker President or Commander Eights. Get a first hand experience with free wheeling. We promise you the thrill of your life!

New beauties of coachcraft, within and without—new ultra-modern radiator treatment—new Ovaloid headlamps—new fender parking lamps—new harmonies of color—nine-bearing crankshaft—new anti-wheelfight spring suspension—Le Modern bumpers—new self-righting steering gear—duplex carburetion—full-power muffler—non-glare windshield with safety glass—closed bodies wired for radio installation—new Duo Servo brakes with molded lining—Lanchester vibration damper—ball bearing spring suspension—thermostatically controlled cooling with high turbulence radiator air deflectors—air, gasoline and oil filters—coincidental steering-ignition lock—rubber engine mountings—adjustable front seat—new carburetor silencer—one-piece steel core steering wheel.

Shift from high to second at Forty···Fifty miles per hour and never touch the clutch!

Saves 12% on gas, 20% on oil—even more in heavy traffic···· Reduces carbon, lessens strain on engine and transmission

You don't have to touch the clutch except to start or back up

Your car momentum never forces your engine—no sensation of "piling up" when you decelerate···You literally glide along

Your car is surprisingly quiet in every speed···· uncannily silent when you're free wheeling

You are safer because you have absolute control of your car··· You can shift at any speed···· There is less hazard of skidding!

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TREATING SNAKE BITES.

WHEN a person has been bitten by a snake the first effort made should be to identify the biting reptile. In North America, north of the Rio Grande, there are only four or five poisonous snakes. Of these only one—the water moccasin—abounds and the rule is that he does not carry a fatal dose of poison. The probability is that most snake bites are inflicted by non-poisonous snakes.

The rule is that the narrow-headed snakes are harmless. Identifying the snake is not always possible. The seventeenth annual report of the United Fruit Co. records 46 cases of snake bites, of which five were fatal. In spite of the fruit company's insistence that the snake shall be identified, in 27 of the 46 cases the snake inflicting the bite could not be proved or even guessed with probability of being right.

The next observation should be to see whether the snake has a lump in the abdomen. Such a lump indicates that the snake has recently fed and, therefore, the poison glands are empty. In only seven of the 46 cases of snake bite was there an observation on this point, and yet it has an important bearing.

Some of the snake bites in this series caused very few symptoms, even though the biting snake was poisonous and of considerable size. In spite of the fact that whisky is easily obtained in Central America, only three of these patients were given the alcohol cure. Very much the most frequently administered remedy was antivenin. Nine-tenths of the persons bitten were given injections of antivenin, either into the veins or into the muscles. This was given almost as a matter of routine, and in some cases though the bite seemed not to have been made by a poisonous snake. It seems never to have done any harm.

The shortcoming of the method was the delay in injecting the patients. In one instance 30 hours elapsed between the bite and the injection, and more than once the interval was more than 12 hours and less than 30. The company may have a few doses of antivenin with each labor unit to be injected by the foreman.

In eight cases a tourniquet was applied. However, this seems to have been improperly done in at least half the cases. The wound was cut open and made to bleed in six cases. In four permanganate was put into the wound. In five cases an effort was made to stop the oozing of blood by giving lime internally. In four cases shock and pain were combated by the use of morphine or codein. In three or four cases the patients were treated by native snake doctors or native remedies were applied to the wound.

Reading the report gives a person the impression that antivenin should be injected promptly. To make this possible the remedy should be stocked in accessible places. The instructions generally given are to excise the wounds and to squeeze out the poisons. There is no doubt but that this is good policy, but apparently few of the fruit company's employes followed it.

One also gets the impression that applying a tourniquet does little good. Either the practice should be abandoned or else it should be carried out better. Putting permanganate into wounds seems to be falling into disuse.

Some 200 wild flowers native to Nebraska may be used for eating, says Mary F. Meserve, botanist at the State Normal School.

MANUSH, HURT, LOST INDEFINITELY AS NATS DIVIDE

MOVE TO FINALS FOR CONSIDINE, MITCHELL DISTRICT NET CROWN

Former Victor Over Mangan, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, in Struggle.

Mitchell Eliminates Jacobs in Straight Sets, 6-4, 6-2.

By JACK ESPEY.

BOB CONSIDINE, seeded No. 1, and Dooly Mitchell, ranking second, will meet Saturday in the singles finals of the District championship tennis tournament as a result of winning yesterday over Tom Mangan and Billy Jacobs, respectively, in the semifinals on the Edgemoor Club courts.

Considine, the favorite, won a furiously contested match by scores of 4—6, 6—3, 7—5, while Mitchell advanced with less difficulty, 6—4, 6—2. Both matches, however, provided plenty of thrills for an enthusiastic gallery.

Having stepped up to the singles final at the expense of his doubles partner, Considine will pair with Mangan today in the semifinals of the doubles. They will oppose Majs. Robert C. Van Vliet, jr., and Thomas D. Finley, the Army champions, starting at 3:45 o'clock. In the other doubles semifinal, Ensigns Bill Howard and Jimmy Farrin will engage Commander C. C. Gill and Lieut. G. S. Smith in an all-Navy affair.

Considine and Mangan On Even Terms.

Considine and Mangan struggled on even terms throughout the first two sets and until the seventh game of the third set when Considine threw aside his driving tactics and took the net at every opportunity. Charging in after his shots at this stage, the lanky public parks star sent placement after placement over the cords for precious points.

Mangan from start to finish played better tennis than he did when Bob defeated him in the final of the City of Washington tournament last month. The veteran, who won the District title in 1924, and who until last season was virtually supreme in local net circles, was hitting them with great vigor and accuracy, and to the surprise of many observers controlled his overhead which usually heretofore has been his weakest point.

With two consecutive smashes, Mangan took the lead in the third game of the first set at 2—1. This bothered Considine not a little and for most of this set the ultimate winner was unsteady. Considine rallied with the count 2—5 and won two games in a row, but he couldn't stave off Mangan with the latter employing the overhead so effectively.

Mangan's Service Broken.

AN AMATEUR athlete but a professional actor, William T. Tilden 2d, has been playing tennis in Europe ever since last December with the exception of a brief spell of work in a stage production, which did not run long enough to interfere seriously with his tennis. Now, having won the Wimbledon men's singles championship, which is the championship of the world, he is importuned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association to accept a place on the American Davis Cup Team, which will play the French in Paris July 25, 26 and 27, in an effort to reclaim the cup, lost to France in 1927.

There is much excitement about all this. Mr. Tilden declines the honor on the ground of some journalistic commitments which would bring him into conflict with the extremely liberal rule of amateurism peculiar to tennis, and the syndicate to which he is engaged offers to waive its rights to his material for the duration of the Davis Cup final, rather than deprive the American team of so fine a player.

But, of course, whether he plays or not, the present furor over the matter will serve as excellent ballyhoo for the journalistic output, which is a strictly commercial commodity. Mr. Tilden, whatever his faults may be as an actor on the stage, has a fine sense of dramatic suspense in his other works.

McLoughlin Had to Go to Work.

It was a remarkable athletic feat to win the Wimbledon singles again at his age of 37, but in this connection I am reminded of a paragraph in a recent magazine article by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, who is also a journalist of no small practice, regarding Maurice McLoughlin. Mrs. Moody's writings are always alive and in this piece she remarked that McLoughlin was wonderful, unbeatable, marvelous and that then, suddenly, his game dimmed and he vanished from the tournaments. She referred to the mystery of his disappearance, and McLoughlin said there had been no mystery about it. He had had to go to work, adding that no man with business to attend to could be a champion player, because this required top-notch form, which, in turn, required constant playing.

Mr. Ed. Moss, the secretary of the Lawn Tennis Association, assures me that the association has no knowledge of any violation of the amateur rules by any of the American play-bus, Ohio, the slim sharpshooter who came close to bagging the big prize a year ago and who has the game to subdue this testing course; Tommy Armour and MacDonald Smith, a brace of superlatively iron players on a course where this ability pays dividends; youthful professionals like Horton Smith and Henry Ciuci, of New York, who shot a sparkling 69 yesterday, three under par, and came back with a 11 today.

Von Elm Is Threat Among Amateurs.

The chief opposition for the champion is expected to come from this group, with the chance always existing that some outsider may suddenly bob up from nowhere to send the galleries scurrying. If any amateur is to cross Bobby's path, it may be George Von Elm, a consistent medalist. Outside threats among the simonpures include the popular hometown star, "Jimmy" Johnston, amateur champion; the veteran Chick Evans, back near the scene of former conquests; Don Moe, sensational Oregon youngster, and Johnny Goodman, ubiquitous Nebraskan, who upset Jones in the last national amateur tournament.

Tomorrow calls for the first 18 holes of the 72-hole scoring battle, with 18 more on Friday and 36 Saturday. Since play-offs have become the fashion in this tournament, being necessary in each of the past three years, advance arrangements already have been made for an extra 36 holes Sunday for any who may be deadlocked at the top on Saturday.

Rough Is Thick And Deadly.

The first round tomorrow should answer the question as to the extent of Interlachen's toughness. On the basis of sensational practice scores, Old Man Par seems to have been softened up, but most of the experts, as well as the players, expect plenty of trouble to be encountered.

The course has eight par four holes that can be reached with an average drive and good mashie niblick pitch. On the other hand, there are two par-four layouts of 478 and 44 yards, the first and the fourteenth. The rough is thick and deadly, the greens of a rolling, tricky type that may cause a lot of grief. In fact, personal experience on the greens caused Denny Shute to remark that "a lot of good putters will lose their reputations."

These difficulties, plus the intense heat, failed to check a final preliminary flare-up of low scoring today. While Jones was off fishing with his friend, "Jimmy" Johnston, prior to a late afternoon practice stroll, his professional rivals posted some brilliant workouts. Two of the best were scores of 70 each, two under par, by Tommy Armour and Al Watrous, of Birmingham, Mich.

Par cracking rounds of 71 were posted by Billy Burke, of Greenwich, Conn.; Jock Collins, of Dayton, Ohio; Sonny Rouse, of Chicago, and Henry Ciuci, of New York, with Denny Shute reporting 72. Hagen, taking matters very easily, carded an approximate 74.

Jack Burke, of Houston, Tex., and Charles Hall, of Birmingham, Ala., will be the first twosome off the tee at Interlachen tomorrow in the opening drive for the national open golf championship. They start at 8:30 a. m. (Central standard time) and will be followed by pairs every five minutes until around 2:40 p. m.

Giants Sign Susce, Former Phils' Catcher

Philadelphia, July 9 (A.P.).—The New York Giants today signed George Susce, catcher, formerly the property of the Phillies, who has been a free agent for the last week or two. Susce, former baseball and football star at the University of Pittsburgh, was with the Phillies all last season, but was farmed out this spring to Buffalo and Newark in the International League. He was returned to the Phils a short time ago and received his unconditional release.

Ruth Is Suspended 3 Days for Argument

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth received a three-day suspension today as the result of yesterday's altercation with Umpire Brick Owens. The Babe protested violently about the umpire's decision on a called third strike against Charley Ruffing in the first game of yesterday's double-header and was ordered from the field.

Notice of the suspension came from President E. S. Barnard of the American League after he had received the umpire's report.

Mandell and Singer Nearing Best Form

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Both Sammy Mandell, at his camp at Orangeburg, and Young Al Singer, in training at Delaware Water Gap, Pa., rested today before settling down to the final conditioning for their lightweight title duel in the Yankee Stadium here July 17.

Mandell, the defending champion, will resume boxing tomorrow and quit the grind next Tuesday. Although he weighs in the neighborhood of 140 pounds he is expected to find trouble getting down to the class limit of 135 without weakening himself. Singer, close to perfect condition, will work straight through until next Wednesday.

Rumor Reports Hornsby Is Through With Cubs

Cincinnati, July 9 (A.P.).—The Enquirer says rumors current among members of the Chicago Cubs here today were that Rogers Hornsby never would play another game for the team even if his injured leg yielded to treatment before the current season ends. The paper says Manager Joe McCarthy refused to discuss the matter, but intimated there would be a sensational story about Hornsby before the season is over.

HARD-HITTING OUTFIELDER INJURES MUSCLE IN GROIN BEATING OUT HIT IN FIRST GAME; MACKS LOSE GROUND BY BOWING TO YANKS

Ragged Philadelphia Fielding Helps New York Win, 12-6.

Yanks, Outhit, Make All Runs During 3 Big Innings.

NEW YORK, July 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics may be champions of the world, but today on the stadium green they bore a close resemblance to the Prospect Park sparrows. The Yanks, outhit but not outfielded or outpitched, with some efforts of their own at timely intervals, plus some splendid assistance in the way of bases on balls and weird heaves on the part of their rivals, had little difficulty in walking off with the third contest of the current series, 12 to 6.

For three sessions the Yanks were blanked, only to put together their twelve markers in the next three. They made four in the fourth on some clean hitting, five in the fifth on three passes, a two-base heave by Eric McNair to the regions generally inbahited by Shipwreck Kelly and one hit which happened to be a lusty homer into the right-field bleachers with two on by Bill Dickey, and three in the sixth when another two-base wild throw, this time by Schang, came at a timely moment.

Mack Uses Four Pitchers.

Connie Mack used four pitchers, starting with Leroy Mahaffey and following with C. Perkins, Shores and Rommel. In the sixth inning, with the Yanks far ahead, Mr. Mack gave his crew a vigorous shuffling, using practically all his reserves with the exception of Eddie Collins, and send-to save the day. He took Brown's place at the tee, but the most excitement he caused was a great swing at a third strike which ended the game.

Gaston Halts Nats' Streak, 5-1, in Final of Double Bill

The Nats' biggest worry in the opening game was that rain might wash the four runs they scored in the sixth inning off the books. The affair started off as a pitching duel between Russell and Jones, with the former cracking in the sixth, when the Johnsons scored four times.

Myer opened the attack with a double. Rice's attempted sacrifice was so good that it went as a hit, and Manush singled to center, scoring Myer. On Cronin's tap to Regan, the latter raced over and trapped Rice, then hit him on the shoulder with the ball while pegging home. This let Rice and Loepp, who replaced Manush, who injured himself running out his hit, score while Cronin went to second. Judge singled the latter home.

Boston Scores In Home Half.

In the home half, the Sox got one of these runs back on Scarritt's opening double, Webb's sacrifice fly, and Pinch-Hitter Durst's single with the Nats matching this in the eighth. Bluege's opening double, Ruel's sacrifice, and Jones' well-executed "squeeze" bunt were the ingredients used in the making of this run.

Bushey, relieving Russell, wiggled out of a hole in the ninth and then the natives made their first real threat. With one out, Regan and Miller singled in succession and Reeves coaxed a pass to fill the bases. One runner registered while Cronin was turning Berry's tap into a force play, but the game ended when Rothrock, up for Bushey, grounded out to Judge.

In the Wake of the Game

Special to The Washington Post.

FENWAY PARK, Boston, Mass., July 9.—Rain appeared to be just in the offing when the two teams took the field today for the scheduled twin bill, but, despite the threatening weather, a crowd of close to 15,000 was on hand. Even while losing, the Red Sox are popular here. Included among the throng were several bearded youngsters, members of the famous House of David team.

FIRST GAME.

Todt went down the dirt to dig up Rhyne's low peg of Rice's roller in the opening canto.

West had to come in fast to make a nice catch of Oliver's near Texas leaguer opening the game for the Sox. The looper looked like a sure hit when the ball left the bat.

Bluege ended the enemy first by racing over in front of Cronin to snare Scarritt's topped grasser, with his gloved hand, and to nail the runner with a rifle peg to first.

Cronin's single opening round two was a scatch affair, a bounder off Russell's glove. Joe, being a good sport, evidently did not wish to take advantage of this break, for he immediately wandered off the initial sack too far and was killed by a snap throw, Russell to Todt.

Webb, former Nat, who has been hitting exceptionally well in a Red Sox uniform, started the home second with a single but died stealing when, with the hit-and-run on, Ruel crossed the dope by calling for a pitch-out and nipped the runner heading for second. Ending the round, Ruel caught Regan, who had singled, trying to steal. Thus the Sox had none left, despite two hits.

Myer's single, with two dead in the third, went through pitcher Russell's legs at a mile-a-minute clip and gave him quite a scare. The ball might have broken an ankle had it been headed a little bit toward either side.

Rhyne went over directly behind second to make a nice stop and throw of Rice's roller ending the second. This cost the Nats a run, for Myer was on second at the time.

Judge and Jones, the latter covering first, collaborated on a nice play to dispose of Todt in the fourth, the Nat pitcher taking the first-sacker's toss with his gloved hand as he raced at full speed across the initial sack.

Regan made a one-handed stop of West's tap opening the fifth; taking the ball well over toward first, he could not get the ball to first in time to beat the speedy runner. With the hit-and-run on, Bluege then hit into a double-play.

Jones did some fast fielding in making the two outs which ended the home fifth. Both were on taps near the third-base line, Rhyne's sacrifice and Heving's topped roller.

With one strike called on West, four runs over, Judge on second, and none out in the sixth, old "Jup Pluv" insisted upon having his innings, and for a while it looked as though he would stop hostilities for the day, washing out the Washington runs and throwing the score back to even innings, 0-0. After a delay of more than an hour, however, play was resumed.

In order to keep the impatient crowd quiet while the ground keepers were getting the infield in shape again, Altrock and Schacht earned their week's salary by staging many of their comic stunts, the most popular of which were the burlesque tennis match, their imitation of the umpire and batter, and their fishing trip.

After Scarritt had doubled, opening the home seventh, and advanced on Webb's sacrifice fly, and Regan had coaxed a pass, Cronin came through with a catch which was exceptionally brilliant, going to midleft to drag down Miller's looper as it was sailing away from him. Both runners were off at the crack of the bat, and the Batting Star Is Sent to Home in Detroit to Recuperate.

Wagner Joins Harris and Peck in Rating Nats Strongest.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

BOSTON, July 9.—The first-game victory that the Nats scored while dividing a double-header with the Red Sox today proved most costly to the Washington Club when Heinie Manush pulled a muscle in his left groin in the sixth inning and as a result is out of the game indefinitely.

Manush, who had been nursing a badly bruised left heel, sustained his latest injury while beating out a hit and was forced to gvie way to Loepp on the base paths. Trainer Mike Martin deemed the injury serious enough to order Manush to his home in Detroit to recuperate and the big outfielder left the team early tonight.

Manush's injury comes at a particularly trying time for the Nationals, just when the battle to hold on to first place is waxing hotter. Manush's big bat has figured prominently in the team's recent successes and he will be greatly missed. Manager Johnson is hoping that the injury proves to be less serious than now feared and that Manush is able to rejoin the team not later than the Cleveland series, which is the second stop on the coming Western tour.

With their consecutive winning streak snapped at ten, the Nationals tomorrow will be out to start another one and they have high hopes of doing so, for the Red Sox do not look impressive. Irving Hadley, who has been twirling great ball of late, is due to get the pitching call from Manager Walter Johnson, while he likely will be opposed by Danny MacFayden.

Wagner in Tribute To Nats.

Managers Roger Peckinpaugh and Stanley Harris already have gone on record that they rate the Nationals ahead of their nearest rivals, the Mackmen and Yankees, and Heinie Wagner, Red Sox pilot, today added his vote to the total. In a gabfest before today's double-header, Wagner stated that he considered Johnson's team the best rounded in the circuit.

"The Washington infield is by far the best in our league," he said, "with Bluege the best third baseman in the business, in my opinion. Cronin, at short, is a brilliant performer and appears to be the sparkplug of the inner works, while I have never seen a more improved player than Myer is at second. Judge's work speaks for itself, as it always has for years past.

"As to pitching," said Wagner, "without a doubt the Washington staff is the best in the league, as Johnson has at least five men who should turn in a victory almost every time they go on the hill. Spencer and Ruel make a fine catching staff."

Switching to the outfield, Wagner declared that Rice is going better now than he did when considered in his prime, that he has yet to see a better flychaser than Sam West, and that he believes that Heinie Manush's addition just about assures the Nationals a pennant.

Griffith to Join Club in West.

President Clark Griffith is now in Chicago attending the joint major league meeting called by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis to discuss the draft question, over which the big fellows and minors have been arguing for these many years. Instead of returning to the Capital City, word was received today from the Nat owner that he will join the Washington Club in Detroit Friday and probably tour through the West with it.

Infielder Bobby Reeves has now recovered from his injuries but is having trouble getting back in the regular line-up again because of a slump at bat from which he suffered just before he was hurt. His present average is less than .200.

Bob is making his presence felt in the coacher's box, however, proving to be quite a "jockey" in "riding" the Nat pitchers.

G. W. FOOTBALL TEAM TO HAVE TRAINING CAMP

Probable Site Is Virginia Beach

Prospects Are Bright as Colonials Boost Tried Material.

Team Facing Difficult Schedule of Nine Games.

FOR the first time in its history George Washington University will employ "major league" methods of football training by establishing an out-of-town camp in which to train the candidates for the 1930 Colonial Eleven.

This much was ascertained last night from an authoritative source at George Washington, while it was hinted that Virginia Beach will be the location of the camp. The definite choice, it was said, is in the hands of Director of Athletics James E. Pixlee.

Pixlee at present is in the West on his vacation, but it is believed that he has been communicating by letter on the subject with Colonial authorities. Prior to his departure last month he had taken no steps whatsoever to secure a camp, although he had gone on record as favoring such a move as a means of developing a strong team. He also had expressed a preference for a site on the New Jersey Coast.

Virginia Beach Ideal Spot.

Virginia Beach is said to afford fine all-round conditions for preseason football training.

Other local colleges adopted the training camp idea several years ago. Georgetown's gridmen have done their preliminary work away from home for the last six years, while Catholic University followed the plan in 1925 and 1926.

This year Georgetown will train at Point Lookout, Md., but Catholic, which has a new coach, Arthur J. Bergman, coming in, will work at home on the Brookland field.

That George Washington will have a camp indicates that Pixlee will leave no stone unturned in attempting to produce the strongest football team in Colonial history.

Prospects for 1930 Bright.

With a large nucleus from the powerful 1929 freshman eleven returning, together with the addition of some capable players who couldn't play last fall owing to conflict of athletics with their studies, George Washington's gridiron prospects for 1930 are unusually bright.

Pixlee first gave notice of the Colonials' hopes when he arranged an especially ambitious schedule last spring. Navy, South Dakota, Tulsa, Albright and Rutgers were signed, in addition to Catholic, New York Aggies, Dickinson and Delaware. George Washington had never before scheduled Navy in football.

Clairemont Netmen Lead in Capital League

Clairemont is holding a slim lead in the race for the championship of the Capital City Tennis League. In first place on a margin of 15 points, the Clairemont netmen are trailed by Edgewood and Burroughs, each of the latter being in a threatening position. The other four teams, Filipino, Commerce, Kann's and DeMolay, are below the .500 mark in victories and will have to do a distinct form reversal to get into the thick of the fight. The standings as of yesterday follow:

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JAMES FITZSIMMONS, trainer of William Woodward's Gallant Fox, left New York last night for Chicago, to saddle the champion horse in the $70,000 added classic to be run at Arlington Park Saturday. His confidence was increased in winning the rich stake after receiving a reassuring telegram from Earl Sande, who will ride the horse, and who rode him in the sensational mile and a quarter workout Tuesday.

Arlington Park offers eight races today including the Foxcatcher Steeplechase. The track is sloppy. The feature on the flat is styled the Glencoe Handicap at 6 furlongs. It looks easy for VICTORIAN now in the Warm Stables which carries top-weight of 124 pounds. VICTORIAN is reported in good shape, and is by far the best horse in the race. MY DANDY is the probable contender, with UNCLE LUTHER the third horse. The $2,000 purse looks like a gift for VICTORIAN.

FIRST RACE—ROOSEVELT is best of these maiden 2-year-olds, especially in the mud. JOSEPHINE D. may be the contender. She has no mud form. CHUCKLING should get in the money and is bred for a heavy track.

THE STEEPLECHASE has some good Eastern horses engaged. The Greentree Stable's VALOROUS won his last race in the East, due largely to a bad ride on the contender, and will be the favorite, but the distance is believed too short for him, and FAIR CLASS is selected to take the purse, having an advantage in weight and likes a heavy track. ROONEY should take third. He was shipped West from Long Island.

THIRD RACE—The Rancocas entry of GLIDELIA and ZAILA should take this. GLIDELIA revels in the mud. IN BETWEEN should make it a close race. AUNT DEB is best of the others. The race is for 2-year-old fillies. GLIDELIA won a stake at Jamaica.

FOURTH RACE—Walter J. Salmon's SWINFIELD should beat these 3-year-olds at 7 furlongs. BREEZING THRU, which lowered a track record last week for the Bradley Stable, may be dangerous, but he has not been beating horses of Swinfield's class. NED O. has good mud form, and should be in the money.

SIXTH RACE—HOT TODDY, withdrawn yesterday, is entered here, and should win with ease. GALADAY, a fast filly of the Gallant Fox family, is expected to be the contender. LIVE OAK may be a surprise. He has speed, but there is no recent line on his form.

SEVENTH RACE—BROTHER RANK has a good chance at a mile. He will have FLYING EXPRESS and CZARIST to beat. There is little class in the race.

EIGHTH RACE—RUANE is well placed and is suited to a sloppy track. MOROCCO appears to be the most dangerous contender. DUELIST and GENIAL HOST may figure in the race.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING CHEROKEE, $6.00, $4.28, $3.24; LAUHALA, $14.46, $7.46; TRAPSTAR, $16.04.

FLYING CHEROKEE, outrun first half mile, moved up fast into contention entering stretch and, closing gamely, wore down the leaders and put up to outstay LAUHALA at the end. LAUHALA, never far off the pace, improved his position gradually to the stretch, wore down TRYOR and held on well, but could not match the winner's challenge. TRAPSTAR ran forwardly on the inside, saved much ground and, keeping up with leaders, outstayed TRYOR during stride. TRYOR, displaying the most early speed, opened up a good lead to the stretch turn, but faltered at the final eighth and quit badly. ALLEGRETTO closed a big gap.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:45. Winner, G. W. Foreman's b. g. (4), by Donnacona—Alice High. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47, 1:14 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EQUATION, $6.34, $3.06, $2.56; FRENCH LASS, $3.26, $2.78; JUGGLER, $5.00.

EQUATION followed pace closely, took lead from FRENCH LASS and drew away to win in canter. FRENCH LASS had her speed, and headed HOT SHOT leaving the far turn, but tired badly in the stretch drive. JUGGLER closed fast during final quarter after being outrun to stretch turn.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs (out the chute). Purse, $1,600; allowances. The Good and Gay. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:20. Winner, Mrs. J. Bieri's br. (3), by Stefan The Great—Duchess Lady. Trained by W. N. Knapp. Value to winner, $1,150; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:17, 1:30 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VALENCIENNES, $3.50, $2.58, out; CHELYS, $5.24, out; SUPREME SWEET, out.

VALENCIENNES was saved until the stretch turn and then, coming fast when called upon, quickly ran around the leaders into the advantage and won as rider pleased. CHELYS raced in forward pursuit of leaders to stretch, held on well and easily outgamed the tiring SUPREME SWEET. SUPREME SWEET, used up forcing the early pace, made a strong move entering stretch to head MORJOY, but faltered badly in the final furlong.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $2,000. The Fox Lake Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:46. Winner, M. Shea's b. g. (4), by Sand Mole—Inquiry. Trained by W. A. Shea. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $350; third, $175; fourth, $75. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:15 2-5, 1:43 1-5.

BROWN WISDOM	111		4	3	3h	3h	5½	6	Garrity	5.14

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANDY FORD, $30.70, $8.84, $4.48; PETEE WRACK, $4.42, $3.12; WILLIAM T., $2.70.

SANDY FORD saved ground on inside, made all his pace and, under hustling ride, kept PETEE WRACK safe in long, hard final drive from stretch turn to end. PETEE WRACK raced forwardly in pursuit of winner, came strong in the stretch, responding well when hard urged, but was not quite good enough. WILLIAM T. gained gradually, closed good gap and made a game finish. MORSEL tired when the real racing came.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,800; allowances; the Waukegan. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:15½. Off at 4:16. Winner, Reuter Stable's ch. h. (5), by Prince Gallahad—Clairmoria. Trained by P. Reuter. Value to winner, $1,300; second, $300; third, $150. Time, 0:25 4-5, 0:51 4-5, 1:19, 1:45 4-5, 1:58 4-5.

CANTANKEROUS	115		1	3	3	2½	4	4	Finnerty	3.36

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GALLAHAD, $4.10, $2.86, out; SUITOR, $4.80, out; CANAAN, out.

GALLAHAD, restrained for the first half mile, worked his way up rapidly thereafter and, joining SUITOR at the stretch turn, soon wore down the latter, drew away and won hard held. SUITOR easily disposed of CANTANKEROUS nearing far turn, opened up lead, but tired and was no match for the winner.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:45. Winner, A. E. Barrett's br. f. (3), by Flying Ebony—Duchess Kathleen. Trained by E. Hayward. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:50 1-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:44 4-5.

* Disqualified.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BETTY BARRETT, $5.12, $3.06, $2.82; BLACK CLOUD, $4.80, $3.80; HONEY GROVE, $29.22.

VOLTMETER, always close up, came fast entering the stretch, took the lead from BETTY BARRETT and drew clear, then came away fast in final eighth. Nearing the final eighth, VOLTMETER inadvertently whip BETTY BARRETT, it was judged a foul and he was disqualified. BETTY BARRETT, never far off the pace, took the lead from BLACK CLOUD when called on, but could not withstand VOLTMETER'S challenge and, after meeting interference from the latter, tired. BLACK CLOUD showed fair speed and held on well after being headed at the far turn.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:16. Winner, J. Heelan's b. h. (5), by Underfire—Brown Eyes. Trained by W. E. Jones. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:25 2-5, 0:51 1-5, 1:18 1-5, 1:45 3-5, 1:59 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AVIATOR, $8.78, $3.84, $3.56; QUIBBLER, $7.56, $6.20; PRETTY POSE, $14.60.

AVIATOR, forced wide at first turn, quickly made up ground on the back stretch to reach contention and, coming with a rush entering stretch, went around leaders and rapidly drew out to win in a canter. QUIBBLER was also carried wide making first turn, but recovering, worked his way up steadily and closed a big gap, but could not get to the winner. PRETTY POSE had early speed, but could not keep up and appeared beaten on stretch turn, but came again and held on well in the final drive.

ST. JOE NINE TO BATTLE HEIGHTS

Capital City League Rivals Will Clash Sunday at Park.

WITH first place in the District unlimited division of the Capital City League at stake, the contending teams—St. Joseph's and Columbia Heights Business Mens' Nines will use Griffith Stadium Sunday as a battle ground for that honor, the Nats' hallyard having been secured for the all-important tussle.

To date but half a game separates the two rivals, St. Joe's having won one more game than the Heights team. Both have been beaten but once—St. Joe's in an upset by the Burroughs Nine and the business men's team by the Army Medicos.

More than usual interest is attached to the game, inasmuch as the Columbia Heights team is a newly-organized team in the league for the first time and will be seeking to wrest the lead from the defending champions, who gained the title in 1929. With so much depending on the struggle, Jack Farrington has been named to pitch for the champions, while "Reds" Rhodes will do the twirling for the challengers.

The game will start promptly at 3 o'clock.

MAJORS VOTE BREAK WITH MINORS IN DRAFT WAR

Five Leagues Are Issued Ultimatum

Break in December Is Voted Unless Draft Is Accepted.

Action Against Biggest Minors to End 9-Yr. Agreement.

CHICAGO, July 9 (A.P.).—American and National League club owners today declared for an absolute break of player relations after December 1, 1930, with five "nondraft" minor leagues unless the latter accept the universal draft.

The decision was made in a joint meeting of the majors and included a determination to purchase no players nor to release any to the Pacific Coast League, the American Association, the International League, class AA leagues, and the Three-Eye and Western Leagues, the latter of lower ranking.

The resolution not only demanded that the minor leagues involved, which have been subject since 1923 to a modified draft, agree to the universal selection system, but that a schedule of higher draft prices be inaugurated. There was only one dissenting vote on the resolution in spite of the fact that several major league clubs operate teams in the minor leagues involved, as "farms."

Breadon and Veeck Favor Resolution.

Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis League Club, which owns or controls the Rochester Club of the International League, and the Danville Club of the Three-Eye League, favored the resolution, as did President William L. Veeck, of the Chicago Cubs, which has the same relationship with the Los Angeles of the Coast League and Reading of the International League. The name of the only dissenter was not revealed, but it was said he favored further attempts to negotiate with the minor leagues.

If the minor leagues fail to accept the universal draft the only relations possible with the majors will be to continue to draft those players who already have been sent to nondraft leagues under the modified arrangement under which they have operated since 1923.

The relations between major leagues and nondraft leagues during the past nine years have been considered extremely unsatisfactory. From the beginning of organized baseball until 1921 the universal draft was recognized.

Five Leagues Freed From Draft.

Then the five leagues involved were freed from the draft rule. The situation was unsatisfactory to the major leagues in 1922 and they offered a compromise by which players sent to nondraft leagues should be subject to the draft. The minors refused the compromise for a year, but later submitted to the modified draft.

The meeting was the first affair of the kind to be called for mid-season, and was held at this time to give the minors plenty of time to consider and act on the proposition at their regular meeting next winter. Suggestions for changes in the draft rules have been made in the regular winter joint meetings of the American and National Leagues, but, it was said, had been ignored by the minors.

ers, but it has been my idea for several years that the association would do much to establish the sincerity of the game with the public if it would suddenly adopt a strict rule of amateurism, as honest as the amateur rule in golf, rule out all the stars of both sexes who make tennis an indirect means of a livelihood and start over.

Under this rule the United States probably would not win any Wimbledon championships and the Davis Cup might never return, but championships are not essential to sport. In fact, they have been exploited to such an extent that nowadays, in tennis, victory seems to count above everything else, except the gate receipts.

Full Testimonial Privileges.

A lady tennis athlete of any personal style whatever may turn her athletic distinction to profitable account as a mannequin for the costumers of Paris and New York. The stars of both sexes appear to have full privileges to sell testimonials for cigarettes, cosmetics and all manner of goods with the single exception of athletic wares, and the traffic in material for the press has become so profitable that it were much better to write tennis on the courts, so to speak, than in the press tents provided for the noncombatant journalists.

The literary quality and commercial value of these essays, of course, rise and fall with the athletes' ranking. I recollect an instance a few years back in which a noted tennis player with a fancy for the art business was asked to make some drawings for a newspaper, and delivered a couple of scrawls so studious and amateurish that any apprentice, drawing whirligig borders and painting backgrounds with a squirt gun in the art room of any newspaper in town, would have blushed to call them his. In this case, however, the price was $200 a sketch and the deal was made, although the editor who bought them remarked that he surveyed 'em on his desk that he could draw better than that with a shoe brush dipped in tar.

It is a strange aversion that some tennis players have to being regarded as professionals. As though there could be any social opprobrium in the term in a day when Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Babe Ruth, Georges Carpentier, Bucky Harris and numerous other professional athletes have not been only tolerated, but cultivated by persons of the class known, for the lack of any better name, as society.

Respect for Tennis Is Lost.

The great ones accept the benefits of professionalism by indirect courses and play the game more constantly than even the baseball players who compete only six months in the year. And, realizing this, the public can not have the respect for the game that it has for baseball, football or golf in which the amateurs are strictly amateur and the professionals quite frank about their status. It suggests that there is something inherently evasive about the game of tennis itself, which likens it to politics rather than to sport. Incidentally, the lack of understanding between the star tennis players and the press may be taken as an indication of the character of the game as expressed in the major tournaments.

In other sports, this relation is generally cordial, but tennis always has had much to conceal, and the stars have been too much concerned with selling their observations, often as raw material to be done over by the rewrite battlers, to permit of the same friendship that exists between the writers and the performers in other games. The Davis Cup has had a romantic past, but the old pot is tarnished nowadays. The Walker Cup in golf is much more lustrous, but the Walker Cup golfers are not year-round players. Bobby Jones has played in only seven winter tournaments in seven years and now he is beginning to think that four big summer competitions are too many for an amateur who doesn't make a life work of sport.

Cards Nose Out Bucs, 7-6, on Wilson's Double

St. Louis, July 9 (A.P.).—A double by Jimmy Wilson in the eighth inning with the bases loaded, gave the St. Louis Cardinals three runs and a 7-to-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates here today. The Cardinals advanced to within a half game of the third-place New York Giants.

The Pirates were coasting along with a three-run lead until the eighth, when Meine slackened and permitted the three runs. Spencer, who relieved him, walked two men and Brame came in to strike out Adams ending the rally.

Chick Hafey and Gus Suhr hit home runs.

Tigers Beat White Sox, 6-1; Uhle Shows Form

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.).—Behind George Uhle's masterful pitching Detroit defeated the White Sox, 6 to 1, today and captured the series, three games to two.

Uhle limited the Sox to six hits, all of which came in the last four innings. He held them scoreless until the ninth.

Meanwhile the Tigers got to Thomas and Braxton for thirteen hits. Thomas, whose ailing arm has won only three games for Chicago this year, was chased by a five-hit, three-run attack in the second inning.

ROBINS TAKE TWO FROM BRAVES

Vance Blanks Braves in First With 3 Hits; Win Final, 6-4.

BROOKLYN, July 9 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins today increased their margin of leadership in the National League to two games by winning two contests from the Boston Braves while Chicago was dropping one to Cincinnati. The scores were 8 to 0 and 6 to 4.

Dazzy Vance pitched a great game in the opener, fanning nine Braves and allowing only three hits. Ike Boone led the attack on Fred Frankhouse with three hits, including a double and a home run. Babe Herman also hit a homer.

Bill Sherdel held the Robins in a tight battle for six innings of the second game but, with two out in this frame, Del Bissonette came suddenly out of a batting slump, hitting a home run with the bases full. Phelps pitched steadily after relieving Elliott and gained the victory.

Phillies Solve Hubbell In 9th; Beat Giants, 5-4

Philadelphia, July 9 (A.P.).—The Phillies put on a ninth-inning rally against Carl Hubbell today that netted two runs and a 5-to-4 victory over the New York Giants. They made four hits in the ninth after being held to seven blows in eight innings, Klein's double sending in the winning run.

All the rest of the scoring was in the first inning, when the Giants made four runs and Philadelphia three. Errors by Thompson and Thevenow gave the New Yorkers three of their runs. The victory gave the Phillies a 2-to-1 edge in the series.

STOCKS SCORE GAINS THOUGH SALES LAG

Oversold Condition Appears as 1,358,000 Shares Are Traded.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIO UP

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Stocks advanced today, in common with grain, but the upward move was made in trading which, in dullness had been equaled only once this year. Sales totaled 1,358,000 shares against last Wednesday's two-year low record of 1,231,000.

Nevertheless, the absence of selling was favorably construed and appeared to indicate at least a temporarily oversold condition. It was apparent that most of the buying was done by professionals who had found the market resistant to further selling and who desired to protect profits earned on the short side. However, there was still no scramble to cover, for several big bear operators undoubtedly are unconvinced that lower levels can not be attained.

Sentiment in brokerage circles appeared to be slightly more optimistic. Some of the commission house letters pointed out that the present level in the steel and automobile industries might well be the bottom, and also expressed the opinion that the market's technical position was strong. But customers for the long pull seemed skeptical, evidently preferring to await the development of strong and active rallying tendencies.

Weather Proving Factor.

The weather was an important influence in the strength of the grains and the steadiness of cotton, and therefore indirectly on the stock market, which is keeping an eye on the Chicago wheat pit. July wheat advanced more than a cent on reports of high temperatures in the Northwest and crop damage. Closing prices were slightly less than a cent higher. Corn advanced from 1 to 1¾ cents on a bullish Government weather report. A warm wave in the South Atlantic, east gulf States and central cotton belt overcame the weakness that had developed on the Department of Agriculture's acreage estimate, and cotton futures ranged from 4 points net lower to 7 net higher.

Those who are looking to the bond market for leadership got further comfort. Prices of prime issues, especially the rails, moved higher under fairly active inquiry from institutional sources, especially the banks. Many expert observers believe that the year's lowest bond prices have been seen and that the recent move toward higher levels has established a definitely higher trend, which would be favorable to new corporate financing.

Rail and oil stocks did particularly well, for there was favorable news affecting each group. The Interstate Commerce Commission's class rate decision and a gain in car loadings attracted a demand for the prominent carrier shares, several of which rallied 2 to 5 points. Chesapeake & Ohio gained 7. The weekly petroleum figures revealed a decrease in production and in gasoline stocks. Standard Oil of New Jersey and Houston Oil moved up more than 2 points. Oil Well Supply had the distinction of making a new high for the year above 20.

U. S. Steel at 158.

Publication of an estimate placing the shrinkage in United States Steel's unfilled June orders at between 50,000 and 100,000 tons found the stock at its high of the day, just above 158, from which level it reacted a point. A reduction of the proportions mentioned would bring Steel's backlog to about 4,000,000 tons, the lowest since early last fall, and although such a drop would compare favorably with the 295,000-ton decline in May, the corporation's rate of operations has been materially curtailed since the last tonnage figures appeared. The June statistics will be announced at noon tomorow.

The weekly iron and steel reviews featured the slump in activity over the recent holiday. Iron Age said that ground lost in the July 4 shutdowns had not been regained and that ingot production was down to 56 per cent compared with 60 per cent a week ago. Immediate prospects were characterized as "not promising."

In general, the movement of stocks was higher throughout the day, although late profit-taking reduced the advances a point or so in leading issues. Shares gaining 2 to 3 points net included American Can, American Tobacco "B," Consolidated Gas, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, Missouri Pacific, Procter & Gamble, Westinghouse Electric and Union Pacific. Rock Island was up 5. Nash Motors was steady on the dividend reduction, which was smaller than had been expected in some quarters. U. S. Steel rose ¾ net.

Foreign exchanges were slightly irregular. The French franc, which is approaching the gold export point, was firm.

RAILWAY BONDS RISE IN ACTIVE TURNOVER

Rail Convertible and Utility Sections Account for Increased Sales.

FOREIGN GROUP STEADY

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—The strength of the rails stood out in the upward movement of bonds today. Increased activity among carrier liens and convertibles accounted largely for the improvement in the volume of sales which was $1,600,000 more than yesterday, amounting to $9,460,000.

The advance of rail liens and the strong demand for convertibles was partly ascribed to the readjustment of freight rates of Western carriers to provide additional revenue. In the case of Missouri Pacific subsidiaries, strength was attributed to the Interstate Commerce Commission's action in approving a consolidation. International Great Northern adjustment 6s climbed 9 points and the first 6s 2, while New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5s B gained 2.

Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s touched a new high and the 5½s closed at a new high mark. New 1930 tops also were established by Southern Pacific 4s, Pennsylvania debenture 4½s, and Baltimore & Ohio (Toledo and Cincinnati division), 4s.

Missouri Pacific Rises.

Delaware & Hudson 5½s, Denver, Rio Grande & Western 5s, Big Four 5s D, San Francisco 4½s, Louisville & Arkansas 5s, and Missouri Pacific 5½s were among the most active issues, gaining about ½ point.

Among convertible issues Atchison 4½s, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, St. Paul adjustment 5s, Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s, Alleghany Corporation 5s and Southern Pacific warrant 4½s profited from an improved demand and made good gains, coincident with strength of rail stocks.

Soft spots developed in the rail list, Florida East Coast 5s sagging 5 points to a new low, and Iowa Central issues losing from 3 to 5 points.

Moderate gains were made by best grade utility issues, American Telephone collateral 5s reaching a new peak for the year. Denver Gas & Electric 5s, Northern States Power 5s, Federal Light & Traction 5s were in demand and higher.

Australian Issues Active.

Activity of Australian issues continued as one of the highlights in the foreign bond trading. Australian 5s of 1955 gained 1¾, and the 5s of 1957 advanced 1 point, while 4½s, which were the most active, were unchanged. The foreign group maintained a firm trend.

United States Governments were quiet. Liberty fourth 4¼s, in which the bulk of the buying was centered, touched a new high for the year.

The Reading Co. announced it will offer $15,000,000 4½ per cent gold bonds as the first piece of financing, other than equipment trusts, in 29 years. Other offerings include $1,250,000 4¼ gold bonds of the State of California, $18,000,000 State of Arkansas highway bonds and $4,000,000 5 per cent gold bonds of Wisconsin Power & Light Co.

FLEMING TO ASSIST IN BANK COMMITTEE

Riggs President Appointed Member of Calculation of Reserves Group.

ROBERTS IS ON VACATION

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

President Robert V. Fleming of Riggs National Bank has been appointed a member of a special committee on calculation of reserves appointed by the bank management commission of the American Bankers Association. J. R. Leavall, executive vice president of the Continental Illinois Co. of Chicago, is the chairman of the committee, and T. B. McAdams, executive manager of the State Planters Bank & Trust Co. of Richmond, is the other member of the committee. This committee was appointed at the request of President John G. Lonsdale of the association.

It will make a study of and report on calculation of reserves as follows: Deduction of cash from gross deposits before calculating reserves; deduction of "due from banks" from gross deposits before calculating reserves irrespective of whether "due to" or "due from banks" is larger, to permit banks to carry their reserve of Tuesdays for the close of business Monday nights. It will also probably give consideration to the advisability of carrying average reserves in place of daily ones.

Business on Upward Trend.

A recent upward trend of business in the District of Columbia is announced by the July Credit and Sales Bulletin, monthly analysis of sectional business conditions, prepared by the Bureau of Business Conditions, a division of Alexander Hamilton Institute. The bulletin lists local condition as having been poor and trade volume off 11.9 per cent from what it was at this time a year ago.

For Maryland, the review states that general volume of business in Baltimore is fair, although conditions in other parts of the State are less favorable. The textile group continues weak. The biggest increase in employment was in beverage plants, where a gain of 14.9 per cent was registered. Building continues to run below the level of a year ago.

Industrial activity continues at a fair rate in Virginia although still below last year's level. Tobacco manufacturers are active, while lumber mills and car building showed some curtailment. Building continues actively, with the value of contracts running 1 per cent below 1929. Although the potato acreage was increased, a production of approximately one-sixth below the 1929 crop is expected due to the lower yield per acre.

Railway Operating Income.

Class I railroads in the first five months of 1930 had a net railway operating income of $307,659,543, which was at the annual rate of return of 3.68 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics, in the Transportation Building and made public yesterday. In the first five months of 1929, their net railway operating income was $457,017,242 or 5.58 per cent on their property investment.

At the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Washington Loan & Trust Co. yesterday the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent was declared payable August 1 to stockholders of record July 23. Books will be closed from that date until July 31 inclusive. President John B. Larner, of the company, came from his country place near Mifflintown, Pa., where he is now on vacation, to attend the meeting.

I. J. Roberts, an assistant cashier of Riggs National Bank and personal secretary to President Robert V. Fleming, of that institution, is taking his annual vacation.

A group headed by the Guaranty Co. of New York and including the Union National Bank of Pittsburgh, the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh and Bankers Co. of New York is offering today $14,931,000 ten-year convertible 5 per cent gold debenture bonds maturing June 1, 1940, of the Armstrong Cork Co. at 98 and accrued interest, to yield over 5.25 per cent.

Each bond will be convertible at any time on or before maturity or earlier redemption date at its principal amount, into common stock of the company, with adjustment for interest and dividends, as follows: On or before June 1, 1935, at $65 per share; thereafter to June 1, 1937, at $70 per share, and thereafter at $80 per share.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Preliminary reports to the Federal Reserve system by 490 stores in leading cities of all Federal Reserve districts show the department store sales in June were 9 per cent smaller than in the corresponding month a year ago. Sales for the first half of the year were 4 per cent below the level and the like period last year.

Max Epstein, chairman of the board of the General American Tank Car Corporation, said today on his return from Europe that the company completed a good six months business and that earnings for the first half should show an appreciable gain over the corresponding period of last year and should approximate $4,000,000. He said the third quarter shows evidence of being the best in the company's fiscal year. Mr. Epstein added his company is establishing a refrigeration car system throughout Europe connecting by boat with London.

The Otis Steel Co. reports improved conditions for the present week, with current operations in the sheet and hot and cold strip departments at the Riverside plant in Cleveland at full capacity; six of the eight Riverside plant open-hearth furnaces operating and a seventh scheduled to be lighted this week, and plate output at the Lakside plant being increased by the addition of another mill in production.

Directors of DeForest Radio Co. have authorized an issue of $800,000 three-year 6 per cent notes to provide funds for expected increases in business during the next few months and to payment of $300,000 in 6 per cent notes. Offering will be made to stockholders of record July 14.

Cotton goods were little changed today, the demand being confined to goods for early shipment and bids often being under an already low market. Raw silk continued dull and weak, and silk goods for fall were quiet. Some filling-in business was done on suitings and coatings for fall in the wool goods division. Burlaps were easier on reports of large acreage sowed to jute.

The governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange has voted to list on official notice of issuance 21,200 additional shares of $25 par value capital stock of the Borden Co. The application for listing showed the stock was to be issued in connection with acquisition of the entire assets and business of H. L. Neuman Co., York, Pa.; Zile-Neuman Co., Westminster, Md.; Neuman & Neuman, Littletown, Pa.; Hansen Dairy Co., Los Angeles; Home Dairy Co., Kansas City.

Offering is being made of $15,000,000 general and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds, series B, of the Reading Co. The financing is described as the first for the company in 29 years, with the exception of equipment trusts.

The European Electric Corporation, Ltd., through an engineering and management affiliate, Italo-Belge Electric & Public Utility Co., together with the United Electric Securities Co., has been instrumental in the formation of Iberian Electric, Ltd., United Electric Securities is a subsidiary of General Electric Co. The Iberian Electric, organized under Canadian laws, has been formed for the purpose of investing in electric properties in Spain and Portugal.

The Reichsbank statement as of July 7, shows the following changes in Reichsmarks: gold and bullion decreased 63,000; reserve in foreign currencies decreased 33,617,000; bills of exchange and cheques decreased 137,335,000; silver and other coins decreased 2,831,000; notes on other banks increased 10,395,000; advances increased 130,002,000; investments increased 80,000; other assets decreased 3,517,000; notes in circulation decreased 193,413,000; other maturing obligations decreased 110,571,000; other liabilities increased 4,391,000. Total gold holdings 2,618,808,000. Rate of discount 4 per cent.

A banking group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. was today awarded $18,000,000 State of Arkansas highway bonds. The bonds bear 4¾ per cent interest and mature from July 1, 1935, to 1965.

STRIKE OF LATHERS MAY BE ADJUSTED AT MEETING TODAY

Work on Several Building Projects in Washington Delayed by Walkout.

UNION DEMANDS WAGE RAISE TO $14 PER DAY

Trades Council Support Is Expected to Be Asked by Organization.

Adjustment of the strike of union lathers, who are demanding that their daily wage scale be increased from $12 to $14 a day, is expected by labor officials who will attempt to arbitrate the differences at a peace parley today.

Work on several major building projects in the city, including the Department of Commerce Building, is impede by the walkout. Union officials stated last night that many plaster contractors had yielded to the union's demands.

Only 75 workmen are idle as a result of the walkout, it was said. Spokesmen for Local No. 9, of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, today will confer with representatives of the Employing Plasterers Association in the hope of amicably adjusting the strike.

Council Support Sought.

Union men last night determined to remain steadfast to their demands and intimated that the Washington Building Trades Council, the forum of all building trades, will be asked to give support to the strike. Whether the strike spreads to other trades, will be dependent upon the attitude of the plaster contractors, union officials said.

Preliminary conferences between the union men and the contractors failed to effect any concessions on the part of either group.

No official cognizance of the strike has been taken by the American Federation of Labor. At the building trades department of the federation, it was announced yesterday that although the walkout is hampering the Federal construction program, there will be no intervention by the federation. The lathers' union is affiliated with the federation, it was said, but settlement of the question rests in the hands of officials of the local union in negotiating with the employing body.

Ask Two Increases.

Demands of the union workers for a wage increase of $2 a day, were met with a refusal by the employing plasterers. In their communication to the contractors, the lathers asked an increase of $1 a day beginning July 1, bringing their daily wage to $13, and another increase on October 1, which would give them $14 a day.

Other buildings affected by the walkout are the new department store of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Fourteenth and F streets; the department store of Frank R. Jelleff, Inc., 1216 F street; the Holy Name College Building, in Brookland; the National Christian Church, Thomas Circle; the Sacred Heart Convent Building, on Park road near Sixteenth street.

Driver of Taxicab Foils Holdup Man

Would-Be Robber Flees When Confronted With Trip to Police Station.

Alexander W. Kramer, taxicab driver, of 1631 Euclid street northwest, blocked at least one of the series of taxicab holdups which have swept the city recently when he refused to accede to the demands of a would-be robber yesterday.

After carrying a colored man from New Jersey avenue and E street northwest to New Jersey and I street southeast, Kramer was confronted with a revolver and told to empty his pockets of money and to walk away from his cab.

"I'll take you to a police station, instead," the cabman replied. And with that the pasenger jumped from the automobile and ran. Fifth Precinct police were looking for him last night.

Coroner's Jury Clears Autoist in Death of Girl

A coroner's jury yesterday declared accidental the death of Teresa Andrews, 4 years old, of 310 C street northwest, who died in Emergency Hospital after an accident at Eighth street and Mount Vernon place northwest Sunday. The little girl was unconscious for more than 50 hours following the accident.

The verdict cleared R. W. Beeskow, 25 years old, of M street near Fourteenth street northwest, who was said to have driven the car which struck the child. He was held for a short time Sunday, released in custody of friends, and rearrested when the child died.

Girl, on Tricycle, Saved When Riding Into Creek

Margaret Davidson, 4-year-old daughter of Maj. H. C. Davidson, commandant of Bolling Field, is convinced now that tricycles are not good for sea-going. The conviction came after she had ridden her machine into the creek at the south end of the field yesterday.

When the water became deep, she screamed for help, and was rescued by a passing ice-cream vendor. Which was providential, because she immediately decided she needed ice cream to complete her recovery from the watery experience.

Self-Styled Gangster Arraigned as Vagrant

The self-styled "toughest gangster this side of New York" was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on charges of vagrancy, driving without a permit, parking double and disorderly conduct. The cases were continued.

Dennis Collyer, colored, was arrested by Policeman E. Barnett on Monday at Seventh and S streets. He is said to have told the officer that "I'm tough, copper. You still got a chance to run. There ain't no jail can hold me and no judge ain't going to hold me, for they're scared." He told the arresting officer to call him "Dapper Dan."

Fire in New Commerce Building.

Fire broke out at the top of an elevator shaft in the Department of Commerce Building now under construction on Fourteenth street, but was extinguished by firemen with fire extinguishers. Damage was estimated at $15.

EARTH TO BE TURNED FOR NEW TRANSEPT

Thanksgiving Service at Washington Cathedral to Be Held Today.

DR. PETER TO PRESIDE

Friends of Washington Cathedral are invited to attend the first step in the construction of the south transept today at 10 a. m., when the first shovel of dirt will be turned. A brief service of Thanksgiving will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of Washington Cathedral. The entire staff of the Cathedral in the city will be present.

The south transept, as the arm of the great cross-shaped cathedral facing the City of Washington is called, represents the second half of a construction program which the cathedral trustees hope will be completed by 1932. The contract for building the entire north transept was signed several weeks ago, and this work is well under way. About $1,000,000 more will have to be obtained for the completion of the south transept.

The cathedral authorities are making every possible effort to complete the north and south transepts and close in the crossing by 1932 in order that a great religious service may be held there during the Nation-wide observance of the George Washington bicentennial. It is planned to use the sanctuary, choir and transepts for this purpose. With the two transepts finished, the cathedral will be about one-half completed, leaving the nave, central tower and two west towers yet to be built.

The transepts are being built by the George A. Fuller Co., with Frohman, Robb & Little, of Boston and Washington, as the architects. Philip Hubert Frohman, of Washington, will represent the architects, and John Butler the builders, at today's ceremony.

Park Music Planned For Tomorrow Evening

A band concert and community sing will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the new community park on Twenty-seventh street between O and M street northwest. W. N. Miller's band will play.

Miss Louise Harlow, Mrs. Ethel Williams, and Miss Virginia Williams are in charge, while Mrs. George Pelham, of the Community Center Department, is cooperating. Motion pictures will be shown.

Boy Steals Ice Cream, Gets 90 Days in Jail

Leonard Warren, colored youth, was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail yesterday for stealing a small amount of ice cream from his employer.

Residents of 1520 Connecticut avenue testified before Judge Isaac Hitt in Police Court that the ice cream was being kept for dessert at dinner.

BANK OFFICIAL, 66, WEDS THIRD TIME

Mrs. Adelaide Kauffmann, Widow, Is Bride of William G. Davis.

MET SIX MONTHS AGO

"When a widow and a widower meet it doesn't take them long to find out if they love one another."

This is the way William G. Davis, 66 years old, who has been married twice and who has risen from the position of street car conductor to a bank official, explained his successful wooing and marriage last night to Mrs. Adelaide C. Kauffmann, widow of Dr. Kauffmann. Mrs. Kauffmann is 30 years old.

They were married at 7:30 o'clock last night by the Rev. Thomas A. Cunningham at Sacred Heart Church, Sixteenth and Park road northwest.

The couple met six months ago. Mr. Davis started working in Washington 40 years ago as a street car conductor. After a year he became a member of the Washington Police Force and served as a private for four years. Then he established a grocery and provision business at Fifteenth and P streets northwest. During the course of the next 25 years this business prospered and Mr. Davis was able to retire.

Still eager to remain active, however, he became an officer of the United States Savings Bank at 2000 Fourteenth street northwest.

Mr. Davis' first wife was the daughter of Capt. Kinchloe, of Virginia. His second was Miss Hanna Draney, a Washington school teacher. The first Mrs. Davis died about 25 years ago. Mr. Davis lost his second wife about three years ago.

Dr. Kauffmann died about three years ago. He was a well-known physician in Washington. Mrs. Kauffmann made her home at 4204 Eighteenth street northwest. Mr. Davis lives at 1505 Fifteenth street northwest, where he established his business. The couple expect to make their home at the latter address.

Greeting From China Received by President

Dr. H. W. Miller, president of the new China Division Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, spent fifteen minutes with President Hoover at the White House Tuesday discussing the political situation in China. He bore greetings to the President from Tang Shao Ye, former prime minister and minister of railways. Tang Shao Ye formed a close friendship with Mr. Hoover when he was an engineer in China.

Dr. Miller said that Tang Shao Ye gave him $10,000 to build in Shanghai the first medical clinic in the Eastern country. It will be six stories high, with accommodations for 350 patients. Dr. Miller, for eleven years medical director of the Washington Sanitarium in Takoma Park, will return to China on August 30.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA, all hopped up about the mourning doves that have taken up their abode at the Old Manse, came to breakfast with a glorious scheme.

"We'll christen 'em," she said.

"Poison 'em," said your uncle, "that's what I'd like to do." They had me up at dawn again with that theme song—hoot, hoot-hoo, like a broken-down calliope.

Luella tried to get me interested.

"What you ought-a do," she said, "is take a course in nature study."

"Yeah! What I ought-a do is get down the old flintlock, and——"

"You wouldn't shoot 'em?" she gasped, seeing the murderous glint in my eyes.

* * * *

IT gave me a chance to expatiate on my old shooting days, down on the Chesapeake: "Say, young lady, listen I've shot better birds than they'll ever be—pedigreed birds, birds of royal parentage, straight from Europe—princes and princesses of the feathery tribe, big birds, little birds, birds that were received at court, decorated by the various governments, birds honored by the South American republics—and you speak to me of mourning doves——"

Well, it was a good speech while it lasted, but it didn't deter Luella.

"I don't care what you've shot, or where you shot 'em, either, in the neck or the forecastle," she said, growing eloquent herself. "You are not going to shoot these mourning doves—unless it's over my dead body!"

THERE was the old melodrama—ten, twent', thirt'. I thought Luella was too young to know about the blood-and-thunder shows. In those days the hero always came through, but she had me spotted for the villain; so I had to die an ignominious death. I didn't shoot the birds. Instead, the christening was in order.

"What're you gon-a call 'em?" I asked, "Frankie and Johnnie?"

"Frankie and Johnnie?" Why should we call 'em Frankie and Johnnie?"

"After the old song——"

"Songs have nothing to do with this——"

"They're song birds, aren't they?"

"Yes, and no! They're really love birds——"

"Well, Frankie and Johnnie were lovers," I began to sing, "and, Gee Whiz, how them two could love. They were——"

* * * *

LUELLA got up and walked out of the room. "If we name 'em anything" she shot over her shoulder, "we'll call 'em Charles and Anne——"

"How's that?"

"Because they're good fliers, too."

"Who, the mourning doves or the Lindberghs?"

"Both," said Luella, from the other room, and so the christening services were at an end.

WOODCOCK SERVES AS STAFF OFFICER IN MARYLAND POST

Director of Prohibition Is Aiding in Mimic War at Fort Meade.

MANY CAPITAL YOUTHS ARE IN SUMMER CAMPS

1,900 Youths Are Enrolled at Fort Eustis; Track Meets Planned.

From the various forts and military posts where Washington's young reserves are receiving their annual summer military training, stories are beginning to filter back. There is the story of the library at Fort Eustis, Va.; the first review at Fort Washington, Md., and the story of the national chief of prohibition serving as lieutenant colonel in the Maryland National Guard.

Amos W. Woodcock is the member of the staff of the First Maryland Infantry at Fort George Meade. He is serving with the Blue forces, which, in mimic warfare, are ranging over the nearby States, preventing a Red force from capturing strategic points. In Washington Mr. Woodcock is known as the national director of prohibition enforcement.

17,000-Volume Library.

The 17,000 volumes in the Fort Eustis library make it the largest in the military district, which comprises the surrounding States. At Fort Eustice there are in training at the citizens' military training camp 1,900 young men. There are about 600 reference books in the library, the rest being current fiction. Two Washingtonians are in the same company at Fort Eustice.

There are thirteen Washingtonians in the Reserve Cavalry force now training at Fort Myer, Va., while there are eight in the Field Artillery training at Fort Hoyle, Md. All eight are in Battery F.

Fort Washington has a variety of activities and surprises for the summer soldiers. One of them is the band, under the leadership of Albert Andrews of the United States Army Band. Monday they had their first review with rifles, the guns being issued to them in the morning, and the review being in the afternoon. Maj. Alexander M. Patch reviewed the neophytes. The band, all new material save for the six boys left over from last year, furnished music for the occasion.

Track and Field Meets.

Another feature of life at Fort Washington is the track and field meet. Several of the winners in the 1929 camp are back in the running this year.

Eight hundred and fifty-one candidates for the camp had their fifteen pieces of clothing and equipment issued to them between sunrise and sunset when they started in at the camp. Each man had to try on his uniform, and have it inspected by a Regular Army officer before he was allowed to wear it. It had to fit him properly in every respect.

Meat, vegetables and fruit is brought fresh each day from Washington, though the 700 loaves of bread are baked at the camp.

Navy Worker Ends 50 Years' Service

Miss G. L. Wilcox Praised by Acting Secretary E. L. Jahncke.

A letter commending her on her completion of 50 years' service in the Navy Department was sent to Miss Grace L. Wilcox, of the Bureau of Construction of Repair, yesterday by Acting Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke.

Miss Wilcox, who lives at the Marlborough Apartments, is 71 years old. She says she is still willing to continue in her present job.

The letter says: "The department desires to extend to you its congratulations upon your completion on this date of 50 years of useful, active and efficient service in the Navy Department. To very few is given the opportunity to round out so long a period of service, and one is particularly fortunate when it is accomplished with results too happy to all with whom associated as in your case."

McKinley High School Pool Hours Announced

The McKinley High School swimming pool will be open to the public from 10 a. m. until noon and from 1 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. daily, it was announced yesterday at the Office of Public Buildings and Parks. Free instruction will be given in swimming and life saving.

The Francis pool for colored persons is now open from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. and from 7 p. m. until 10 p. m. Free lessons in swimming and life saving will be given from 10 a. m. until noon.

MOTIONS TO FREE THREE IN SLAYING OF YORK REFUSED

One of Trio Shot Rum Agent After Asking Cigarette, Statement Holds.

BORUM SAYS SHOT CAME AFTER BRIBE'S REFUSAL

Lieut. Kelly Takes Stand to Testify on Death Gun and Documents.

Motions for directed verdicts freeing three Negroes on trial for the murder of Prohibition Agent Lamar Watson York were denied by Justice Jesse C. Adkins in Criminal Division No. 1 Court yesterday. The individual motions were argued immediately after the Government had rested its case with the introduction of three alleged confessions, which were admitted to the record after legal skirmish occupying most of the morning session.

John Borum, indicted for the murder with John Logan and Milton Guy, accused Guy of the murder, in a written statement allegedly given to Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, chief of the homicide squad. Guy, in turn, charged Borum with the killing, while Logan also accused Borum of firing the fatal shot.

The gist of the three statements was that Logan and Borum had driven to Brooks court northwest, where the murder was committed early on the morning of April 12, to deliver liquor to Guy. While they were removing a smoke screen apparatus from a Cadillac car owned by Borum, they were surprised by the agent. Borum and Logan walked to the end of the alley, leaving Guy to "make arrangements" with the officer for the car's release. Guy, however, denied that he had offered the officer a bribe.

Hid Gun in Home.

Logan's statement says that Borum told him "I'll be damned if I am going to lose my car," and that after making this remark Borum walked up to the officer, asked him for a cigarette, and then shot him.

Borum's statement confirms the liquor delivery but charges Guy with procuring the guns from his home and shooting the officer. "After the officer refused the bribe," his statement reads "I said, 'what can we do.' Guy then said all we can do is to throw a gun on him. He then went into his home on Brooks Court and got his wife to get his gun from under the carpet. We walked up to the officer and Guy stuck the gun in his face, saying 'throw up your hands.' The gun went off and the officer fell. Guy said he didn't know the hammer had been drawn back."

Borum further charged that Guy had given him the gun and asked him to hide it. He put it into the floor of his home, he says, where it was later recovered by officers.

Tells of Alleged Bribe.

In the first part of his statement, Borum said that he and Logan were stopped in Baltimore on the day of the killing by a policeman who noticed the smoke screen tank on the car. "I offered the policeman money," he said," but the policeman said that he couldn't let us go as there were too many people looking at us. He finally took us to a booth where another policeman was, and we gave them each $10 and they let us come on back to Washington."

Attorneys for the three defendants, who are aligned against themselves as well as the Government, based their motions for directed verdicts on the claim that their individual clients were not incriminated by statements of the other. Justice Adkins, however, decided to let all the cases go to the jury.

Lieut. Kelly took the stand during the afternoon session to identify the statements as voluntarily given, and to identify the murder gun, which was admitted in evidence. He was not cross-examined by defense counsel.

Girl Given Position For Father's Heroism

Because her father was seriously injured in an explosion in a laboratory at the Bureau of Standards in 1926, Miss Patia Smith has been appointed to "an appropriate position" in the Department of Commerce, without reference to the provisions of the Civil Service rules, by President Hoover. This action was recommended by the Secretary of Commerce.

The Chief Executive paid a tribute to the heroism of Mr. Smith, who died on March 15, 1929. He said "as a result of his heroic action in preventing loss of life and further damage to Government property by closing the liquid ammonia valves of the altitude chamber and pumping out the ammonia coils to a vacuum, Mr. Smith was seriously injured."

Honor for Late Dr. Wiley.

The board of directors of the Washington Tuberculosis Association will hold a special meeting tonight at Social Service House, 1022 Eleventh street northwest, in memory of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, who for many years was vice president of the organization.

COURTESY STRESSED BY HEADS OF POLICE

PETTY ARRESTS RAPPED

Importance of courtesy and friendliness toward the general public was emphasized to the 55 lieutenants, sergeants and privates who were advanced in rank with brief ceremonies in the District Building yesterday.

Harry M. Luckett, chief clerk of the Police Department, administered oaths to the promoted officers. Each first signed the oath to perform his duty and then the oath was administered aloud to the group.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, told the newly promoted officers that their promotion meant that they had assumed added responsibilities and they would be held to account for performance of their duties.

Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby emphasized the desire of heads of the department to have the entire personnel treat all persons with courtesy and consideration. Though the proceedings were conducted behind closed doors it was reported that Gen. Crosby strongly intimated that a police officer was supposed to use judgment in making arrests for violations of minor regulations and to have told new officers that he did not feel especially proud of the thousands on thousands of arrests which have been made annually for petty offenses committed by ordinarily law-abiding citizens.

Lieut. Frank H. Varney, who was promoted from detective sergeant, has been serving as Gen. Crosby's aid since the new Commissioner took office and there was some question about whether Lieut. Varney would continue in that capacity or go to the Tenth Precinct, to which he was assigned in orders by Maj. Pratt. There is no disagreement between the Commissioner and the police superintendent on the question; assignment to precinct duty being a formality with the actual duty of Lieut. Varney left to the discretion of Gen. Crosby. The general, however, said yesterday that it was his purpose to have Lieut. Varney assume the duties of lieutenant in a precinct, and this will come about in a few days.

Luhring and Cox Feted By Bailey and Adkins

Oscar Luhring and Joseph W. Cox, who were recently confirmed as associate justices of the District Supreme Court, were informally entertained at luncheon yesterday by Justices Jennings Bailey and Jesse C. Adkins. The luncheon was held in the justices' dining room of the Courthouse.

Neither of the two new justices could definitely tell when he would be sworn in, but it was expected that both would take oath of office before the end of the month.

FRANK OWINGS FREE IN CONTEMPT CASE

NOW WAITS SENTENCE

A contempt of court citation brought against Frank Owings for his alleged conversation with a juror in a case pending in Circuit Court, division No 1, last June 23, was dismissed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Justice Jennings Bailey.

Fred W. Jones, 3811 Beecher street northwest, the juror in the case, was adjudged guilty and released on his personal bond, to await sentencing today Mr. Owings, who was a witness in the case in which Mr. Jones was a juror, is a former vice president of the Bank of Commerce and Savings. In defending himself against the citation through Attorney William B. Wolf, Mr Owings explained the conversation with the juror in a courthouse corridor by saying that Mr. Jones had stopped him to inquire whether banks were insured against bad checks. He said that he did not know Mr. Jones and disclaimed any intention of showing disrespect for the court.

Mr. Jones held out against eleven men in favor of the Bank of Commerce and Savings, the defendant in the case. In pronouncing him guilty of the contempt charge, Justice Bailey said that he must have been warned not to discuss the case with anyone. The juror pleaded that he was not familiar with court procedure, and had asked the witness the question about check laws purely from curiosity.

Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw accepted dismissal of the charge against Mr. Owings, but insisted on pressing the charge against Mr. Jones on the grounds that the question asked was one of the principal points in the trial.

Pair Posts Peace Bonds Following Near Battle

Two witnesses summoned to Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick's office were put under peace bonds yesterday when they engaged in a heated argument, ending with an alleged threat by one to fill the other full of lead when they got into the street.

The men were John Reardon, Milwaukee place, and Raymond Tennehill, also of Milwaukee place. The witnesses had been summoned in the case of Edgar S. McDonald.

Woman Under Arrest On Bad Check Charge

Detective Ira E. Keck will go to Stamford, Conn., today to bring back Catherine Rickaby, 24 years old.

She is wanted in Washington on a charge of passing worthless checks. Last fall, according to police, she passed two bad checks on local stores for merchandise worth $165.

COURTESY STRESSED BY HEADS OF POLICE

PETTY ARRESTS RAPPED

Importance of courtesy and friendliness toward the general public was emphasized to the 55 lieutenants, sergeants and privates who were advanced in rank with brief ceremonies in the District Building yesterday.

Harry M. Luckett, chief clerk of the Police Department, administered oaths to the promoted officers. Each first signed the oath to perform his duty and then the oath was administered aloud to the group.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, told the newly promoted officers that their promotion meant that they had assumed added responsibilities and they would be held to account for performance of their duties.

Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby emphasized the desire of heads of the department to have the entire personnel treat all persons with courtesy and consideration. Though the proceedings were conducted behind closed doors it was reported that Gen. Crosby strongly intimated that a police officer was supposed to use judgment in making arrests for violations of minor regulations and to have told new officers that he did not feel especially proud of the thousands on thousands of arrests which have been made annually for petty offenses committed by ordinarily law-abiding citizens.

Lieut. Frank H. Varney, who was promoted from detective sergeant, has been serving as Gen. Crosby's aid since the new Commissioner took office and there was some question about whether Lieut. Varney would continue in that capacity or go to the Tenth Precinct, to which he was assigned in orders by Maj. Pratt. There is no disagreement between the Commissioner and the police superintendent on the question; assignment to precinct duty being a formality with the actual duty of Lieut. Varney left to the discretion of Gen. Crosby. The general, however, said yesterday that it was his purpose to have Lieut. Varney assume the duties of lieutenant in a precinct, and this will come about in a few days.

Luhring and Cox Feted By Bailey and Adkins

Oscar Luhring and Joseph W. Cox, who were recently confirmed as associate justices of the District Supreme Court, were informally entertained at luncheon yesterday by Justices Jennings Bailey and Jesse C. Adkins. The luncheon was held in the justices' dining room of the Courthouse.

Neither of the two new justices could definitely tell when he would be sworn in, but it was expected that both would take oath of office before the end of the month.

FRANK OWINGS FREE IN CONTEMPT CASE

NOW WAITS SENTENCE

A contempt of court citation brought against Frank Owings for his alleged conversation with a juror in a case pending in Circuit Court, division No 1, last June 23, was dismissed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Justice Jennings Bailey.

Fred W. Jones, 3811 Beecher street northwest, the juror in the case, was adjudged guilty and released on his personal bond, to await sentencing today Mr. Owings, who was a witness in the case in which Mr. Jones was a juror, is a former vice president of the Bank of Commerce and Savings. In defending himself against the citation through Attorney William B. Wolf, Mr Owings explained the conversation with the juror in a courthouse corridor by saying that Mr. Jones had stopped him to inquire whether banks were insured against bad checks. He said that he did not know Mr. Jones and disclaimed any intention of showing disrespect for the court.

Mr. Jones held out against eleven men in favor of the Bank of Commerce and Savings, the defendant in the case. In pronouncing him guilty of the contempt charge, Justice Bailey said that he must have been warned not to discuss the case with anyone. The juror pleaded that he was not familiar with court procedure, and had asked the witness the question about check laws purely from curiosity.

Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw accepted dismissal of the charge against Mr. Owings, but insisted on pressing the charge against Mr. Jones on the grounds that the question asked was one of the principal points in the trial.

Pair Posts Peace Bonds Following Near Battle

Two witnesses summoned to Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick's office were put under peace bonds yesterday when they engaged in a heated argument, ending with an alleged threat by one to fill the other full of lead when they got into the street.

The men were John Reardon, Milwaukee place, and Raymond Tennehill, also of Milwaukee place. The witnesses had been summoned in the case of Edgar S. McDonald.

Woman Under Arrest On Bad Check Charge

Detective Ira E. Keck will go to Stamford, Conn., today to bring back Catherine Rickaby, 24 years old.

She is wanted in Washington on a charge of passing worthless checks. Last fall, according to police, she passed two bad checks on local stores for merchandise worth $165.

Paulist Mission Left $500.

New York, N. Y., July 9.—The Missionary Union, of the Paulist's Mission House, Brookland, D. C., received $500 under the will of the late John Bannan, which was filed for appraisal here today in surrogate's court.
